Work of Recovering Bodies of Victims Still Prosecuted.

FIFTY BODIES NOT YET FOUND

Wives and Mothers Become crazed Over the Loss of Their Loved Ones.

Investigating the Cause.

St. Louis, Nov. 12.— Dispatches from Pittsburg, Kas., give sickening accounts of the incidents at the mine horror at that place Friday night. For hours after the explosion the scene at the pit was distressing. Poorly clad women with babies clasped to their breasts came through the darkness by the light cast by bonfires like haggard, unmanly beings from another world. Some struck above the storm and muttered as they fell helpless on the shoulders of stronger neighbors. Still others were mad in their despair and tore their hair and garments, and would have dashed headlong into the tomb but for the strength exhibited by miners from other shafts. At one time the crush of women and children was so great that it was feared violence would be necessary in order to clear a way for the rescuers. The poor creatures fought each other in their despair, and in some instances inflicted severe punishment. As the night wore on the work of recovering bodies continued until the floor of the engine house was strewn with mangled men. Their bodies were placed in rows upon the ground where the snow and rain beat upon them. Most of the victims were shockingly mutilated. There was nothing left of the first man brought up from the dreadful hole but a bleeding trunk, the extremities being blown off. Many of the searchers fainted. As fast as the bodies were brought to the surface there was a rush made to identify them, a dozen women, in many cases being engaged at one time scanning the bleeding face of some unfortunate. There are still about fifty bodies in the lower levels. Some of the victims were found beneath an immense weight of slate, while others were found in groups in all kinds of positions.

Coroner Fisher has begun an inquest. With the exception of two or three, the victims will be laid to rest with one service. The company will have charge of the general funeral, which occurs today. W. W. Allen, superintendent of all the Santa Fe mines is here, investigating the cause of the explosion. Supt. Robt. Craig's opinion is that the explosion was from coal dust following an overcharge. An overcharge shot produced a flame which puffs back and gathers up the dust and ignites it. The better the ventilation the more terrific the explosion in case of dust, because of the plentiful supply of oxygen. If it had been gas the explosion would have occurred sooner for 164 naked lamps had burned all day in the mine, and it did not occur till 5:10 when blasting had begun.

The relief fund amounts to $1,000 and is growing. Ladies have been ministering to the wants of the wounded and care of the widows and orphans. Farmers wives have come in for miles with food, clothing, bandages, etc., and all citizens have been untiring in their efforts to alleviate suffering.

From Monday's Daily.

And it came to pass on the sixth day of the forty-fourth week in the eleventh month of the year that the gentiles of the largest city of a large state shouted for joy and marched around their city blowing trumpets.

And it came to pass on the evening of the same day that there came to the gathering large numbers from abroad, among them were followers from the city of hills, and there were two among them named Marion and Anami, two mighty men in that land.

And Anami said unto Marion, let us go forth into the city where our brothers goeth and let us rejoice with them.

And Marion answered saying, we will go up together for who knoweth what harm may come unto our brethren of the city of hills.

And Marion and Anami went unto the large city of the large state and rejoiced with them. And when the hosts had shouted for joy until their throats became parched, and they had marched to the ends of the city blowing their horns and making a great noise, it was about the eleventh hour. And Anami said unto Marion, let us go to our brothers and tell them to go once more unto our city. And they went unto them and bade them go, for the hour was late and the morning of the seventh day would soon dawn.

And Marion said to Anami, let us remain in this big city of our brothers on the seventh day and show our brothers how we can rejoice on the seventh day. And as they waited their hearts beat for joy within. On the morning of the seventh day the two men arose and went forth onto the streets, and as they walked along together they met a man named Smith who had once lived in the city of hills. He was a law maker among the gentiles, and all feared him with a great fear. And he said unto Marion and Anami, let us go into the city of many bluffs on this the Sabbath day. And the three men went on their way across the mighty bridge, and Anami said unto the other two: My feet are sore and my heart faileth me for the distance is great.

And Marion and the other gentile said unto Anami, whose feet were sore, come thou with us and we will bear thee straight forward to the city of bluffs.

They walked along together consulting Anami.

A man came that way driving an ass, and the ass looked weary.

And the two men spoke to the man and offered him ten pieces of silver to take him to the city.

The man said he had on his head a covering which looked like a bushel. The box which was on the wagon was high, and the three men had to stretch their necks to look over.

The woman who passed laughed at the men and when the three men reached the city of bluffs Anami said unto Marion we will wash our feet and rub them with ointment for they are sore. We will never come this way again.

South Road.

New road is coming in at a lively rate.

San. Long, A. L. Timblin and W. L. Webb took in the Lincoln ratification Friday evening and report immense enthusiasm thereat.

Democrats were quite thick in this neck of the woods up to last Thursday, since then it requires a search warrant to find one.

The peculiar condition of the atmosphere which prevents a wedding is quite noticeable within the last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Timblin visited at Louisville Saturday and Sunday.

Grandpa Straight is fixed for cold weather with a brand new fur cap as a result of his confidence in Harrison, the other fellow wears his old hat.

A feeling of dullness and languor, Which is not akin to pain, And resembles suffering only, As the mist resembles rain.

is often the first indication of incipient disease. In such cases the famous "ounce of prevention" is the highest wisdom, and may be found in its most potent form in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which by its wonderful blood-purifying and invigorating tonic properties, will quickly restore the ebbing vitality, repair and strengthen the system and thus ward off threatening sickness. Its saving influence reaches every organ of the body.

From Tuesday's Daily.

A host of republican citizens and boys turned out last night, armed with tin horns, cow bells, and a hundred various weapons of defense to do honor to the coming president, Harrison. The city was kept in an uproar until a late hour. After a large crowd had formed and marched around the streets for some time, the boys were allowed the privilege of setting fire to piles of boxes and barrels which they had piled in the streets for the occasion. The jollification was held after very short notice and a larger crowd would have participated had sufficient notice been given. Among the illuminations we noticed the residences of the following gentlemen as the most attractive: Messrs. George Poissell, O. M. Straight, H. J. Straight, Judge Chapman, W. H. Peckins, J. G. Ritcher, Mathew's hardware store and Mrs. Smalley's residence. Mrs. Johnson, Fifth street, was the main illumination.

Wearing Night Clothes—Drinking the Milk.

It cannot be generally known that we breathe through the skin—in other words, that the skin has a function something like that of the lungs. It can not, of course, be active unless kept clean. But in other ways than by neglect of cleanliness can its usefulness be impaired. Tight clothing cripples it and keeps the poisons which should be thrown out at the surface locked up in the system, and also shuts out pure air which should drop off the skin in purchasing undecoloring, therefore, it should be so large that, even after frequent washing and shrinking, it will still be loose and permit of a volume of air between it and the body. It naturally follows that the outer garments should also be comparatively large, and at least enough so to permit every movement to be made with much ease when they are on, as when they are off.

There is a habit which all, without exception, should practice, and yet it is safe to say that not one man in ten of our people do follow it. Reference is made to the removal of the underwear on retiring, and the substitution of one kept for night wear alone. This underwear, during the day, becomes filled with emanations from the body, and must be well aired regularly every night, otherwise it becomes to a considerable extent poisonous, and the noxious matters are again absorbed by the skin. This self poisoning is sure to go on unless the rule given is observed.

Safety from "colds" depends in no slight degree upon how the neck is dressed. Nothing should be worn about it which interferes with its freedom of movement, nor should it be encumbered with handkerchiefs, which so many wear as much for appearance as for comfort. Let each one now choose a certain kind of collar, and wear no other style until spring comes. Even a very slight variation in this important article of dress will favor a sore throat. The habit of wearing the fashionable bandages—silk neckerchiefs—is an exceedingly bad one to get into, and, as a rule, those who have it are frequent sufferers from throat troubles. Practically the collar and necktie will be sufficient protection for the throat. When the cold is intense, turning up the coat collar will be a sufficient additional protection, unless one is riding far in a strong wind.

When leaving the cold air and entering warm rooms, remove the outer wraps at once. Ladies fall to observe this rule and, as a result, colds and influenza have been long enough in warm rooms to become heated, they should not leave them and at once enter their carriage or a street car. Under these conditions they are chilled even by a short ride. Before attempting to ride they should walk a few blocks, until the body is accustomed to the change in circulation is effected. After one has been exposed to intense cold and is even slightly chilled, a cup of hot tea or coffee is advisable to "warm up." Alcohol, so often taken for the purpose, is more active, but seldom better than the simple, harmless beverages mentioned. During prolonged exposure to cold, as on a long drive, hot drinks should not be indulged in, for they render the body yet more sensitive to cold.

A word about foot coverings. Woolen stockings, of course, should be worn by all. Wear not heavy shoes and delay to put on overboots as long as possible; when one is out on a long drive, or in a service until next spring. Car drivers, however, should wear them all day in the cold will be by far more comfortable. If they discard leather boots and shoes and wear cloth shoes inside their overboots. Then their feet will be better ventilated, perspire less and hence keep much warmer.—Boston Herald.

Took Her at Her Word.

A queer episode in Cornsight life was the case of the king at the relation of Dennis Bodkin versus Patrick French. The plaintiff and defendant were neighbors. The latter was of the "old school," full of airs, and possessed of an intolerable temper. He and wife had conceived a deep dislike for Mr. Bodkin, who entertained an equal aversion to the Frenches. Bodkin had happened to offend the squire and lady. That evening they entertained a large company at dinner when Mrs. French, remarking in the course of her chatty conversation with "that somebody would out of the fellow's ears, and that might quiet him." The subject was changed after a while, and all went on well till supper, at which time, when everybody was happy, the old butler, one Ned Regan, who, according to custom, had drunk enough, came in. Joy was in his eye, and, whispering something to his mistress which she did not comprehend, he put a large snuff box into her hand.

Rayning it was some while of her old servant, she opened the box and shook out its contents, when lo! a pair of Bodkin's ears dropped out on the table. The mistress of the house was awestruck, upon which old Ned exclaimed: "Fanny, my lady you wished that Dennis Bodkin's ears were out of us, so I told old George, the gamekeeper, and he took a few handy boys with him, and brought back his ears, and there they are, and I hope you are pleased, my lady." The gamekeeper and the "boys" left the country. French and his wife were held in heavy bail at the Galway assizes, but the guests proved no such order was given, that it was a mistake on the part of the servant. They were acquitted. The "boys" and their leader never reappeared in the county until after the death of Bodkin, who lost his ears many years before his death.—Argonaut.

The Magnificence of Civilization.

Talking about the early days in California, there was an old fellow down in the country who was the first senator to go to the legislature from his district. His district was a rural one, and there were no houses—only cabins there—rough wooden cabins, with nails for hair racks and a rope for a washstand and a cracked rocking chair for a dressing table. He went to Sacramento and was not back the entire district came in to call upon him, and he gave them a wonderful account of the magnificence of civilization in the capital of the state.

"Yes, boys, I had a china basin an' a cake o' soap decorated by gosh; smelt like the flowers, an' I ther w'ar a little place in the w'ar with a row of side looks in it, an' I said to the waiter, 'What's that for?'" "To hang your clothes in," says he, an' "well, I didn't have any clothes to hang in it; but I w'ar splendid; but, boys, that w'ar nothing." What do you think I had? A real bureau, a real, carved bureau, with a looking glass right in this window in it. It w'ar gorgeous, gorgeous."—Understones in San Francisco Chronicle.

UNSTUNGLED NO TENDRIL

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-four years ago I would have saved me $200 or two hundred dollars and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) began on my head in a spot not larger than a coin. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off as the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease ever again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was beyond some time worn psoriasis. I took... I was cured by CUTICURA REMEDIES. I had three doctors and no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as soft and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three boxes of CUTICURA SOAP, and two boxes of CUTICURA OINTMENT. It was all done here and I would have paid for $200 if you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis, eczema, humors, etc. "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clean as any person ever was. Through force of habit I put my hands over my eyes and look to see them once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I searched every night for a year, and it is to be a thousand times. Anything more you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write me and I will answer it.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the watery discharge from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, rhinorrhea, hoarseness, and aching of the head, are the familiar signs of this disease. It is a disease which afflicts thousands of people, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SARGENT'S RHEUMATISM CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic form, where the breathing is obstructed by thickened, inflamed mucous membrane, the head is ached and sore, and the patient is unable to sleep, and the patient is unable to sleep, and the patient is unable to sleep.

front of a Theatre Goer.

A man whose path in life is evidently not strewn with roses, speaking of the things that are attempted by some persons who attend the theatre, said: "The odd things that people will do to get what they have not paid for makes a very interesting study. Last night a well-dressed, apparently prosperous citizen who had purchased a seat in the orchestra (he took a stand down one of the side aisles. A few minutes after the curtain had gone up he quickly slipped into a vacant seat. None of the helpers observed him.

"I did, but I wanted to study this case. When the act closed he sneaked out in the lobby. I missed his several entrances, but after some searching discovered him in an aisle seat well down to the footlights. He had evidently spotted that as unoccupied, and came down the aisle with other people who had left their places at the close of the first act. His cleverness had been rewarded by the enjoyment of the performance from a $1.00 orchestra chair for just the 50 cents admission fee."

"Did you disturb him?"

"Oh, no; that would have hurt his finer sensibilities, and perhaps made an enemy of him."

"What did you do?"

"I jumped on the usher who was on that aisle."—New York Herald.
