SIGHTLESS BUT NOT HELPLESS.

The Active Business Life of a Chicago Man Who is Wholly Blind.

The wonder of West Harrison street is a blind man, William F. Buschick, who lives at 1115, where he conducts a retail cigar and confectionery store. A casual observer would not be apt to discover that the stockkeeper is totally blind from the manner in which he moves around and shows off his goods. Mr. Buschick keeps his own accounts, waits on the customers, takes in money and hands out change as deftly as any saleswoman in a downtown store. He seldom makes mistakes in handling coin, and if anybody were mean enough to try it would not be an easy matter to pass counterfeit coins on him.

His sense of feeling is keen, and perhaps more so as a result of the absence of sight. He handles out any brand of cigars asked for, and his sensitive finger tips light upon the right brand of chewing gum without any fumbling. His eyes, which are not concealed from view, are a beautiful dark blue, and a stranger looking into them would not guess that they were so utterly useless.

Mr. Buschick buys all his stock, going down town on the street cars and about the crowded streets of the business section of the south side without a guide. He never loses his bearings. When ready to return home he waits quietly beside a peanut stand and asks the vendor to tell him when a Harrison street car comes. This car passes his store, and he intuitively knows when it is opposite his home.

He jumps from the car while it is in motion. He walks about his store and turns sharp corners without mishap. He can walk straight to a door and grasp the knob without fumbling it, or trip down stairs as lively and as gracefully as a young woman, and never makes a miscalculation when reaching the last step. He is a candy maker and makes all the candy he sells.

As is usual in cases of blindness, the loss of this man's vision has quickened his sense of feeling and hearing. When his eyes went out of business their available assets appear to have been transferred to his ears and finger tips. His ability to locate objects by sound is wonderful. This was demonstrated one night when a burglar broke into his store. The robber left hastily with a leaden bullet in his anatomy, as spots on the floor proved the next morning. The blind man handles a revolver cleverly and shoots accurately for one so heavily handicapped, locating the object to be aimed at by sound.—Chicago Tribune.

Hot Office Cats Are Very Useful.

We have edited a newspaper for several years, and in that time we have received propositions to advertise goods on shares, to advertise and take the pay in pills, in trees, in flowers, in free tickets, have even had opera house managers demand advertisements as a matter of news, and then demand pay for admission or no go; but it remained for an enterprising merchant of Temple to cap the climax with his proposition. He has a lot of strayed animals, and after hunting around and suggesting "news" items that would contain some reference to the lost animals, he finally proposed to advertise for them if we would take the pay in cats.—Temple Times.

SCROFULOUS SORES.

From Head to Waist a Mass of Dis-eases Suffering Terrible Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

I was covered with scrofulous sores from my head to my waist, suffering so that I could not sleep nights and could lie down only with pillows under my arms. My head was so sore that I could not wear a hat, and being a farmer, I could not go bare headed so I wore a very soft handkerchief on my head. In fact, I was so ill I could not get to my feet. After doctoring for six years with the best physicians in the country and getting worse all the time, I had given up all hope of getting well when I saw your CUTICURA REMEDIES advertised and procured a set, although with little faith in them. The first set however did me such a vast amount of good that I continued their use, and now after using out sets, I am happy to say that I am entirely cured. Any of the prominent business men and farmers in and around Plattsmouth will understand my story. GEORGE A. HEINZELMAN, Plainfield, Ill.

MURRAY.

A Live Town With Bright Prospects.

Murray is the name of the only station on the new M. P. short line, between Plattsmouth and Union, and is located about seven miles south-west of this city in the center of as fine a scope of farming lands, dotted over with fine homes and happy husbandmen, as could be found in the entire country. The merchants are pushing, aggressive business men that would succeed anywhere. Edmunds & Root, the pioneer merchants of the village, are doing nicely at the old Letta store; and, being without a lawyer, Charley Root as Notary Public makes out the deeds and saves many trips to Plattsmouth. Just east of the above store Mr. E. A. Burton, of Fillmore, Ia., is erecting a store building which he will occupy with a first class stock of hardware as soon as the store is ready for occupancy. Just east of the church John Edmunds has just completed the nicest residence in the village, which would be a credit to any town. James Root and T. W. Faught own the lumber yard and we are glad to note are doing a nice business. They carry a large stock and we are told quote Plattsmouth prices. They have each completed cozy cottages and will make Murray hereafter their permanent place of abode. Dr. Brendel, one of the leading physicians of the county, is building on to his office and will in a few days put in a good stock of drugs and medicines, which will be of great assistance to people in that vicinity who may need anything in his line. Charles Murray, son-in-law of Mr. Marten of this city, we noticed had erected a very neat cottage just north of town. Dr. Tabor, the new physician, was having a new office built next to the general merchandise store of Baxter & Dawson; these latter gentlemen are from Crete and are hustlers for business. Mr. Baxter showed us a fine article of coffee for 25 cents per pound which he said could not be equalled in quality and price in Plattsmouth or Weeping Water. Jim Walker has a large and commodious elevator completed ready for business, while a number of parties are only waiting the advent of the "iron horse" to begin permanent and extensive improvements. Our regular correspondent at Murray will hereafter keep the HERALD readers posted on what is being done by our nearest neighbor.

Root and Parish in Trouble.

Nearly everybody in Cass county knows Dr. Root, a genial honest old gentleman who has scores of friends all over the county. Many of our readers will also remember that the Doctor was once relieved of a fine farm near Weeping Water, through the kindly efforts of Dr. Gibbon and B. A. Gibson. The trade was for western land and practically left the Doctor penniless; he however invoked the aid of our District Court and recovered his farm, but it seems from the following article from the State Journal was not sufficient and the old gentleman is again traded out of his property. The Howard Zink mention d is also an old resident of this county:

"Anson L. Root and Edward L. Parish have filed a petition in the district court against Charles W. Wilson and Howard W. Zink. For cause of action the plaintiffs allege that on the 25th day of September, 1890, they were partners doing business at the corner of O and Twenty-fourth streets in Lincoln and were the owners of a stock of drugs. That on or about the 15th day of September, 1890, Howard W. Zink came to plaintiff's house with the defendant, Charles W. Wilson, who was a stranger and recommended him as a man of truth and integrity. The defendant Wilson represented that he was the owner of a half section of land in Greeley county, that the same was worth $12 per acre and that there was a loan of $1700 on the same; that said loan was made by a conservative loan company upon an appraisal of $3000 made by disinterested parties. Relying upon these statements the plaintiffs agreed to exchange said stock of drugs of the reasonable value of $3400 for Wilson's land, provided Wilson would pay off the mortgage, pay all taxes and convey the same to plaintiffs clear of all incumbrance and furnish an abstract of title within thirty days from that date; that a contract to that effect was signed by all the parties and deposited with Zink with the understanding that the same should be subject to inspection by either party until such time as Wilson should perform the terms thereof. The plaintiffs delivered possession of said goods to Wilson and he has sold and removed to Saunders county a large part of them. The plaintiffs further aver that each and all of the representations made by these defendants to the plaintiffs were false, and made for the purpose of cheating and defrauding the plaintiffs out of said stock of goods, that said land could not be sold in the market for $1 per acre; that the mortgage was given by defendant for the purpose of better enabling him to misrepresent its value; that Zink refuses to allow plaintiffs to see said agreement left in his care and plaintiffs believe that he has fraudulently and for the purpose of cheating plaintiffs destroyed or delivered the contract to Wilson. By reason of such false and fraudulent representations and wicked conspiracy these plaintiffs have been damaged in the sum of $3400, wherefore they ask judgment in that amount and the costs of this action."

Not Altogether Modern.

The opinion held by many people who have never had their attention especially turned to the work of Jean Jacques Rousseau is not that this benefactor of his kind, but in reality he was one of the first apostles of the modern methods of education, and it is only after all this lapse of years that his views have come to be widely adopted. It is he who once said that we cannot sit the world ignorant, but with capacity; that education begins at birth; that we learn here-ly in the first years, and that an impression supply our knowledge; that those impressions should be of the best and should be presented in the right order; that the first cry of a child is a request; the second a command; that distinctiveness in a child is not crying, but activity; that the sin of children is their weakness; that strength brings about virtue, and he who can do all things will never do wrong things.

This seems to be remarkably good reasoning in the light of our own standing in the world, and I can hardly imagine the value of the same to our children, when we think of the amount of knowledge that we have accumulated since we were born, and the amount of knowledge that we have acquired since we were born.

"Hello! Tom. Glad to see you, old fellow! It's almost ten years since we were married. Sit down; let's have an experience meeting. How's the wife?" "Oh! she's so-so, same as usual,—always wanting something I can't afford."

"Well, we all want something more than we've got."

"Yes; but I guess 'want' will be my master." I started to keep down expenses; and now I'll say to 'man,' and 'she's' took under my wing and never having anything to show for it. I saw your wife down street, and she looked as happy as a queen!" "I think she is; and we are economical, too,—have to be. My wife can make a little go further than anyone I ever knew, yet she's always surprising me with some dainty confection that adds to the comfort and beauty of our little home, and she's always 'merry as a lark.' When I ask how she manages it, she always laughs and says: 'Oh! that's my secret!' But I think I've discovered her 'secret.' When we married, we both knew we should have to be very careful, but she made one condition; she would have her Magazine. 'Oh! she was right! I wouldn't do without it myself for double the subscription price.' We read 'either' from the life-page to the last word; our eyes keep our hearts young; the synopsis of our events and scientific matters keeps us up to date on the life-page to the last word; 'going on'; my wife is always trying some new thing from the household department; she dresses and those for the children. 'What! Why that's what I'd wanted so bad, and I told her it was an extravagance.' 'Well, my friend, that's where you made a grand mistake, and one you'd better rectify as soon as you can. I'll take your 'sub.' right here, on my wife's account. I'll give you a year, and I'll teach in time for our little wedding next month. My gold watch was the premium I got for getting up a club. Here's a copy, with the new Premium List for clubs,—the biggest thing out! If you don't see in it what you want, you've only to write to the publisher and tell him what you want, whether it is a tack-hammer or a new carriage, and he will make special terms for you, either for a club, or for part cash. Better subscribe right off and surprise Mr. Tom. Only $2.00 a year,—will save fifty cents that in six months. Or send 10 cents direct to the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a specimen copy containing the Premium List."
