—A person who wakes suddenly, shakes himself and jumps out of bed as if he was struck by lightning will certainly injure his brain if he continues that habit for a sufficient length of time. The suddenly filling of blood vessels by too sharp activity after waking will, in time, produce relaxation or possibly rupture. A person should waken him self slowly, and should rest a short time indulging in some light general mental operation, just enough to stimulate normal activity to the brain forces before he rises from the recumbent position."

We shall this season make a specialty of Fine Wall Paper, Decorations &c. We believe we can suit you in Selections, Assortment, Quality and prices. Look at our stock before you buy elsewhere. We take pleasure in showing our goods. Will J. Warrick.

—He boards on Vine street. The other morning he raised his hands piously and said emotionally, as he addressed the landlady reverentially, "Do you know, madam, that the only way to reach a woman's heart is through her baby or the table?" The old lady indignantly replied, "I have not got any baby,—I guess I set as good a table as anybody else for the money, and I don't want any of your flattery." The good man arose from the table and went into a secluded spot and sang, "The mistakes of my life have been many."

One dollar's worth of Neal's carriage paints will make your buggy look as good as new. At Will J. Warrick's.

—In these columns will be found two beautiful compositions which should be placed in the bible of every family that have a son, for his guidance, as they are true pictures from life and not imaginative. The writer heard them recited once by a young man who had given away to the temptations of drink and destroyed a brilliant mind and bright anticipations. We sincerely trust that they will be the means of preventing some bright promising youth from deliberately destroying body and soul by throwing himself over the brink of dark futurity before he is twenty-eight.

A Mother's Advice to Her Son.

Sit down by the side of your mother my boy, you have only a moment I know, but you'll stay till I give my parting advice—It is all that I have to bestow. You'll leave us to seek for employment my boy, by the world you are yet to be tried, but of all the temptations and struggles you make, may your heart in the Savior confide. Hold fast to the right! hold fast to the right! wherever your footsteps may roam, but forsake not the truth of salvation, my boy, that you've learnt from your mother at home. You'll find in your satchel a bible, my boy, 'tis the book of all others the best, it helps you to live, it helps you to die, it leads to the gates of the blest. Your father is coming, to bid you good-bye. O, how lonely and sad we shall be, when far from the scenes of your childhood and youth, you'll think of your father and me. Now, I want you to feel every word that I've said, for it came from the depths of my love, and, my boy, if I never behold you on earth, will you promise to meet us above.

A Penitentiary Soliloquy.

It's curious, now isn't it Billy, the changes that twelve months may bring; last year I was at Saratoga as happy and as rich as a king, I was raking in pools on the races, feeing the waiters with X's, nipping my juleps by twilight, and today I'm here in the pen. What led me to do it? Ah! what always leads men to destruction and crime, the "prodigal son" whom you've heard of, has altered somewhat in his time. Last night as I sat and pondered, on the end of my evil ways, there 'ross like a phantom before me, of my childish and boyhood days, I thought of the old schoolhouse that stood on the hill, then again I thought of my mother—of my mother who taught me to pray—whose words was a precious jewel that I heedlessly casted away. It takes some courage, now Billy, to laugh in the face of fate, when the yearning anticipations of manhood are blasted at twenty-eight.

Spring, Beautiful Spring

The following essay on spring was wrote by a little boy, but his remarks about the dollar and large-family contain more common sense than many an older head is capable of comprehending. Such spontaneous outbursts of youthful hearts and minds are far more preferable to pedantic or sarded phrases:

SPRING.

Winter comes before Spring, and when Spring comes flowers, mosses, and nearly everything becomes alive again, and then it gets warmer and warmer until it gets so warm that we can hardly stand it, and also when spring comes farmers can plow their ground and sow their crops, and when it gets too warm some folks move north and in winter go south again but those folks who go from north to south must have many a dollar to move so far, but I don't think any one who has a very large family does not do such a thing.

Salvation Army Jokes.

Booth the tragedian has been in Omaha so has Geo. Booth's son of the Salvation Army. That reminds us of the following amusing dialogues we have overheard at their meetings, where some of the members, generally women, go among the audience and ask them "are you saved?" "Do you believe in Jesus?" and other similar questions.

A half-witted youth used to go around town inquiring of everybody he met if they would give him work. Sometimes they did, and often they would not pay him for his labor. He was told, one day, that if he went to the meeting that they would give him work, but to be sure and ask for his pay in advance. He attended the meeting, and an old lady approached him, and said, "Are you working for the Lord?" "No, mam, I ain't working for anybody, but I want work awful bad!" "Well, would'n't you like to work for the Lord?" "Yes, if he'll pay me every week."

A German girl was asked, "Don't you love Jesus?" She replied, "His name's not Jesus its Yoni!"

The question was put to a young fellow, "Are you working for Jesus?" "No, sir," he answered, "I'm working for the B. & M."

The ceremony wound up by the question being put to a solemn looking young man, "Are you a Christian?" "No," he innocently replied, "I'm a Swede."

It is brim full of information concerning that thriving young city, and a credit to both editor and citizen.

15cets. a quire for best Writing Paper at Warrick's.

—A young man in this city was sent with a note to a landlady of a boarding house on which was written, "Give the bearer board and lodging." As the lady could not read writing very well, she handed the missive to one of the boarders to read for her, and he being of jocular turn of mind, made the note read, "Give the bear board and lodging." "Goodness, gracious," she exclaimed, "A bear,—Why, where can I keep him?"

Try the Eureka Corn Cure, a Homœopathic Remedy, only at Warrick's.

—The Dramatic Co. of this town having had so much success in the past have decided to put another play on shortly. With this end in view they are negotiating with Mrs. Drabella, a well known emotional actress and with Mrs. and Mr. C. H. Hamlin, noted comedians. The former, with her husband, who will also take part, are now in town, and as soon as arrangements can be made rehearsals will begin. The name of the play will be stated later.

Epsom Salts 10 cts. per lb., Glauber Salts 3 cts. per lb. at Will J. Warrick's.

—Every voter of the Third ward who has his country's good at heart and especially those who detest corruption at the polls should go immediately to Osborn's carpenter shop on Chicago avenue and view a most extraordinary combination of wood and metal that is being patented by A. N. Sullivan. When this mundane sphere returns to its original form according to Genesis and the mighty Missouri ceases to flow, there will still remain on the skeleton of the B. & M. railroad bridge one unperishing memento of the purity of American voters in the shape of a ballot box on which will be perched the benignant spirit of A. N. Sullivan gazing sorrowfully on Plattsmouth's departed greatness.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Wm. Tucker who died in this city last Friday afternoon was born in Beaver town, Beaver county, Penn., October 31, 1828. He was raised on a farm near Cincinnati, Ohio, until he became twenty years of age, when he moved to Holt county, Mo., where he married Mrs. Tucker, nee Sarah E. Ramsey.

The fruits of that union were eight children, two of whom have since died. Two of the remaining six children are married, a daughter living in this city and a son in Missouri.

Mr. Tucker lived five years in Holt county, Mo., and then moved to Plattsmouth in 1857 and had lived in the same house for the past twenty-five years.

He had a sister, Mrs. Levi Hoag, living in Savannah, Mo., who with his brother Jasper Tucker of Wilbur, attended the funeral.

Mr. Tucker was a carpenter by trade and a member of the McConchie Post, J. A. N. and E. Baptist church.

He was only sick about a week and died very suddenly unconscious of his surroundings. The doctors say the cause of death was cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy.

He enlisted for three years in Co. A. 2nd Nebraska regiment, and served one year and eleven months until the close of the war.

Mr. Tucker had three ribs broke on the left side during the war and ever since he had complained of a pain near the region of the heart. He was constantly saying that those injuries would be the cause of his death.

If the widow can show that the cause of death was brought about by injuries received during the war, which it undoubtedly was, she will receive a pension for the rest of her days, but she will have to make an application to the authorities at Washington.

It was only the other day we made mention of pensions and that "one by one the rose leaves fall" in reference to the rapid manner in which those glorious veterans are passing away, and how soon a fulfillment of that beautiful quotation, which is followed by "drop by drop the stream runs dry."

Base ball goods at cost to close out stock at Will J. Warrick's.

—There are lots of stories being printed about domesticated snakes. We once knew of a snake, a rattlesnake, that so loved the family of which he was a domestic, that one terrible stormy night, when forked lightning was striking and destroying trees and buildings, he was so afraid that the house in which we resided would be struck, that he jumped on to the one-story roof, and stood on his head erect turning himself into a lightning conductor. The lightning struck him—he rattled no more. The loving tenderness and thoughtfulness of these dear creatures passeth all human understanding.

We make a specialty of filling physicians prescriptions with only pure drugs at legitimate prices, Will J. Warrick.

—Mr. Fred Patterson, postmaster at Rock Bluffs, lately forwarded a petition to Hon. John McShane at Washington which was signed by the editors of this city and Omaha, in addition there were 155 names affixed to the petition. In less than three weeks the petition through McShane's influence and exertion was granted. The petition was for changing the tri-weekly postal route between Plattsmouth, Rock Bluffs, Murray and Eight Mile Grove into a daily route, except Sunday. Mr. Patterson is deserving of great credit for accomplishing this result unaided.
