

PEOPLE.
The "Reform" Club is never happy when anything American comes to the front. It is now sending out matter to the Free-Trade press, in which it sneeringly refers to the brand, "Cutlers to the American People," and adds the old matter from the Democratic Handbook of 1891, where Messrs. Landers Frary & Clark are accused of selling goods at export at less than home prices. "Cutlers to the American people" was instantly voted a success by all the "live" press of the country of both parties. Kate Field's Washington, which cannot be accused of Protection proclivities, says:

It is time, by the way, that spades were called spades, even though made in the United States; and when Landers, Frary & Clark of New Britain, Conn., stamped upon the polished steel blades used at this tariff banquet "Cutlers to the American People," they conceived an advertisement which is a stroke of genius. There is far more majesty in the American or any other people than in a patronage, however exalted by birth; and on the dawn of the twentieth century it becomes Republicans to cease worshipping false gods and enter upon an era of self-respect.

In reference to prices for export, Mr. Landers recently said:

What is the use of trying to convince those who won't be convinced by facts. This charge was answered conclusively and in great details by Senator Hiseock in his speech in the United States Senate, on Sept. 10, 1891. Now, let me make an unqualified statement. Our prices for export are not less than our home prices. We will sell for cash in any case a jobbing quantity of goods at export price offered by us that can be produced. What other manufacturers are doing we have no means of knowing, as there is no association, combination, trust or understanding of any name or nature in this line of goods. I do not see how I can put it any stronger, and while on the subject it may not be out of place to say that the advance in the price of table cutlery which was to take place on account of the McKinley bill has not materialized. We did not intend to advance the price, have not advanced it, and do not propose to under the present price of materials and labor; and there seem nothing left to attack us on but exports prices and the fact that we are American manufacturers and believe that the home market is the best market in the world. We would like all the orders we can get for the home market at export prices.—American Economist.

EFFECT OF THE MCKINLEY BILL.

LONDON, June 29.—The Times today referring to the fact that sixty delegates from the tin plate working districts of Wales are going to the United States in order to inquire into the prospects of profitable employment there and to the statement made that American agents in London are buying the latest improvements in tin plate machines as well as offering double wages to tin plate workers, says:

"Should the delegates report favorably upon the prospects for tin plate workers in the United States it is not unlikely that there will be so large an exodus to America as to lead to a great portion of the trade hitherto monopolized by Wales being transferred to America."

"Hitherto, the idea has been that it was impossible to manufacture tin plates in America, owing to atmospheric conditions, but tin plate makers who accompanied the iron and steel institute delegates to America, reported that there was nothing except the want of skilled labor to prevent the successful manufacture of tin plate in America."

JOHN C. KLEIN, the well-known journalist, says the Philadelphia Times, who was married at the Rutgers Riverside Presbyterian church on Wednesday last, is the enterprising American who kicked up the bobby in Samoa a few years ago. Klein was there as a correspondent, espoused the cause of the insurgent Samoans, and thereby became embroiled with the Germans, who were endeavoring to dominate the island. He was with Mataafa's men when the German naval contingent was fired upon, and for a period it was thought that he would become an international issue. Mr. Klein's wife was Miss Ora Cecil Bell Dasant, at one time an actress in Rosina Vokes' company.

ENGLISH VIEW OF TIN PLATE.

The Liverpool Daily Post makes this remark to the Welsh tin plate syndicate:

You must reduce the price of tin plate at once. Every reduction made by you increases the chance of choking down the new American mills for a year or two, when the McKinley law may be repealed.

This is very curious. It indicates that over in England people think there is such a thing as the tin plate trust; and that they also believe that there are new American tin plate mills.

Isn't it possible for the Evening Post to dispose of this double deception, and persuade the English mills here; and there can be none; and that there are no trusts there and can be none?—Rochester Post-Express.

MURRAY BREVITIES.

BY PANSY.

The farmers in this vicinity are behind with their corn plowing some not having cultivated their corn over the first time.

Mrs. E. A. Burton has been enjoying a visit from her mother and sister from Iowa. They returned home last week.

Hon. A Root and family spent last week visiting the family of Mr. Ed Woolsey at Wyoming.

Work will begin Wednesday morning on the new depot here, there will be eight carpenters on hand ready to put the job through.

Cherries are an abundant crop this year and can be bought at the rate of $1.50 per bushel.

We notice by the improvement our city physician Dr. Brendle, is making on his property, that he is a live business man. The new sign on the front of the drug store adds greatly to its appearance.

Miss Grace Dean has been on the sick list, suffering from a sore throat the past week.

Mr. Howard Young and sister Anna returned last Friday from Lincoln, where they have been attending school at Cotner University the past year.

A great many of our farmers are forced to hire extra help to finish their corn as hay harvest has commenced.

Where are we going the Fourth? Most of us will celebrate in your city, we hope to be able to take a ride on the new railroad.

The young people of Murray spent a pleasant evening Monday of this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Root. About 65 were present, ice cream cake and lemonade were the order of the evening.

Dr. Brendle of our city was taken suddenly ill last Sabbath morning and it was feared for a while fatally, a messenger was dispatched at once for a physician from Plattsmouth and his suffering was relieved; the symptoms were neuralgia of the stomach.

Mrs. R. F. Dean is very sick at this writing.

Thought He Knew Every One.

Tom Fletcher had the good fortune to be born in County Kildare, Ireland, and to emigrate to New York at ten years of age. At twenty-five he had attained a six foot physique, a big black beard and a clerkship in "uptown postoffice station Q."

Looking through the little brass bars of the general delivery one day he saw approaching Mr. Barney McGuffin, a fine old Irish gentleman he had known in boyhood. The old man was unchanging, but the boy had outgrown Mr. McGuffin's remembrance.

"I dunno, is it too late for t' stamer th' day?" said the old man as he poked a letter through the bars for "The Widow O'Brien, Carragh of Kildare, Kildare county, Ireland."

"An' is this de Widde O'Brien that lives on d' Ballywink road?" said Tom in his best brogue.

"An' how the devil did you know she lived on d' Ballywink road?"

"That would Oi be doin' in de post orfice at Oi didn't know the Widde O'Brien lived on d' Ballywink road? Git away from d' windy now; you've had y'r toime."

And the old man was frequently seen to stop on the sidewalk and gaze with awe and wonder at the man "what knowed iverybody in Oireland."—Dry Goods Chronicle.

The Post Riley and Mrs. Wilcox. "Can you recall more than a single instance of a man of letters marrying a literary wife?" asked a Chicago writer the other day. "Browning? Yes, I know another instance which comes pretty near it. I do not think the fact is generally known, but James Whitcomb Riley, in the earlier days of his literary career, was a most ardent admirer of Ella Wheeler, the poetess of passion, and a favored suitor for her hand."

"Both the young people were poor, however, and neither had attained a national reputation at that time, although both had written some very charming specimens of verse. I do not know whether Ella ever intended to marry the young Hoosier poet or not, but I do know that young Riley was nearly heartbroken when their cordial relations were sundered."—Chicago Mail.

High Sheriff Benjamin Disraeli.

An Irish antiquarian has discovered that the "Benjamin Disraeli, Esq.," who was high sheriff of the county of Carlow in 1810 was an uncle of Lord Beaconsfield. He is buried in St. Peter's church, Dublin, having died in 1814, aged forty-eight. This Benjamin, of whom none of the writers on Lord Beaconsfield appears to have known anything whatever, left a large fortune, and his will, which is preserved in the Dublin record office, is signed "Benjamin D'Israeli." Lord Beaconsfield once wrote asking for a copy of his uncle's will, but neither his name nor his father's appears in the document. Benjamin D'Israeli the elder was only the half brother of the author of the "Curiosities of Literature."—London Truth.

For all forms of nasal catarrh where there is dryness of the air passages with what is commonly called "stuffed up" especially when going to bed, Ely's Cream Balm gives immediate relief. Its benefit to me has been priceless.—A. G. Case, M. D., Millwood, Kansas.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm and, much to our surprise there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured. O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Are we in it? Are we in it? Are we in it?

Well I should say so, when it comes to wall paper, or wall paper or wall paper, we are clear in it, that is with the largest stock greatest variety and the lowest prices. We call the attention of, and invite, every one to come and examine our stock and prices. Who are we that advertise this? We are the lowest price, and the leading house in the wall paper business, the only small things about us is our prices. Gering & Co., druggist.

TORTURING EXZEMA,

Editor Iowa Plain Dealer Cured of Insufferable Itching and Pain by the Cuticura Remedies.

No Less Than Five Physicians Consulted. Their Combined Wisdom Followed Without Benefit.

I am sixty years old. In August 1889 was troubled with a peculiar skin disease to which people of my age are subject, known among medical men as exzema. Its first appearance was near the ankles. It rapidly extended over the lower extremities until my legs were nearly one raw sore from foot to knee. It tended across the hips, shoulders and the entire length of my arms, the legs and arms bad swollen with an itching burning pain with cessation. Although the best medical advice attainable was employed, no less than five physicians of the place being consulted and the prescriptions being the result of their combined wisdom, the disease though apparently checked would recur in few days as bad as ever. During the progress my weight fell away about twenty-five pounds. As an experiment I began to use of CUTICURA followed the simple and plain instructions given with the CUTICURA and in four weeks found myself well, with skin soft and natural in color the itching and burning ceased. W. E. MEAD, Editor Iowa Plain Dealer, Cresco, Iowa.
