

THE REMAINS AT HOME.

A Large Party of Notables Escort the Cortege From the Train. WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The remains of Secretary Windom arrived in this city at 4:30 this afternoon. The train was met by President Harrison, Vice President Morton, Secretaries Blaine, Proctor, Noble and Rusk, and Postmaster General Wanamaker, Assistant Secretary Nettleton of the treasury department and a great number of treasury officials and employes and fifty or more senators and representatives.

The remains were accompanied from New York by Secretary Tracy, Attorney General Miller and Private Secretary Hendley. The remains, escorted by a detail of troops, were taken to the late residence of the secretary on Massachusetts avenue, where they will remain until arrangements are made for the interment.

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

President Harrison Orders the Proper Evidences of Respect to be Shown.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The following official announcement of Secretary Windom's death was made at the state department today:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30, 1891.—The Honorable William Windom, secretary of the treasury of the United States, died suddenly last night in the city of New York at the hour of eleven minutes past 10 o'clock, in the 64th year of his age. Thus has passed away a man of pure life, an official of stainless integrity, distinguished by long and eminent service in both branches of congress, and by being twice called to administer the national finances. His death has caused deep regret throughout the country, while to the president and those associated with him in the administration of the government it seems as a personal sorrow.

The president directs that all the departments of the executive branch of the government and the officers subordinate thereto shall manifest due respect to the memory of this eminent citizen in a manner consonant with the dignity of the office which he has honored by his devotion to public duty. The president further directs that the treasury department, in all its branches in this capital, be draped in mourning for the period of thirty days; that on the day of the funeral the several executive departments shall be closed, and that on all public buildings throughout the United States the national flag shall be displayed at half mast.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

The Funeral.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—Secretary Windom's funeral will take place on Monday. His son, William D. Windom, who was in Baton Rouge, La., has been heard from and is now on his way to Washington. As stated in earlier dispatches, there will be private services Monday morning at the Windom mansion on Massachusetts avenue, and later in the day public services at the church of the Covenant, on Connecticut avenue. The pall bearers, honorary and active will be announced tomorrow.

Ingalls a Candidate.

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 30.—The death of Secretary Windom has given renewed hope to the admirers of John J. Ingalls. Already the defeated senator is being boomed here to succeed the deceased secretary. Tomorrow a resolution will be introduced in the senate asking the president to appoint a man who will be in accord with the west on the financial question.

The Nebraska City papers are kicking about muddy streets and crossings. Now we don't do it that way up here, we just keep still and wade her through.

W. J. Hesser of the picnic gardens placed the HERALD under lasting obligations today by presenting us with a package of rhubarb grown in his hot house. Mr. Hesser is a leader in flowers and vegetables.

W. H. Loughbridge, one of Cass county's best mechanics, of Murray, and his friend John Holmes, of Sherman county, this state, were pleasant callers at the HERALD sanctum today. Mr. Holmes reports that there is a great deal of destitution among the people of the Loup country.

Dr. John Black returned this morning from his eastern tour looking hale and hearty. The doctor says he did not authorize the statement that he had entered upon marriage relations while away, and seemed surprised at the congratulations tendered him upon alighting from the train.

READY TO DEPART.

A Day of Business and Pleasure Happily Combined—The New List of Officers.

BEATRICE, Neb., Jan. 30.—Today's proceedings of the Nebraska press association comprised a ride by special train to the various manufacturing and about Beatrice and an informal meeting at the Beatrice club rooms in the morning. At this meeting the question of legislation on the present rates for legal printing was discussed and a committee consisting of two representatives each from democratic, republican and alliance organs, with the president and secretary of the association members ex-officio, was appointed to look after legislation before the present legislature in the interest of the publishers of Nebraska. The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, By the Nebraska press association in annual convention assembled, that we enter an unanimous protest against pending legislation to reduce the rates of legal printing in the state from the fact that legal rates are already less than in other states and that an attack on the press of the state is an attack upon the medium that is doing the greatest work for the upholding and prosperity of the people.

In the early afternoon the visitors were conveyed about the city in carriages by the citizens and at 3 o'clock the business session was resumed at the Paddock. T. E. Sedgwick of the York Times read a paper which led up to a discussion of the question of irrigating and the relation of the press thereto.

The election of officers then followed, with this result: President, F. G. Simmons, Seward Reporter; Vice Presidents, C. M. Hubner, Nebraska City News, S. R. Razez, Curtis Courier, Judson Graves, Neligh Advertiser; secretary and treasurer, Ross L. Hammond, Fremont Tribune; delegates to national convention to be held at St. Paul, Minn., in July, J. D. Klutsch, Lincoln Free Press, J. D. Stine, Superior Journal, L. Wessel, Lincoln Courier, H. M. Bushnell, Lincoln Call, George S. Marvin, Beatrice Democrat; alternates, T. E. Sedgwick, York Times; M. D. Polk, Plattsmouth HERALD, C. W. Sherman, Plattsmouth Journal, J. W. Johnson, Sutton Advertiser, Edgar Howard, Papillion Times.

Fremont, Nebraska, was selected as the place for the next annual meeting of the Nebraska press association.

In the evening the association was treated to a splendid literary exhibition and gymnastic drill at the Paddock opera house by the pupils of the asylum for imbeciles. The proficiency with which these children accomplish difficult evolutions and marches, as well as their recitations and singing, is remarkable and won the loudest applause.

After the exhibits at the opera house the association adjourned to the Beatrice club rooms for a brief business session and then reassembled at the Paddock hotel at 10 o'clock for the banquet, given the association by the citizens of Beatrice. Covers were laid for about 100 persons, including a number of ladies, wives of the visiting editors. The following toasts were prepared: "Our Guests," "Beatrice," "The Press," "The Bar," "Editorial Opinion," "What Has Built the Third City," "The Editor and His Pass," "The Ladies" and volunteer toasts. The banquet was continued to a late hour and was replete with enjoyment throughout.

Prior to the adjournment of the business session resolutions of thanks were unanimously voted the citizens of Beatrice, the local committees and all who contributed to the pleasure and profit of the nineteenth annual meeting of the Nebraska press association.

Brother Rave of the Eagle polishes Col. Cavey off in this week's issue of that paper in his usual graphic style as follows: "Mike Cavey" of Elmwood was knocked out in the first round in his tussle with the city authorities. Mike wanted to run a saloon for the benefit of the rising generation in that locality. The city darts wisely concluded that they did not want him as an assistant of the devil, in loosening the morality of their citizens."

It will now be in order for Mike to turn his howitzer loose on the emblem of his country at Weeping Water and teach it to keep out of his bailiwick.

A HERALD representative had the pleasure of a brief chat this morning with the Hon. John C. Watson at the depot while awaiting the K. C. train on which he continued his journey home to remain over the Sabbath. Mr. Watson is ably representing Otoe and Cass in the lower house of the legislature.

G. D. Mattison of the Bend was in the city last evening.

The "January Thaw" has been of about 21 days' duration hereabouts this winter and winds up the month with any amount of slush and mud.

J. P. Wood of Louisville is engaged today in taking a copy of the names of the petitioners rejected by the county commissioners. Just what purpose they are to serve him is not disclosed.

The HERALD omitted to mention in last night's issue that Col. Sherman was attending the press association at Beatrice. It is needless to say that he took a "tie ticket" or that he rode on a pass, for he is dead against the pass business.

County Surveyor A. C. Myles was compelled to close his Sarp county school for a week on account of a recent fever breaking out among his pupils. He will be in his office in this city during his vacation to attend to any business connected with that office.

Frederick Trunkenhobels was today adjudged insane by the commissioners of insanity and will be conveyed to the asylum as soon as the entrance permit is received. His home is nine miles south of Greenwood. He is 51 years of age and was conveyed to this city last evening. His mental disorder was brought about by ill health. He is quiet and orderly but is possessed with an insatiate appetite for food.

In the war of the revolution the colonies had 181,461 men. In the war of 1812 the United States had 576,622 men. In the war with Mexico the United States had 112,230 men. In the war of the rebellion the United States had 2,213,365 men. The war of the revolution cost the United States $135,193,703. The war of 1812 cost the United States $107,159,003. The war with Mexico cost the United States $100,000,000. The war of the rebellion cost the United States $6,589,929,909.

Senate file 48, relating to relocation of county seats was indefinitely postponed yesterday. That is another black eye for the county seat agitators, as the bill provided for the relocation of county seats upon a majority vote instead of a three-fifths vote under the present law. The Eagle, Echo and Courier-Journal will pour out its vitals of wrath on the heads of the senators. Senators stand from under.

The Elmwood Echo voices the sentiments of a very insignificant minority of the people when it moves for a division of the county. Cass county people are not put up that way. A few malecontents could be spared though when they feel like looking for greener pasture, for the good people of the thriving city of Ashland want to move into old Cass and they would most happily fill any vacancies caused by the restive editor of the Echo and followers moving out.

Watson in a New Role. Major John C. Watson is said to be writing a novel entitled "Under Three Governors."—Norfolk Daily News.

The major is now under contract to produce a book as soon as the legislature adjourns entitled "What I know about Fish Farming."

Brother Rave of the Eagle pretends to become very indignant over an interview this paper published a few days ago, and with a prominent citizen of Weeping Water concerning the county seat business, and "alops" over in the following elegant (?) style:

"The Eagle denies the statement of the HERALD as to the prominence of the gentleman referred to, for no man of prominence is in this city, who has been a citizen of Cass county for any length of time, could not possibly hold such views. After suffering for years, waiting, watching, hoping, praying and voting for the removal of the county seat, to a place where the people could be accommodated, and then to be out-voted by dogs, Dagoes and d—nals. The prominence of a man who has endured these things, will never be found giving utterances like the above. Try another lie Mr. HERALD—give up one we can swallow."

It will be seen that the denial is of the "prominence" of the gentleman we interviewed, and as that is a matter between the Eagle editor and the gentleman referred to we will suggest that the difference might be more easily settled between themselves, and at home. If we were not afraid of injuring the fine feelings of Harry, we'd suggest a doubt as to the sincerity of his ravings about Plattsmouth, and say that he is an assistant to "Escow Ed" in patting the shoulders of Gov. Todd & Co. They might be called the fiddlers, and Todd & Co. the dancers; and those that dance, fencer know, must always pay the fiddlers.

The Plattsmouth Journal says that thirteen of the county treasurers of Arkansas are behind in the matter of accounting for the money entrusted to their keeping. It is sufficient to say that they are all democratic, and it is equally unnecessary to remark that they will not be punished.—Nebraska City Press.

Bro. Brown of the Press must be a little off in his credits. The Plattsmouth Journal has not been in the habit of publishing democratic defalcations.

WINDOM IS DEAD.

The Secretary of the Treasury Dies at a Banquet.

HE MADE A MASTERLY SPEECH.

And Had Sat Down Amidst Applause—A Few Minutes Later He Suffered an Attack of Heart Disease, Fell from His Chair, and Soon Expired.

New York, Jan. 30.—The large dining hall of Delmonico's never presented a happier picture than at 6 o'clock last evening, when the members and guests of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, more than two hundred and fifty in number, began the exercise of the annual banquet of that organization; nor was it ever the scene of such profound concentration as that which overcame the company four hours later when the chief guest and principal speaker of the occasion fell from his chair and died a few minutes later. The banquet was of exceptional interest, because of the prominence of speakers and the significance of the subjects to be discussed. The list of speakers included Secretary Windom, ex-Secretary Bayard, H. Fred. Laurier of Canada, Attorney General Longley of Nova Scotia, Secretary of the Navy Tracy, Attorney General Miller, Murat Halstead and Maj. McKinley and Congressman Breckinridge of Kentucky, who sent regrets.

The sudden death of Secretary of the Treasury Windom caused the immediate adjournment of that body a few minutes after 10 o'clock. The secretary was the first speaker of the evening. The dinner, which began at 6 o'clock, was completed shortly after 9 o'clock and the secretary arose to speak. He entertained the diners with a most elaborate oration and sat down amidst the loud applause of his auditors. Judge Arnoux then got up and was in the midst of his speech introducing ex-Secretary Bayard, when some one cried:

"Look at Secretary Windom!"

The speech was broken short and every eye was turned in the direction of that gentleman. He had collapsed in his chair and was falling to the floor. His face was ghastly and a cry of horror arose among the late festive revellers. There was an immediate rush on the part of all hands toward Mr. Windom's chair, but several doctors who were guests at the dinner, got there first and drove the others back. They were Drs. S. A. Robinson, Durast, Whitney, Fisher and Bishop. Dr. Robinson bent down and making a close examination of the prostrate form, discovered that the heart was still beating. By his orders

The Dying Secretary was carried into the dining room adjoining the banquet hall and there placed on a table. Messengers were hastily dispatched for electric batteries, and as many as four were applied to his body, which was rapidly becoming cold. This was exactly at 10:05 p. m., and for six minutes the electric shocks were applied incessantly, but without success. At 10:11 p. m. Judge Arnoux came out of the dining room and announced to the diners that Secretary Windom, whom they had had the pleasure of hearing only a few minutes before, had breathed his last. "He is dead," this was the fearful announcement that was sent through the gay decked banquet hall, around which still hung like a funeral pall the smoke of the after-dinner cigars. "He is dead," the words went to the heart of every man who heard them. Could they believe it—the brilliant orator of a few minutes before, aglow with enthusiasm, predicting his future policy in the treasury, was

Only a Mass of Clay. His voice was forever silenced, and his last words were for his country. Every man looked at his neighbor with blanched cheeks. Death, that awful messenger, had descended upon their feast and taken from the crowd one of the nation's chief officers.

A shiver ran upon the men who only a few minutes before were clamoring for news from Mr. Windom. Judge Arnoux retiring had announced that Mr. Windom had only fainted, and it was not thought by the outsiders that it was as serious as it proved to be. The secretary had succumbed to a fatal attack of the heart. He had been for a long time a sufferer from heart disease, and only last Monday was visited by a shock, which, however, passed away without causing him much inconvenience. When it was officially announced that the secretary was dead, Secretary Tracy at once went to the nearest telegraphic office and sent a message to President Harrison, informing him of the sad event and requesting him to communicate with Mrs. Windom and have her start on the 11:30 p. m. train for New York.

It was decided to remove the body to the apartments in the Fifth Avenue hotel which had been occupied by the late secretary. Those who will remain with the body all night are: Collector Erhardt, Private Secretary Hendley, Attorney General Miller, Secretary Tracy, F. B. Thurber, E. D. Harris and Dr. E. Binson. Undertaker Huyler of Grace church, was summoned and put in charge of the remains. Later President Snow, of the Board of Trade and Transportation, telegraphed to President Harrison that the body would be sent on to Washington on a special train. Mr. Snow appointed the following committee to escort the remains: Ambrose Snow, James Talcott, F. B. Thurber, W. H. E. Wiley, Seth Thomas and Norman Bentley.

Secretary Windom's sudden death in New York was not received here until a late hour, and at midnight it was known to but few. In official life, to the president and among his brother cabinet officers and their families, the news came about 11 o'clock like a pall, at the dinner and musical entertainment given by Postmaster General Wanamaker to the president and cabinet. The guests had assembled and enjoyed their excellent meal, and were being entertained by a soul inspiring musical entertainment, with C. J. Bushnell and Miss Elliott of New York as baritone and soprano, and Miss Amy Hare at the piano, when the sad news came in a despatch to the postmaster general. The president and Mrs. Harrison, Secretary and Mrs. Blaine, in fact all the cabinet or some members of their families, except Secretary Windom and Attorney General Miller were present. Mrs. Windom, her two daughters and a lady friend were also present. When the news came, at the suggestion of Secretary Blaine of the postmaster general, Mrs. Windom's friend, who had been informed of the death, feigned seriousness, and accompanied by the secretary's wife and daughters, was taken to her home, broken to Mrs. Windom and her daughters, was followed by a flood of desolate and indescribable grief. As soon as Mrs. Windom left the Postmaster's mansion the brilliant musical entertainment came to an end and the guests dispersed. Secretary Windom's death, however, had become a moment before the sad news, could only be appraised of it they reached the executive ma-

Secretary Windom was born in Belmont, Ohio, May 11, 1827. He received an academic education, studied at Mount Vernon, O., and was admitted to the bar in 1850. In 1852 he became prosecuting attorney for Knox county, but in 1855 he removed to Minnesota and soon afterwards was chosen a congressman from that state, serving from 1859 to 1869. In 1869 he received two terms as chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, and also a seat on the special committee which visited the western tribes in 1875, and of that which investigated the conduct of the commissioner of Indian affairs in 1877. In 1879 he was appointed to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of Daniel S. Fortou, deceased, and was subsequently chosen for the term that ended in 1877. He was re-elected for the term that expired in 1883, and resigned in 1881 to enter the cabinet of President Garfield as secretary of the treasury, but retained the position of President Arthur in the same year, and was elected by the same legislature to serve the remainder of his term in the senate. In that body Mr. Windom acted as chairman of the committees on appropriations, foreign affairs and transportation. At the expiration of his term in the senate he came to New York and engaged in business in Wall street—he was in the midst of a prosperous business career when Benjamin Harrison was elected president, and called him to his old position in the cabinet. He hesitated to respond, but was finally prevailed upon to leave New York and go to Washington. Since the resumption of the duties of the office of secretary of the treasury Mr. Windom has been constantly before the public because of the necessities of financial affairs of the country. He had shown himself equal to all emergency and was never found wanting on occasions that demanded prompt and decisive action. In the time of Wall street's great trouble Mr. Windom acted with such judgment that the "street" was saved from a panic and many from ruin.

A Canadian Pacific Rumor. OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—It is stated in well-informed quarters that the Canadian Pacific Railway company is returning to Ottawa for further assistance from the Dominion treasury. The amount is placed at $3,000,000, which parliament will be requested to vote when it meets. After the many raids that have been made on the treasury to assist this road, any proposal for assistance will be strongly opposed. A prominent railway magnate said, in referring to the Canadian Pacific, that it would be a matter of great interest to the public to know to what extent to railway securities has been charged to capital account, that should have been paid out of revenue to enable the company to declare dividends. There is a general feeling, he said, that this great transcontinental line will yet fall back upon the hands of the government, to be operated at the expense of the Dominion exchequer.

A Peculiar State of Affairs. OTTAWA, Ill., Jan. 30.—Another phase in the "disorderly house ordinance" was enacted by Maj. Hamilton, whose petition in reference to the matter the council ignored at a recent meeting, he filing a petition in the district court asking the court to require the county attorney to bring action against the mayor, city marshal, city solicitor and the city council for enacting legislation in contradiction to the state law. A couple of cases have been brought, but the city solicitor continued one and dismissed the other, so that the validity of the ordinance would not be tried. Maj. Hamilton, the city officials and a majority of the council are Republicans. What lends additional interest is that the county attorney is also a member of the city council, and if the petition stands, must prosecute himself.

Good News

No one, who is willing to adopt the right course, need be long afflicted with boils, carbuncles, pimples, or other cutaneous eruptions. These are the results of Nature's efforts to expel poisonous and effete matter from the blood, and show plainly that the system is ridding itself through the skin of impurities which it was the legitimate work of the liver and kidneys to remove. To restore these organs to their proper functions, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the medicine required. That no other blood-purifier can compare with it, thousands testify who have gained

With the use of this medicine the complaint disappeared, and show plainly that no other blood medicine could have effected so rapid and complete a cure."—Andrew D. Garcia, C.
