Words of Sympathy Show a Grateful People's Love.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The Train to Leave New York Thursday Night and Reach St. Louis Saturday Morning—Congressional Committees to Take Part in the Ceremonies.

New York, Feb. 15.—The house, 75 West Seventy-first street, in which the body of Gen. Sherman lies, was visited by many friends of the family, who came to offer their sympathy. The street, ordinarily so quiet, was all the morning filled with pedestrians attracted to the neighborhood by the desire to see the place in which the General made his last fight. The dismal weather did not seem to dismay them at all. Many prominent persons were among those who called at the house. None of the visitors were permitted to look at the features of the dead man. Messenger boys were calling at the house continually and from all parts of the country messages of sympathy were pouring in.

The remains of Gen. Sherman will be placed in a burial casket this morning and taken to the front part of the first floor. Until last evening they lay in the upper chamber in view of the General dead. The great commander will be dressed in the full uniform of a general of the United States army. Until Thursday none but members of the family will be permitted to see the body. The smallness of the house will admit of only a few viewing the remains, and only those will be admitted who make a special request.

The funeral car will be placed on the regular St. Louis fast express on the Pennsylvania road at 6:30 Thursday evening. The train is expected to arrive in St. Louis Saturday morning at 7:30. Only a few of the general's family and relatives will go to St. Louis and only one car will be used for them. President Robert of the Pennsylvania has tendered the family the use of a special car. No extra cars will be allowed for those desiring to accompany the remains on their westward journey.

The members of the Grand Army of the Republic at Pittsburgh desire to pay special honor to the General's remains in that city. A telegram was received from Senators Quay and Cameron asking for this special privilege. A white horse will go in advance of the caisson bearing the general's military trappings.

Congressional Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The president announced his appointment of the following senators to attend Gen. Sherman's funeral, the number having been increased from five to six: Messrs. Everts, Hawley, Manderson, Piccoe, Cockrell and Walball. The speaker of the house appointed the following committee: Messrs. Cutchson, Spinola, Cogswell, Cummings, Grosvenor, Kinsey, Tarsney, Anderson of Illinois and Outwaite. The house then adjourned.

Over ten thousand delegates from all parts of the Union and Canada are expected to be in attendance. Arrangements are being made on an extensive scale for their accommodation in the twin cities. The organization is strictly non-denominational in its character and its ramifications extend to all the Protestant churches.

Swindling the Farmers.

VANDALIA, Ills., Feb. 17.—A new swindle is being perpetrated by a gang of men who are traveling about the country representing themselves as house painters. For $5 they agree to paint the roof of a building. When finished a bill for $5 is presented for the work and forty gallons of paint at the rate of $1.50 a gallon, which the victim by signing a contract has obligated himself to pay.

A Murderer Losing His Mind.

CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 17.—The condition of City Attorney Warder, who shot and killed his son-in-law, C. M. Fuggett, Jan. 18, is alarming. He fails to recognize any of his family, and the physicians do not think he will live through the night. Should he by any chance recover it is said he will be hopelessly insane.

THE END QUIET AND PEACEFUL.

The Dying Man Surrounded by Family and Friends When His Spirit Took Its Flight—Words of Sympathy and Condolence Pouring In.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Gen. Sherman died Saturday afternoon at 1:50 o'clock surrounded by his family. All night long Gen. Sherman wavered between life and death, and continued to fight bravely the hopeless battle. Early in the evening the physicians knew the end was approaching slowly but surely. The swelling of the face and neck disappeared, but with the subsidence of the symptoms of erysipelas came a development of the lung trouble, complicated with the return of long standing asthma. Mucus began once more to accumulate in the lungs, and the first signs of passive pneumonia became apparent. About 6 o'clock a. m. a decided change for the worse set in, and Dr. Green was summoned. Another hour and all the members of Gen. Sherman's family were summoned to the sick room. Death seemed nearer, but the sufferer refused to succumb.

After a consultation of the physicians it was given out that Gen. Sherman's condition was hopeless, that the end was rapidly approaching and that the marked difficulty was making a marked progress. At the time this bulletin was issued there was by the dying man's bedside and in the adjoining room, the general's unmarried daughters Rachael and Lizzie, Mrs. Fitch, Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, Mrs. Thackeray, Lieut. Thackeray, Senator John Sherman, P. T. Sherman and Mrs. Janeway and Alexander, besides the latter's assistant, Dr. Green.

During the forenoon as the hours passed by every inquirer who called at the general's house was told that all hope had been abandoned, and his relatives and attendants were merely waiting for the end, and endeavoring to make his last hours as free from suffering as possible. Among those who called were Cyrus W. Field and Mrs. U. S. Grant.

The general passed away without speaking. His four daughters were present and his son, P. T. Sherman, and Senator Sherman and the attending physicians. Secretary Barrett and some other friends were in the room below. Soon after 2 o'clock Barrett went to the Western Union telegraph office and sent off a number of dispatches to Washington, in which he announced the time of death as 1:50 p. m.

All day Sunday streams of humanity passed and re-passed the house where the remains of Gen. Sherman lay. From the windows of many of the general's late neighbors floated the American flag at half-mast and in deep mourning. Early in the morning the undertaker arrived and completed the embalming of the body. Many floral tributes were sent to the house. From Colgate Hoyt came a spray of palms with a draped flag in the center. This was for the casket of the dead hero. The military guard from Governor's island was on duty all day and will remain until the body is removed. Four men were always on duty and relays came on every three hours. One man was stationed at the death chamber while the others stood guard in the hall below. Towards noon callers began to arrive at the house. It would be difficult to number the friends who have called during the past few days and left cards.

Gen. Howard and Slocom met at the late general's home at noon with many other military men to perfect arrangements for the funeral. The arrangements made were given out in the evening by Gen. Butterfield. Congressman Quinn called during the day and had a consultation with Senator Sherman in reference to the attendance of senators and representatives. Mr. Quinn, speaking to a reporter later on, said he thought that fully fifty members of the house and about one-third of the senate would come from Washington to this city to attend the services.

Senator Sherman left the house about 3 o'clock to return to Washington. The detail of regulars have had some trouble in finding quarters. They asked for permission to use the Twenty-second regiment armory as their headquarters, but were refused the privilege. Maj. Henry, of the Eighth regiment, then opened the doors of the armory of his regiment.

Telegrams of sympathy and condolence have been pouring in from all parts of the country. Some three thousand were received, including messages from the president, from public officials, soldiers who had fought under the general and other friends.

The preliminary arrangements for the funeral of Gen. Sherman were made. It was determined the funeral cortege should form at 1 o'clock on Thursday next at the house in West Seventy-first street, and move promptly at 2 o'clock, in order to get to the train in season. The funeral service proper will take place in St. Louis.

[Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman completed his seventieth year on the 8th of February. He was born Feb. 8, 1820, and his brother John, May 10, 1823—both at Lancaster, O. In 1821 their father, Charles H. Sherman, was appointed a judge of the supreme court of Ohio and served in that capacity till his death in 1829. During his youth young Sherman displayed no particular talent indicating the possibilities of a future great general, and the most hoped for by his friends for him was that of a successful engineer. The death of the father left the family in straitened circumstances, and the boys were soon scattered, Tecumseh being reared by the Hon. Thomas Ewing, who, in 1836, secured his appointment to West Point. There the future general was even

Mr. and Mrs. John Warg lost their little babe yesterday. It was but a few days old and was buried today.

Mrs. R. T. Brown and daughter, of Tecumseh, are in the city today, the guests of Mrs. B's son, Col. O. A. Brown, the druggist.

The quarters formerly occupied by J. H. Young at the store house are being enlarged today for the Master Mechanic Mr. Grelsue who will occupy these apartments as soon as completed.

The Swift Packing Company had a strike yesterday at their big ice houses at Ashland, the men demanding $1.75 for day work and $2.00 for night work. The claims of the men were promptly acceded to and business proceeded with little delay.

The work on the railroad water tank and well here is progressing finely. Water was reached in small quantities at the depth of twelve feet and it is expected that abundance of water will be found at the depth of thirty feet. Union Ledger.

Mrs. Urwin whose death we mentioned yesterday, has relatives buried here, so that it has been arranged to have her remains brought in on the Schuyler tomorrow morning at 9:45. The funeral will take place from the train; the regular services will be held at Louisville.

The Odd Fellows had a very interesting time at their lodge room last night, conferring degrees until 2 o'clock this morning. The grand scribe of the order in this state, Mr. L. P. Gage, of Fremont, was present and assisted in the work. The ladies served a light lunch at twelve o'clock, which added to the pleasures of the evening. Mr. Gage remained over in the city to attend the reunion exercises which begin today.

THE HERALD is for Louisville as a location for a state reform school for girls. The town is healthful and is covered over by a sort of salubrious moral atmosphere which would be good for the girls. We clip from the Lincoln Journal an article which indicates that Louisville may be a winner. We bury the hatchet, handle down, and with a hearty hurrah for the reform school we grasp Brother Mayfield by the hand, with an assurance that hostilities have ceased.

The most of the coal sheds and other M. P. fixtures at Weeping Water will likely be moved to Union soon. The company is putting in their large water supplies here now and work on the new line will commence again in four or five weeks. Our citizens are beginning to feel interested in Union of late and it is becoming a common thing to step into one of our business houses and find half a dozen men earnestly engaged in conversation regarding the town—what would and what would not be best for it. This is just the right spirit that should exist in our business men and they can rest assured that the bread they cast upon the water by this, is not thrown away.—Union Ledger.

Frank Carruth, came in from McCook Saturday evening where he had been looking after his interests. He brought with him some Irish potatoes much larger and finer than any we have seen raised in this country that were raised in the drouth stricken districts with irrigation. Mr. Carruth, took a ride out of the country with the city clerk of McCook, and was assured by the clerk that there was not as much suffering in three of the burnt counties, as there was in the city of Lincoln alone. But what is worse the poor are too modest to beg while the brass knaves, who have money get supplies here are intended for others. Mr. Carruth relates several instances that had come under the personal observation of the clerk which were shameful in the extreme. If our people wish to help deserving poor in the west they must send their supplies direct to those who are needy, or to friends whom they know will take the time to give an honorable distribution of the donations.

JOE, The One Price Clothier, consisting of Joe Klein and Wm. Fisher, are going to close out their entire stock of clothing at and below cost. The firm is going to dissolve and the stock must be sold out as quick as possible. The public will please bear in mind that JOE has only been two years in business, and it is not on account of lack of business this firm is compelled to sell out, only on account of dissolution. JOE has but very little goods in the house over a year old. The bulk of this firm's stock is from this season. Now is your chance to buy brand new goods at such slaughtering prices as you have never heard of before.

To Farmers. The following sensible advice has been going the rounds of the Press, which for the benefit of Cass County Farmers we reproduce "If any man calls at your farm home and wants to leave a plow, harrow, bise of goods, or any article whatever, just as an accommodation till he can call for it, and wants you to sign a receipt so that he can show his employer where it is and that it is in safe hands, put your finger to your eye and pull down the under lid, and ask him if he sees anything green there. He will take the hint and light out. If he does not, get down your shot-gun and tell him you will give him just seven minutes to get off the place. Why should you give him a receipt? If he can't trust his goods in your possession without a receipt, tell him to take them away. It is no accommodation to you to have them left, and the man who tries the dodge is always a swindler.

Permits. Ticket Agent Latham has just received clerical permits for our gentlemen of the cloth, good over the entire system of the great Q road and leased line. Those entitled to the favors can be accommodated by calling on Mr. Latham at the depot.

He Dodges the Issue. Yesterday was the time when Mr. Boyd had to make answer to the petition of Governor Thayer filed with the supreme court. An opportunity was thus given Mr. Boyd to show the legal claim he had for citizenship. And how has he met the issue? Not like a man bold with the right, with the law and the facts on his side, but as a craven coward he pettifogs, dodges the issue and attempts very clearly to insolently trifle with the public. Mr. Boyd's course since the filing of his so called answer, which we print below, is inexcusable and indefensible before any loyal citizen. Here is Mr. Boyd's answer to the serious charge of being an alien, which Governor Thayer puts against him:

"State of Nebraska ex rel John M. Thayer vs James E. Boyd—Motion—And now comes the said James E. Boyd, respondent, and moves the court to strike this cause from the files and calendar of this court and to dismiss the same on the grounds:

First—That said relator, John M. Thayer, has no right, title or authority in law to institute or maintain this action.

Second—That the petition and relation herein does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Third—That said petition and relation shows on its face that James E. Boyd, respondent, is the duly elected, qualified and acting de jure governor of this state, and entitled in law to hold said office and bound to discharge the duties thereof for and during the term of two years from and after the 8th day of January, A. D., 1891. JAMES E. BOYD.

By JOHN D. HOWE, His Attorney. JOHN C. COWAN, of Counsel."

Supposed to be Poisoned. A special to the Bee of yesterday from Liberty says: J. D. Brunsback, a German farmer, is just recovering from what is supposed to be an attempt to poison yesterday. He received through the United States mail a pint of whiskey which he believed to have been sent him by a friend. He drank a part of it and soon took sick. Medical aid was summoned and he is now out of danger. The symptoms were those of strychnine poison. Two young men who shared in the liquid were also made sick, but by prompt use of emetics soon recovered.

His new barber is recently from the Palace hotel in San Francisco, where none but the best can secure employment. For a nice shave or a quiet bath call on O. A. Hirsch at his new parlors in the Carruth block after next Monday. dw

He Proves It On Us. The editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, the only genuine religious paper in the county, assumes himself these dull times by writing letters to himself from the western precincts, giving Plattsburgh and her people particular fits. These he publishes with big headlines, as testimony, clearly proving it at Plattsburgh is a very wicked town. Col. Mayfield is a lulu and a boo doo combined.

G. A. R. Convention. The G. A. R. convention starts up very nicely with several distinguished citizens present from abroad. The president of the W. R. C. for Nebraska, Mrs. Morgan, is here, as well as the national president, Mrs. McHenry, of Des Moines. Many of our enterprising merchants have decorated their rooms very tastefully, out of respect for our visitors from abroad.

Died. John Finisher was found at an early hour Sunday morning on the sidewalk on Wintersteen Hill, only a few blocks from his home, having breathed his last only a few hours before. Mr. Finisher was an old citizen of Plattsburgh and was married to the widow Finney, who at one time kept house for the noted French trader, Peter A. Sarpy. Mrs. F. got a divorce from Mr. Finisher some years ago, but his two daughters kept house for him for a time. The coroner impaneled a jury, and held an inquest yesterday over the body of the deceased. It was learned that he started home about ten o'clock Saturday night very drunk, and that he laid down on the sidewalk, where he remained all night, dying from exposure or poison whiskey. The jury called it exposure.

Mrs. Jane Urwin at the ripe age of nearly ninety, died yesterday at her home four miles south of Cedar Creek, after a brief illness. Mrs. Urwin was an old settler in this county, having at an early day resided in this city. She leaves three daughters: Mrs. J. Clements, of this city, Mrs. Bessie Spence and Mrs. A. Kiser, residing near Louisville; also a son, John Urwin, with whom she made her home. The funeral will take place in this city Thursday, fuller particulars of which will be given tomorrow.

An Old Settler Gone. The old friends of George Walradt will be pained to learn of his death at his home near Cedar Creek yesterday morning. Mr. Walradt was one of the pioneers of Cass county, settling on the farm where he died, in the early fifties. He was a most estimable citizen, respected by his neighbors; a man of iron constitution and indomitable energy, he shrank from no exposure and for years during the hard times known to early settlers, he thought nothing of putting in fifteen and eighteen hours out of the twenty-four at hard labor, clearing and cultivating his claim and building a comfortable home for his growing family. It was from the effect of these early privations and hardships that he contracted the disease, which as he grew older sapped his strength and cut down the strong man who otherwise might have yet lived for years. Mr. Walradt was a loyal law-abiding citizen and christian gentleman, and it is by the courage and energy of such men that the settlement of this western country was made possible. Mr. Walradt will long be missed by the people of his neighborhood, and by the family he leaves to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place at the Walradt cemetery tomorrow.

The Eaglet hopes that the senate will not concur in the house's ideas of reform and repeal the sugar bounty of one cent. We know of a large number of farmers in northwestern Nebraska who were building great hopes of being so situated as to catch a refinery erected near them and raise beets at a greater profit. We say let the bounty remain two years at least and let us thoroughly test this promising industry, before giving it a slap in the face. Let it creep a while over we start in to walking.—Eagle Eaglet.

The Suicide Route. Deputy Sheriff Tighe and Coroner Unruh held an inquest over the remains of George Wilcox at South Bend, Saturday, and from the testimony it was clearly shown that the deceased had come to his death on account of poison administered by his own hand. He had been divorced from his wife for three years and said he had nothing to live for, hence the rash act. Doctors were called in time to have saved him, but he refused to take any medicine.

Dr. Tefft, the Greenwood capitalist and miller, came down to the county seat today.
