To the eidtor of the Plattsmouth Herald, greeting: Can't you work up a scheme, when the Missouri Pacific is finished to your village and the excursionists arrive, to take them a trip to Havelock and show them the immense shops building there for the great Burlington system? They might sympathize with you, you know .- Eaglet of Eagle.

Fret not they gizzard, Brother English. If you would come to Plattsmouth and see the gigantic plant operated by the B & M. here; note the fifteen acres of busy machinery humming with the whir of active life, and the 800 prosperous employes, the little shop at Havelock would not look so large to you. Come down and get acquainted with a live progressive town; you would get over your dyspepsia and would feel much better.

THE PROPER THING.

A Scheme That Beats a Pontoon Bridge.

J. W. Hendee, the popular hardware merchant, at the old Mathews corner, is one of our most energetic citizens. Speaking of a pontoon bridge, Mr. Hendee remarked that we don't want a pontoon bridge just now; the thing to do, says he, is to buy the Petersen ferry, make a landing as near to Main street as possible and make a low round trip rate, just enough to pay actual running expenses, say ten cents or twenty-five cents for a team with load, both ways. That would bring us more trade than we get now from Nebraska, as on the east side of the river Council Bluffs is the only competitor Plattsmouth would have, worthy of mention. We would draw trade for miles and it would get better all the time as the people over there would appreciate our efforts to give them a better market than they now have. To start the matter and show his faith in the enterprise Mr. Hendee will give fifty dollars in cash. Who will do as one that will not cost much and we believe will appeal to the good busi- 77.761, Mr. John McCoy has been ness judgment of our people in a

OUT AT FIRST BASE.

The roaring farce is ended, and John M. Thayer has been chosen governor of Nebraska by a divided court. The HERALD extends its congratulations to the fellows who profit by the change of conditions under the smiles of the executive head center of Nebraska and its ten der condolence with the fellows who lose their grip on the patron age dispensed by the same power It is but a demonstration of the instability of political fortunes. The old wheel revolves with its glittering promises and "now you see if and now you don't. Governor Boyd had a brief taste of power from the mountain top, when democracy and now, at once, like a stick he de cends to the valley of humiliation with his army of camp followers to endure, for a season at least, the hot winds of political discomfiture and misfortune. He will now pose as a martyr and every democratic sheet in the state will shout over the "partisan decision" which relegates the Omaha governor to the shades of private life-at the same time, public opinion will divide upon the legality and fairness of the opposing views expressed by our supreme court. Upon this question THE HERALD refrains from delivering an opinion, as the court has releived us of that responsibility; be sides we have not read the opinions, but we shall have great respect for the same and consider them the honest views of both the majority and minority of that tribunal. Especially will the opinion of Justice Maxwell be considered the honest views of an honest jurist in this community where he is known and admired for his sterling integrity. We hope the present incumbent, General Thayer, will prove a conservative and cautious executive, especially during these revolutionary tiful steamer "Queen of the Blue," times, in political circles. Governor Thayer undoubtedly and at his great age can have no placed at the low figure of 25 cents, ambition except to serve the public that all who desire may be able to wisely and well which we have no doubt he will do.

In brief its provisions are as follows: The farmer can store his grain in the nearest elevator, taking receipt therefor, and wait selling, paying, of course, a nominal charge for storage. His receipts he can, if he chooses, obtain money on them at the local bank, and when he finds it advantageons to the market. The farmer's own judgment is exercised as to the probabilities of a rise or fall in the market, and he may sell outright or store the grain accordingly. The local buyer is also enabled to handle his own grain by forwarding the surplus to some other center of his choice, and take receipts upon) which he can realize, if occasion requires. The interchange of receipts for grain will, to a considerable extent, take the place of actual transfers, and give all parties, from the

LIFE IN CALIFORNIA IN 149.

A State of Society in Which Women Had Little or No Part for a Time.

Life in California was at that time a wild romance. No words of mine can describe the scenes that were enacted aring that chaotic period. Thousands of men, organized in bands or wholly isorganized, were constantly arriving from every part of the world and leaving for the diggings. Outlaws and profeational gamblers opened saloons by the score at every point where men congregated. Money was scattered everywhere as if by the wind. Miners who had realized fortunes in a few days came down to Stockton, Sacramento and San Francisco to squander them in a night. Scarcely a woman was anywhere to be seen. All restraining influences of society were absent, and I cannot find an expression better suited to the case than "Pandemonium on a frolic."

As there were no wives there could be no homes or families. A few stores had been hastily put up along the shore, made of rough boards or canvas, and all of them were doing an enormous business. The rest of the village consisted of shanties or tents used for restauranta and saloons. Human life was a moving panorama. The whole place was alive with a mass of unkempt men clad in flannel shirts and heavy boots, who were inspired with the one desire to hurry on to the mines.

This rough life was not without its touches of sentiment. One day the town was electrified by the rumor that an invoice of women's bonnets had arrived and could be seen at one of the stores. The excitement was intense, and there was a rush from every direction to get a realistic view of even so insignificant a substitute for female society. I do not overstate the truth in saying that the thoughts of home that were awakened in the breasts of the rude looking men at the sight of those bonnets started tears from eyes which the worst forms of privation and hardship had failed to 1 moisten.

The Christian missionary was already on the ground, and good Parson Will-S ous had manages to find a he could preach on Sunday. One of the first men who arrived with his family came to one of these meetings attended by his wife and baby. During the sermon it chanced that thebaby cried, and the mother was about to withdraw, when the preacher addressed her thus: "My good woman, I Beg you to remain; the innocent sound of that infant's voice is more eloquent than any words I can command. It speaks to the hearts of men whose wives and children are far away, looking and praying for a safe return to their own loved ones at nome." Never shall I forget the sobs and tears which those words evoked throughout that rough assembly. That infant's cry seemed to them the music of angels.-John C. Fremont in Century.

A. L. Friend received a nice box of orange blossoms and other flowers from his sister at Riverside, California, the other day that were exquisitely fragrant.

Judge Chapman heard the petition of Prof. Rakestraw last evening, represented by County Attorney Morgan of Otoe, asking for a writ of mandamus against Supt. CAPITAL DRIVEN AWAY FROM THE STATE.

E. H. Dyer & Co., the well known beet sugar manufacturers of California have just closed a contract for the erection of the largest beet sugar plant in the United States at Marshalltown, Iowa, at a cost of $550,000. This identical plant would have been located in Nebraska had not the bounty been removed on beet sugar by the recent abortion, sometimes called a legislature. More than half a million dollars are invested in Iowa and her cities built up all on account of the foolhardy actions of the majority in the last legislature. If only the mullet heads and bass wood statesmen were made to suffer for this sort of legislation it would be well, but the trouble is decent men have to suffer the reverses decreed upon and brainless rogues that assemcloak of "independents" last winter. Give us pestilence, give us famine, but in the name of the blue vault above excuse us from anoth er siegeof "independents."

There will be in all twelve different courses of study in charge of able and enthusiastic instructors.

"A FREE trade organ has just discovered that there is a tariff of 20 per cent on imported snakes, parrots and monkeys. This is another evidence of the awful iniquity of the McKinley bill. By all means give us free snakes and take the tariff off of monkeys."

A DEMOCRATIC organ defines reciprocity as a scheme by which "the fears and necessities of South American countries are to be played upon for our commercial advantage." This is very sad, of course; but there is something still more melancholy, for democraeic newspapers in the fact that it is going to insure the election of another republican president next year.-Ex.

THE HERALD rises to congratulate our friend C. W. Sherman of the Journal on his narrow escape from a membership in the defunct governor's defunct staff.

Antiquity of Fishing.

Probably no branch of industry can lay claim to greater antiquity than that of fishing. Its origin would seem to be coeval with the earliest efforts of human incenuity, for the oldest monuments of antiquity show the fisherman in full possession of the implements of his calling, and even those tribes of savages which have learned neither to keep flocks nor to till the fields are skilled in the fabrication of the hook, the fish spear and the net. The earliest civilization of the eastern Mediterranean was begun with fishing. Sidon, which means "the fishery," was originally a fishing village. and its enterprising inhabitants devoted their attention mainly to the collection of a certain kind of mollusks, from which they prepared the famous Tyrian purple, prized more highly for the richness and variety of its hues than any other dye known to the ancients .- Washington Star.

Theories as to the origin and cause of right handedness may be divided as follows: According to one class of theories, it rests on an anatomical basis and depends on a physical cause which exerts its influence in every one of us. According to another class, man originally had no preference for either hand, but beame right handed by conventional usages, which may or may not have had heir origin in some anatomical features. For any theory of the first class to be satisfactory it must, first, account for difference in sensation as well as in force or dexterity; second, it must account for the occasional appearance of left handedness; and, third, it must not be inconsistent with the fact that most of those who have their organs transposed -the heart on the right, the liver on the left, etc.-are right handed.-Thomas Dwight, M. D., in Scribner's.
