A Prosperous Bee Farm.
The raising of bees, like all other industries, has felt the advantages of modern inventions and improvements. Instead of the old straw hive, with an extra swarm of bees and five or six pounds of honey per year, the modern bee farmer is not satisfied with less than three swarms of bees from his one colony, while he gets from this same colony all the way from fifty to seventy-five pounds of honey.

Having often heard of the successful bee farm of Mr. Jasper Young, who resides in the edge of the timber east of the new fair grounds, a HERALD reporter was detailed to look over and enquire into Mr. Young's methods. We found his bees nicely located in a natural grove near the house, consisting of eighty-five stands—or colonies, as apiarists call them—of the famous Italian bees. The hives were all facing the east, in order to catch the first rays of the morning sun. The hives were all double and were filled in with chaff, thus making them warm for winter and cool for summer, and doing away with the expensive method of wintering in a bee house or cellar, as in this house they require no looking after at all in the coldest weather. Mr. Young uses movable frames in all his hives and puts in a foundation of bees-wax, which some inventive Yankee has made to look exactly like the genuine comb made by the bees themselves.

In his twenty years' experience Mr. Young has learned much that is of interest in relation to the habits of the "busy bee," whose sex is generally of the neuter gender and whose sole ambition is to pile up a miserly store of incomparable sweets. The only female in the whole hive is the Queen, and she is the crowned and undisputed boss of the whole ranch; there is no Mormon business about the bees on that side of the house. The drones are the male bees, from twenty to fifty being often found in one hive; but when they get too thick—as they are idlers—the little workers kill them off and eject them from the hive.

Mr. Young not only markets large quantities of fine honey, but he sells Queens and new colonies all over the west. He sent several stands to Arizona some time ago which were delivered in good condition, although they had to be hauled a number of miles by wagon. His stands of pure Italian bees are thoroughly acclimated in this country and can not be surpassed anywhere in the United States. Those desiring to enter into this profitable and pleasant business can not do better than to purchase their stock of Mr. Young. The "Young" brand of strained honey is known all over as a synonym for purity and excellence. The honey is not strained, as its name would imply, but large sections of well filled comb are shaved over with a sharp knife, removing the caps of the honey cells; it is then placed on end in a large tin can on a revolving disc, which is made to whirl around with such rapidity as to throw the honey all out of the comb. A very cleanly process, which leaves the honey in fine condition for the market. The comb is then returned to the hives and is again filled by the little workers.

A Pleasant Occasion.

Yesterday was the thirtieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Todd, and their friends had planned a surprise for them. Although it failed in being a complete surprise, a royal good time was had. About 1 o'clock their friends began to arrive and for three hours they kept coming, 'til their commodious dwelling, three and one-half miles west of the city, was overflowing with guests, who brought well-filled baskets of everything good to eat.

The afternoon was spent in outdoor games of all kinds by the younger people, while the old settlers gathered around in groups and told stories of olden times, 'til 5:30 o'clock, when supper was announced, and the inner man was supplied with everything that the season produces, after which some of the older ones went home while others staid 'til quite late in the evening.

The bride and groom of thirty years received from their sons a handsome silver set, consisting of sugar bowl, butter dish, cream pitcher and spoon holder, and a set of table linen, while the guests left a handsome antique oak dining room table and chairs.

Following are the names of those present: Messrs. and Mesdames S. M. Chapman, Bird Critchfield, A. N. Sullivan, J. I. Unruh, B. S. Ramsey, J. C. Eikenbary and family, S. A. Davis, Sam Richardson, J. T. Thomas, Sam Thomas, Harry Thomas, Q. K. Paramele, Will Bailey, J. N. Summers, A. B. Taylor, Allen Beeson, — Horsley, I. Isabelle, J. Leach, Tom Williams, J. M. Ellison, Henry Beck, J. W. Todd; Misses Birdie Irish, Jessie Todd, Jessie Quinn, Belle Vrmilyea, Lizzie Leach, Susie Thomas, Fay Thomas; Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. McElwain, Mrs. Miller, Grandma Thomas, and a number of others whose names we failed to get.

Among the donors who failed to be present on account of pressing business and who sent their regrets were Mr. David Miller, Dr. W. A. Humphrey, and Messrs. and Mesdames A. Clark, J. M. Patterson, W. D. Jones, Frank Dickson, M. B. Murphy, C. E. Wescott.

Among the guests there were ten who were there thirty years ago. All went away wishing Mr. and Mrs. Todd many happy returns of the day.

MARRIED.

BRITTEN-SPIRES. Last evening at the residence of J. C. Petersen, Mr. John Britten to Miss Ada Spires' Rev. Burgess officiating. The contracting parties are quite well known in our city and all will doubtless join with THE HERALD in extending congratulations and good wishes.

The happy couple departed this morning on No. 5 for points in western Kansas on a wedding tour, to be gone several weeks. A large company of friends gathered at the train to see them off.

Street Commissioner Poisl has a large force of men at work on North Eighth street this week. They with scrapers and the large road-grader belonging to the county are making long needed repairs which will not only be for the convenience of the traveling public, but will greatly beautify the thoroughfare. Let the good work go on.
