CHILDREN

Are always liable to sudden and severe colds, to croup, sore throat, lung fever, etc. Remedies, to be effective, must be administered without delay. Nothing is better adapted for such emergencies than Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, relieves coughing, and induces sleep. The prompt use of this medicine has saved innumerable lives, both of young and old.

Strangling.

It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicine it had taken, I resorted to a part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time it was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved its life.—C. J. Woodridge, Wortham, Texas.

SPANISH DISHER.

How to Use Oil in Cooking Without Its Disagreeable Effects. Though, as a rule, Spaniards of the better class are not early risers, they begin the day with the desayuno, as they call the meal. This usually consists of a large cup of milk and coffee, or a small cup of thick chocolate, with a kind of cake called ensaimada. The chocolate is made with milk, never with water, except in the poorest families. Between 2 and 2 p. m. old fashioned Spanish folks have their dinner. The table is very simply laid with a clean cloth and several plates of sweets and fruits; several cold appetizers, salted, peppered and mustard-pot never. A spoon, fork and knife lumped together, a tumbler for water and a small wineglass are set at each place.

A Spaniard never commits the heresy of mixing wine and water; he says it is spoiling two good things. A goodly sized loaf of bread flanks each plate. The soup tureen is first handed round, and, although its contents are a trifling quantity, nothing can be more nourishing. It is compounded of all the good things that go to make up the classical cocido or puchero. The substantial portion with which the soup is made is placed in three separate dishes and served up immediately afterward. On one dish figure large, thick slices of boiled beef and pieces of fowl with slices of bacon; on another appear the garbanzos, or chick peas, and on the third are the vegetables with slices of chorizo, or sausage. The cocido is usually eaten as it is, though in some houses tomato sauce is added. The puchero, or cocido, takes its name from the pewter pot in which it is slowly boiled. In every well regulated home throughout Spain the cocido is made once a day, and a right good thing it is, as at any hour you may chance to need a cup of broth you can be supplied with it. The next dish is the frito. Frito means a fry, and the dish usually consists of fried brains, fried sweetbread, croquettes of fowl, etc.

How Old Is Punch? On landing at one of the sugar factories we found that there was a fair going on under an avenue of tamarisks close by. The dealers sat under the trees with their wares before them, fruit and vegetables in one quarter, cotton and calicoes in another, native woolen stuffs, robes, rugs, cloth, etc., in a third; there was also a cattle fair, sheep, buffaloes, camels and donkeys. These were all fresco coffee stalls and a booth, within which the sounds of very noisy music could be heard, the drum predominating. We entered, and were much amused on finding that it was an Arab Punch and Judy show, but Punch wore a turban and Judy a yashmak. The former perpetrated a series of enormities, and ended by tearing off Judy's veil during a family squabble after this he became a perfect desperado, and on the mamour (chief magistrate of the district), got up in the official tarboosh and blue frock coat, arriving, attended by a retinue of cawasses armed with sticks, he knocked that redoubtable personage head over heels, amid the vociferous applause of the assembled fallahs. Punch pasha's popularity was now at its height, and much sympathy was felt for him when his career terminated by his being hanged on the pole of a shadoof. It was really a very clever and lively performance. I turned to the inspector of the factory, who was with me, and said, "I suppose they have borrowed this from Europe." "Borrowed it from Europe!" he exclaimed. "Why, it was performed in the east before Europe was thought of." So then old Punch is, after all, but a degenerate version of an Egyptian play.—Stuart's "Egypt After the War."

A Sure Way of Killing Owls. Frost Bunker, of the Dead River region, is a guide who, it is said, is a successful rival to James A. Smith, of Phillips—a Rangely guide—in story telling. Frost is intimately acquainted with "John Smith," who is well known in all parts of the country. He says he was with John on a hunting trip once on a time, when they came upon a man who had fired at an owl perched in a big tree about a dozen times without success. As they approached the stranger offered John a five dollar bill if he would secure the owl. John cocked his rifle and walked around the tree. The owl turned his head in the same direction as far as John walked. John kept on going around the tree, the owl turning his head all the while. Just as John completed the tenth circuit the owl's head was twisted off and he fell to the ground dead. John said small owls couldn't be killed that way because their feet would fly up in turning.—Phillips (Me.) Phonograph.

Salaries of Old English Actors. Kean never spent more than two or three thousand pounds upon a revival, and this was considered marvelous in those days. Messrs. Irving and Wilson Barrett have more than doubled such sums. Again, salaries were incomparably smaller. For some time John Ryder, who played second to Kean, received only three pounds ten shillings a week until, discovering that another actor of about equal position was in the receipt of eight pounds, he threatened to break his engagement unless his salary was at once doubled, a request which was complied with. Now such an actor would command from thirty to fifty pounds a week. On the other hand, Kean raised the ballet girls from a shilling a night, their old pay, out of which they had to find shoes and stockings, to a guinea a week, and found them everything.—London Tit-Bits.

Correcting the Teacher. In one of the Springfield grammar schools the teacher was explaining an example in arithmetic on the blackboard, and had finished it with the exception of the last two figures of the answer, which was in dollars and cents, when she was called out of the room. On returning one of the pupils raised her hand and said, "There are some cents to the answer in the book, but there isn't any on the board." "Why, Nellie, what do you mean by speaking to me like that?" the teacher exclaimed in anger. After the school had been in a roar of laughter for fully a minute it dawned on the teacher's mind that it was "cents" instead of "sense" that the girl was talking about.—Springfield Homestead.

Wanted It to Float. Timothy Sheeler had become very rich, but he remained very ignorant. Having traveled about the country by land he began to think he ought to visit the coast states and have a yacht. He consulted his friends on the subject of the kind of boat he should buy. "While you are about it," said one of them, "you'd better get an iron boat." The old man saw in the suggestion only an attempt to play a joke upon him. "What d'ye mean?" he roared. "An iron boat! Have me go sailin' round the world in a cook stove, would ye?"—Youth's Companion.

Superstition About Spiders. Even school boys are led to forego their usual destructiveness when spiders are in question. I remember that when I was a lad at Winchester it was considered a most unucky thing to do any injury to a particularly large kind of spider which is sometimes found in the college buildings, and which went among us boys (or men, as we called ourselves) by the name of a Wykehamist.—Cornhill Magazine.

Sometimes It's a Nuisance. "There is a poetry about the flute that other instruments lack. The divine afflatus has descended upon it." "Well, it takes a very earthy afflatus to make it work."—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Frank Hamilton, a young man of Burlington, O., states that he had been under the care of prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and was not able at that time to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued using it and is to-day enjoying good health. If you have any throat, lung or chest trouble try it. We guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free at F. G. Fricke & Co's drugstore.

The following advertisement, published by a prominent western patent medicine house, was indicated that they regard disease as a punishment for sin: "Do you wish to know the quickest way to cure a cold? We will tell you. To cure a cold quickly, it must be treated before the cold has become settled in the system. This can always be done if you choose to, as nature in her kindness to man gives timely warning and plainly tells you in nature's way, that as a punishment for some indiscretion, you are to be afflicted with a cold unless you choose to ward it off by prompt action. The first symptoms of a cold, in most cases, is a dry, loud cough and sneezing. The cough is soon followed by a profuse watery expectoration and the sneezing by a profuse watery discharge from the nose. In severe cases there is a thin white coating on the tongue. What to do? It is only necessary to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in double doses every hour. That will greatly lessen the severity of the cold and in most cases will effectually counteract it, and cure what would have been a severe cold in one or two days' time. Try it and be convinced." 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co., druggists.

Startling Facts. The American people are rapidly becoming a race of wrecks, and the following suggests the best remedy: Alphonso Hemphill, of Butler, Pa., swears that when his son was speechless from St. Vitus' dance Dr. Miles' great Restorative Nervine cured him.
