How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy liver. When the liver is torpid the bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, drowsiness and nervousness, indicates how the whole system is deranged. Simmon's Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever was any thing else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the stomach and bowels.

BORROWED AND STOLEN.

OMAHA SAQUET.

Brilliant Climax to the Chamber of Commerce Opening.—Banquet and Toasts.

OMAHA, Oct. 5.—[Special to the Plattsmouth Herald.]—The most important and eminently successful banquet that was ever given; was given by the board of trade last night at the board of trade rooms. And the whole massive structure as completed was lighted from the bottom to the top, six stories in all and thrown open for the first time to Omaha's distinguished guests from all portions of the United States.

The stars and stripes were beautifully displayed over the whole building in all parts of the room, and beautiful tropical plants were displayed so as to produce an almost tropical scene. Four long tables were loaded down with the most luxurious menu that ever tickled the palate of a connoisseur of the "Gate City."

There were about 330 covers laid the banquet and about 220 participated amongst the most prominent and wealthy men of the metropolis.

All the large cities of the west like Denver, Salt Lake, San Francisco and Portland, sent distinguished men to the opening and banquet; from the north, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, and Sioux City furnished their quota; from the south, Kansas City, St. Joe, St. Louis, Memphis, and St. Paul furnished their prominent citizens to the "Gate City" banquet, and the east representatives from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and other prominent cities furnish their quota of prominent men.

Sam Allerton and Phil Armour the two millionaires of Chicago, sat at and enjoyed "the feast of reason and flow of soul" at the first board of trade banquet. Mr. C. C. Rogers and Wm. P. McLaren, the president of the board of trade of that city and her most wealthy citizens were present. The president or vice president of the board of trade of the afore mentioned cities were present. The leading state officers of Nebraska—senators and congressmen were present, and about 220 of Omaha's most prominent business men belonging to the board of trade.

The guests were assigned to their seats at 8 p. m., filling up four large tables, running the full length of the room. The president, secretary and directors were seated about a table running at the sides and rear of the platform, while from the hollow square so formed, arose a great pyramid of fruits and flowers. While beautiful strains of music came from the gallery, where the musicians sat amid the miniature forest of palms and ferns. The guests were served in five courses as follows:

OYSTERS.
Blue Points on the Shell.
SOUP.
Clam Chowder à la Hudson.
FISH.
California Salmon, Sauce Chutney.
Pommes de Terre Hollandaise.
Fillet of Groise à la Chambord.
Olives, Asparagus, Celery.
ROSIAN PUNCH.
Cigarettes.
Lobster Salad à la Maynaise.
Charlotte Russe.
Coffee, Boquet of Citrus, Water Crackers, Fruit.
Nuts and Raisins.
Champagne.

As soon as all had satisfied the inner man Hon. W. V. Morse arose and responded to the toast "Master's Greeting." Mr. Morse gave a sketch of Omaha's financial history, said some very interesting odds and ends relative to her growth, and was continuously applauded. He said that in the absence of Mayor Bronch, the toast "The city of Omaha" would be responded to by Mr. Fred W. Gray, who said that he considered the city of Omaha a very large one and referred briefly to her growth and prosperity.

"Welcome to our Guests" was responded to by that prince of humorists Judge Savage, in his original and quaint manner and was uproariously applauded. He said "I read about the first post master of Cleveland Ohio carrying around the mail in his hat." He said that A. D. Jones was the first postmaster of Omaha and carried the mail in his hat that he had made to order for the service (this was over thirty years ago) and that the said Jones had worn the same hat continuously since that time and that sometimes the hat would get the better of the post master and the post office would go rolling over the prairies where the streets of Douglass, Farnam and Harney are now located, much to the disgust of the proud and haughty handler of Uncle Sammie's P. O. bag.

"The State of Nebraska" was responded to in a most eloquent and able manner by Senator Chas. F. Manderson. He reviewed the past and spoke in glowing language of the present and pictured as only a cultured gentleman can that has spent the best part of his life in the "great west". He spoke of her livestock, hogs, cattle, horses and sheep and how Nebraska was rapidly becoming first in rank in these animals. He paid tribute to our state in the growth of wheat, corn, barley and oats. The Senator showed how he had introduced a bill in congress and seeing that it was passed making Omaha a port of entry but that under a democratic president it was vetoed. The Senator further stated that he was going to introduce a bill in the next congress asking for an appropriation for a U. S. court house of one and one half million dollars and also for an appropriation to buy a site.

In closing the senator said that he had a sentiment which he wished to propose. It was this:

To the Gate city, the Young Giant of the West; May the census of 1900 give you 300,000 happy, contented, prosperous people within your borders.

As the senator took his seat the applause was tremendous.

The Hon. James W. Savage then read Mr. Thomas L. Kimball's response to the sentiment, "Railroads," that gentleman having been unavoidably detained at home. Mr. Kimball's response was of greatest interest, and received loud cheers.

Mr. W. A. S. Gibbon responded to "Trade Manufacturers and Industries of Omaha" with a short though interesting oration.

"Banks and Bankers" was eloquently responded to by the Pres. of the Neb. National Bank, Hon. H. W. Yates. He gave a brief history of the banking interests of Omaha, and treated his subject in a masterly manner. It will be remembered that Mr. Yates is a national authority and author on banking.

"The Clergy." The deacon of Trinity Cathedral responded to this toast in a manner that reflected great honor on himself and the church.

The subsequent toasts were: "Public Improvements in Omaha," W. J. Connell; "The Press," G. M. Hitchcock; "The Bar," General J. C. Cowin; "The Ladies," Mr. John Evans.

It was a late hour before the lights went out.

Another Fatal Gasoline Explosion.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Belle Faulk, living in the Patvin block in this city, while lighting a gasoline stove today had her clothing set on fire by escaping gas and before help reached her her body was horribly burned. Physicians at once put her under the influence of opiates to relieve her sufferings. After lingering several hours she died this afternoon. Mrs. Faulk was the wife of a carpenter living in the city, and her death is the second one in the last thirty days from defective gasoline stoves.

Vices of Our Home and School Education.

BISHOP HUNTINGTON, in the Forum for October: The Prussians have a saying, that whatever you wish to have appear in the life of a nation, you must put into its schools. Will the republic be enabled, then, by the citizenship of a generation taught in childhood to believe that as soon as children can be taught to go alone on their feet they should be permitted to go alone in their judgment, their manners, and their principles? A pleasant aphorism of a German poet, that a wise age reverences the dreams of its youth, appears to frighten parents from getting up a rule in their own houses. The children are consulted as to what they like, which is well enough; with the important limitation that a large part of the divinely appointed business of their fathers and mothers is to teach them what they ought to like. It is reckoned despotism to coerce nature, as if we did not bring into the world our nature, a great ideal of which, unless somebody does coerce it, ruins us. Earlier and earlier the reins are tossed on the neck of juvenile inclinations, till that period of beautiful and blessed subjection which Saxon homes once knew as boyhood and girlhood is eaten away by a premature and offensive self-assertion, and instead of boys and girls, we have only little men and little women. Some futile attempts are made, too late, to hire or bribe the virtues which might have been healthily grown under a sturdier nature. Indulgence ends in misery. Sharper cruelty can hardly be done to a child than to leave him to himself in those things in which God ordains the parent to act over him and for him. Whenever we come to be a lawless and, as we certainly shall after four or five lawless nations have grown up in it, this "great country" will be a great grave of true freedom of manly virtue, and a pure peace. Where the young are brought up to obey, not coaxed or supplicated to obey, in explicit allegiance to a dominion in the family, the foundation is laid for a social fabric. From home legislation the first transfer was to school. The same firm hand of law, strict and merciful, and merciful because it is strict, is meant to take him up there too, holding him and guiding him. The whole apparatus of education, from top to bottom, fails unless it chastens and moulds the mind to orderly methods. Not more self-reliance but more intellectual humility, is now our national want. Orators forget that the reaction from mental tyranny finally achieves its object, and that it is small gain if we escape from the terrors of the single tyrant only to encounter the terrors of the mob. To create in the scholar a patient, modest and obedient action of the whole intellectual nature is a benefit that lasts on in the personal experience and makes an abiding element in character, opening the soul to all the light of truth. Of two graduates from college, one carries out a store of things learned, the luggage of his mind. Another carries the secret how to learn, which is the better part of wisdom, and faculties set in the order of the Maker's plan. Which will be the master of his place and the master of other men in the light of after years, who can doubt?
