A New Combination. This morning near the Wheeler Block there was an interesting exhibition. It was a street show consisting of two dagoes, two bears and Judge Sullivan. As usual there was a crowd of boys around to see the bears, Dagoes and Judge Sullivan wrestle, climb trees and telegraph poles.

The price to see the big bear climb a tree was fifty cents. One Dago passed the hat around and soon big Bruin was doing fifty cents worth of climbing. The little bear became anxious to climb to the top of a telegraph pole for twenty-five cents. But the crowd was "busted." It was just then that the Sullivan part of the combination came to the rescue, and the influence of the judge, especially on behalf of the teething sons of sunny Italy, was soon apparent, with his well known energy, skill and influence he soon passed the hat and the twenty-five cents to pay little Bruin for climbing to the top of a telegraph pole, was promptly in the exchequer of the combination. Amid cheers little Bruin was taken to the pole, near Lenhoff Bros store, and having been told in the Dago dialect (understood only by the bears, the Dagos and the Judge) that it was expected to climb to the top, promptly elevated its frontage, threw its caudal appendage into a graceful curve and vigorously started in the direction of illimitable space. Up went little Bruin about ten feet and then—stopped. It was a graceful stop, but discouraging again to the boys. The twenty-five cents had been paid for a longer climb but little Bruin wouldn't go any higher. Tightly hugging the pole he looked down at the crowd, then at the two sons of Italy and then winked at Judge Sullivan. It seemed to realize that the 25 cents was safe. But the boys wanted it to climb higher. They yelled and cheered, scolded and "cussed."

The Dagos pounded the pole and the Judge anathematized in the Dago Dialect which little Bruin evidently understood, as it blinked both eyes and gracefully curled its tail as the words came thick and fast from the Judge. But little Bruin would climb no higher. The money was safe in the treasury; little Bruin was safe from immediate danger and the boys all voted it a "Dago sell."

In the case of Jacob Schlater vs. the city of Plattsmouth arguments were heard this morning and the case taken under advisement. Court then adjourned till 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Advice of a Prominent Land Broker. Rheumatic Syrup Co., Jackson, Mich. GENTS: In February, 1889, I commenced using Hubbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Strengthening Plasters for inflammatory rheumatism, having been troubled three years with this terrible disease. My joints were swollen so that I could hardly walk and I attended to my business with difficulty. I used three bottles and applied the plasters to my limbs and back, and I can say that I am now cured. I have not been troubled with rheumatism since discontinuing its use. My father-in-law, Mr. J. D. Skinner, of Manson, has also been benefited by this medicine. We earnestly recommend it to our friends. Take my advice, give it a trial. C. R. Nicolson, Manson, Iowa. Ask your druggist for it.

MURDERED BY INDIANS

Fuller Particulars of the Murder of Chief Engineer and His Companions.

THE INDIANS CAPTURED

The Indians Rifled the Camp and Then Fled to the Mountains—Two Ranchmen Arrested as Suspects.

DENVER, Colo., June 6.—Full particulars of the murder by Indians of Chief Engineer Wm. L. Crittenden, of the government survey, in Wyoming, and his men, E. W. Timberlake, Geo. Woods, and Henry Overmeyer, chain carriers, and the serious, if not fatal, wounding of Assistant Engineer Jesse Lee.

Engineer Crittenden and his men had been especially friendly with the Indians, and had always treated them kindly and had done them innumerable favors. Last Sunday morning eleven Cheyenne Indians rode into the surveying camp, and they were given a kindly welcome. It was soon discovered that the Indians were intoxicated and disposed to be ugly. They demanded liquor of the surveyors which was refused. The Indians then began drinking from flasks which they had brought with them, at the same time inviting the men to join them in their orgie. The men again refused, and the Indians finally began to make threats, and were ordered from the camp. A quarrel ensued. The Indians suddenly attacked the surveying party with their knives and guns. The attack was so unexpected that the men were in no way prepared for resistance, and when the Indians departed all five of the men were left upon the field for dead. Assistant Engineer Lee was not killed, however, and recovered sufficiently to drag himself to the nearest ranch.

The Indians rifled the camp and rode away into the mountains. A pursuing party was at once organized, and after a hard chase the Indians were captured and are now under guard. It is thought that a lynching will dispose of them shortly, if this has not been done already. Two of the ranchmen who are known to have furnished the Indians with whisky have also been arrested.

No Such Word as "Fail."

Cardinal Richelieu said "In the lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail," but he lived in an age when enterprises of the greatest moment are dwarfed into oblivious insignificance compared with the achievements of the nineteenth century. Had the wise old cardinal lived in these days, he undoubtedly would have qualified his language and put it in this way: "In the lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail—except in the show business." Out of over two hundred shows that have appeared on the stage of life, since Sells Bros. became identified as showmen, there is but one other firm in existence now, the others having all failed. Notwithstanding the discouraging statistics which are calculated to frighten people from embarking in so hazardous a business, Sells Bros. are not deterred from undertaking the most stupendous enterprises known. This show last season exceeded in size and daily expenses any other circus organization by long odds, yet they piloted it successfully across the continent. This year they have undertaken what would seem to other managers certain bankruptcy—the addition of another show, nearly as large as their own, the S. H. Barrett's world's fair and both big shows will travel in union, exhibiting as one. Both these shows were perfectly equipped and organized to travel separately, as they have done for many past seasons, but when Sells Bros. learned that the Barrett show contemplated making a tour of the Pacific coast this season, negotiations were opened which resulted in the consolidation of both shows in one, and the tour will be made in union. While this will increase the daily expense nearly double, the price of admission will not be increased. The two shows combined will exhibit at Plattsmouth on Tuesday, June 24.
