The little frost last night has caused a smile on the coal dealers face today and teams have been busy all day delivering coal.

There has been no fuss made about it yet in all of Plattsmouth's experience no two years will equal the present year for the number of residences erected all over the city.

Stamp Collectors.

This year is a great year with the army of stamp collectors, it being the 50th anniversary of the invention of that modern necessity the postage stamp. The first stamp was issued by Great Britain on the 6th day of May 1840 and was printed in black. There was about 3,000 designs submitted to the British government from which to select the design for the first adhesive postage stamp.

The Derrick Concert.

The following programme to be rendered at the Waterman Opera House Friday evening, Sept. 19, will eclipse any musical entertainment ever heard in the city. The items which have so frequently appeared in the Omaha papers commending the ability of the Sutorius Mandolin and Guitar club, should be a sufficient guarantee of their excellent talent. The singers are all first class.

THE BELLS OF THE CITY.

The bells of the city sound aloud, Over the heads of the hurrying crowd, Marking surely the flight of time, Ringing out a melodious chime, Calling loudly through the busy hum, Come! come! come! come!

The minstrel group from Trinity call To the merry band in the city hall, And the echoes fly at a lively pace To meet with the charming cherubs of Grace. And all join in the tuneful song, Ding, dong! ding, dong!

Now a melody—now a prayer— Woven in through the harp of air, Finds its way to the prisoner's cell, To the homes of the rich and poor who dwell So far it sounds like a drowsy hum, Come! come! come! come!

I know the bells are endowed with speech, And have a message they bring to each, And none can give the signal clear That is meant for another person's ear, Or guess what memories throb and throng— Ding, dong! ding, dong!

But bells of Trinity! bells of Grace! Ring out like birds from a lofty place A song of joy, and not of woe, O'er the pretty scene in the church below, And call aloud through the buzz and hum, Come! come! come! come!

They come to the altar, bride and groom, She with her cheeks like a rose in bloom, While the organ tells with its tuneful swells That the benediction of the city ring the bells; And echoes awaken through Christendom: Ding, dong! Come! come!

The Absorption of New England Farms.

Some fifteen years ago, in the early days of the Mount Desert summer travel, I met on the beach at Newport, R. I., a shipwrecked sea captain from Bar Harbor, who talked in eloquent astonishment of the rapid changes coming over the ownership of real estate in that region.

"It does just beat all," he declared. "Folks will come along from New York or Philadelphia and they'll kinder take a fancy to a man's farm. They'll end in givin' him more for it than he ever thought o' askin' for it; and then they'll pay him more for livin' on it in winter to take care of it than he ever made off of it."

This duplex good bargain, this gain in both principal and interest at the same time, seemed quite too much for my weather beaten friend's comprehension. Yet the same process has been going on for years, in a manner less conspicuous, along the whole New England coast, and through all the mountain region of the Appalachian range.

In the region where I now find myself one may look from the hills over many thousand acres, not one of which now belongs to a permanent resident of the town. Farms have been bought and united, one man owning 900 acres, another 700, and so on, in a region where 200 acres was once regarded as a large farm.—Harper's Bazar.

Pale Sarsaparilla Sirup.

There is a handsome new drug store up in Fourteenth street where they sell soda water and dispel illusions all for five cents a glass. If you ask the soda water clerk for sarsaparilla soda water he will give you a glass of foamy water that is almost colorless—a pearly transparency, like that of a glass of vanilla soda water. It looks no more like the rich, brown colored drink that people expect to get when they ask for sarsaparilla soda water than chalk does.

If you remark on the unaccustomed appearance of the drink he will say to you, as he says to hundreds of people who ask for that particular kind of soda water every day, that pure sarsaparilla sirup is colorless. "People think," he says, "that sarsaparilla, being made of roots, must be brown. Perhaps years ago, when the sirup was made by throwing a lot of unwashed roots in a dirty kettle and boiling them over a smoky fire in the woods, there was dirt enough in the compound to make it brown. Nowadays the process is cleaner and the sirup is colorless. But people think sarsaparilla ought to be brown, and so people color it with burnt sugar or licorice. We don't."—Washington Post.

Looking for Big Prices.

There were some curious incidents noted near the Grand Central station while the strike was in progress. One of the long delayed trains had just come in one evening and the passengers were streaming out of the station when one of them stepped up to a bystander and addressed him: "Look here," said the traveler, "can you tell me where is the most expensive restaurant in this town?"

"The most expensive!" quoth the one addressed in surprise.

"Yes, sir; that's just what I want. While our train was blocked out on the road we could get very little to eat and I got used to paying top rates. Somebody brought along a basket of sandwiches—railroad sandwiches, sir—and sold them out at $1 apiece. We bought 'em—we had to buy 'em or go hungry. Now, I want to get back to my regular prices by degrees. So you don't know which is the most expensive restaurant? Well, I'll go down to Delmonico's and chance it, anyway." The speaker being a prosperous looking person, probably carried out his threat.—New York Times.

Injurious Effects of Odors.

You can kill a man quicker by an evil smell than any other way in the world if you know how to go about it, and all evil smells are in greater or less degree poisonous and reduce vitality where they do not destroy outright.

The London Lancet gave the case of a gentleman in a railway car detained alongside cars of hogs in an offensive condition about fifteen minutes. He was taken ill with symptoms of prostration, though previously in health, and died shortly after, poisoned by the intolerable odor.—Shirley Dare.

Identified.

Mande—Who is that coarse creature that murders the king's English and has the manners of a charwoman? Minnie—Sh-h! That's the author of the latest success in "society" novels.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

THE FIGURE '90.

The figure '90 in our days will make a long stay. So man or woman now living will ever date a moment without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years. There is another '90' which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our days in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine. The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grand advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

FRED BURKE.

Sixth Street, near Riley Hotel.

ABSOLUTELY WATER-PROOF

O.K. BITUMINOUS BUILDING PAPER

FOR SHEATHING HOUSES.

We call attention to the novelty of its construction, it being composed of two sheets of paper with an interposed layer of water-proof bitumen or asphalt, the whole united under pressure, making a sanitary mildew-proof sheathing for the sides and floors of houses, that will last as long as the building upon which it is applied.

Experience has shown that the cheap papers commonly used for sheathing houses do not protect a building for any length of time, but soon mildew and fall to pieces, making the house drafty and damp; these defects can then only be remedied at great expense. A Good Sheathing like the O. K. Building Paper, can be obtained at a trifling cost, and it is a waste of money to use an inferior article.

Put up in rolls 36 inches wide, containing 1,000 square feet.
