

THE PRIDE OF CASS COUNTY.

A Herald Reporter Visits the New Court House and Describes the Magnificent Structure.

Our readers will readily recognize the below as an exact representation of our magnificent new court house, nearing completion. The "cut" arrived at this office to-day and we hasten to place it before our readers for their criticism or commendation.

A HERALD reporter, in company with Commissioner Todd, made a tour of the new court house this morning with a view of giving our readers an outline of what a visitor at this magnificent and stupendous structure will behold.

The building is 80 feet, 6 inches east and west, by 102 feet north and south. The main square of the building is 49 feet high. The height from the base of the building to the top of the tower is 135 feet, 6 inches. The first, or basement, story is constructed of Bayfield brown stone, received directly from Bayfield, Wis. This stone is of the most durable quality obtainable. The second and third stories are finished with Kansas City pressed brick, embellished with artistic stone trimmings. All the cornices, flashings, valleys and downspouts are constructed of 16-ounce roll copper.

Entering from the south, the first room to the left we find to be the office for county superintendent, 24x29 feet, with a vault at the immediate entrance, 9x15. Passing to the stairs we find the office of county attorney, 20x30, with private office, 10x16; also with a vault, 16x16. Passing on down the hall to the left is situated the office of county surveyor, 20x30, with private office, 10x16, and vault, 16x16. Opposite this office, across the hallway, is located the boiler room. The boiler is 16 feet long and 5 feet in diameter, having all the latest improvements and heating the entire building.

The main entrance to the second floor is from the west. Upon first entering, as we turn to the right, we find the room of the county court, 24x29, with private office, 12x12, and vault, 9x15. It is also supplied with a mantelpiece and grate, appliances used for heating in the event it is not deemed practicable to use the steam heaters. In the southeast corner of the building is situated the office of county clerk, 20x31, with a private office, 10x16. The entrance to the vault, 15x15, is from the main office. Passing to the north from the county clerk's office is located the office of the county commissioners, 19x24, with two wardrobes and mantelpiece. Passing thence to the northeast corner of the building we find the office of treasurer, 20x31, with private office, 10x16, with entrance to the vault, 15x15, from the main office. Passing across the hall to the northwest corner of building we find the office of recorder of deeds, 20x31, supplied with private office and vault the same as other offices. At the north end of the hall is located the water closets with all the modern improvements. This completes the tour of the second floor.

Passing up the stairs to the third floor to the left in the southwest corner of the building is situated the equity court room 20x30, provided with closets, mantel piece and suitable furniture. Passing across the hall to the southeast corner is the office of sheriff. The main room is 18x18 with private office 12x18. Passing through to the north opposite the main entrance directly in front of the main entrance is the office of district clerk 19x20 with private office 10x12, vault 15x15; also, an entrance is provided into the main court room. The with the American plate glass, used in the building. There is little doubt that it excels imported glass, in every particular. The rooms are well supplied with radiators and the heating apparatus to be superintended by Mr. Hemple will amply warm the entire building. They will be tested this afternoon for the first time.

The citizens of Cass county are to be congratulated upon having secured so creditable a building. The county commissioners also, are entitled to credit for having performed the arduous duties attending its construction, to the satisfaction of all and doubtless they feel delighted at the measure of success that has attended their efforts.

Last Days of Pompeii.
Lord Lytton's beautiful romance has delighted and enthralled thousands, and John Palmer has sought to enhance this delight by his dramatization of the noble's idol. He has translated the inanimate characters and made them living, breathing, speaking beings. Be the critic ever so harshly inclined, he could fail to criticize with aught but praise. As the Egyptian priest, Mr. Palmer makes and ideal Arbaces. He is gifted by nature with a classic brow, a fierce penetrating eye that seems to glitter and flash till it fairly burns into the observer's brain, and a power to portray the ardent worshipper of mother Egypt most successfully. The crafty, calculating man whose sensual desires and animal appetite have warped all the nobility of his nature and destroyed the grand possibilities of a wonderful intellect, was impersonated to perfection. Throughout the company was a fine one.—Davenport (La.) Republican.

THE TETRIX.

Dewy and fragrant was the twilight falling
Upon the wide sweep of the Argive plain.
But, from the slender reapers calling,
No night bird voiced its immemorial pain.

Yet, clear and sweet, harmonious and winning—
Beneath the moonlight's silvery gleam—
The tireless tetrix with its violin
Filled all the sundown silence near and far.

And we, who loved the blithe note of the cricket
Beside the hearth when autumn days were bleak,
Hearing this homelike sound from mead and thicket,
Felt in our hearts a kinship for the Greek.
—Clinton Scollard in Lippincott's.

Glad He Had Been Bluffed.
It's essentially a story of Chicago. A rather shabby looking man walked into the office and took a chair beside the big desk.

"I'm a little hard up," he said, "and if you could let me have $100 for a short time I think it would tide me over."

The man behind the desk looked at his caller and became reminiscent.
"Why, I haven't seen you for years," he said. "Let me see! You used to call down at my farm in the old days when I was located near Forty-first street."

"Yes," said the caller; "I drove down there one day with a party of friends and filled up with some of your cherry brandy."

"I remember it perfectly," said the man behind the desk. "After you had taken a little of it you wanted to buy the farm."

"And you wanted $3,000 for it," said the caller.
"And you agreed to take it," added the man behind the desk.

"I did," admitted the caller, "and you came to my office the next day."
"Yes, and you swore you wouldn't take it as a gift."

"And you declared you had witnessed to my agreement to buy."
"But you bluffed me off," "I did," admitted the caller.

"Well," said the man behind the desk, "I don't mind paying you $300 for bluffing me off. The farm has made me rich."

Men Who Wear Small Hats.
I never saw an earnest worker, or a man who had real and serious duties to perform, who wore a hat too small for him.

Many great lawyers and statesmen, cranks but shrewd speculators, popular preachers, and history making generals and editors wear hats too large for them—sometimes so large that they act as extinguishers and are stopped in their downward course only by the projection of the ears; but I never saw one who wore a hat too small, perched upon the top of his head. Indeed, I might assert as a positive and invariable fact that, save in cases of dire necessity, such as shipwrecks or utter and hopeless poverty, the man who wears a hat too small for him is a silly, frivolous, conceited creature, with no serious ideas on any subject, and only the most flippant and shallow views of life and its obligations. Even among tramps and vagabonds, the fellow with the "dinky" derby balanced upon his mop of unkempt hair, is the most hopeless wreck among his class; while there is always a gleam of intelligence, a spark of hope, in the tramp whose hat is too large for him.—Kate Field's Washington.

Never Heard of Him.
Telegraphers' stories are unique sometimes, and they do not hesitate to tell them to one another. It is said that the operators in New Haven, having always lived there, seldom hear of anything beyond the limits of the city and their operating rooms. The fact was illustrated recently when an operator in New York remarked to the man he was working with in New Haven that Parnell had just died.

"Who?" was the inquiry.
"Parnell," was the reply.
After a short interval, during which, it is supposed, the New Haven operator was in conference with somebody, this message was sent: "If you mean P. T. Barnum, we heard that long ago, but no one knows who Parnell is."—Telegraph Age.

New Alloys.
Two new alloys for making boring and cutting tools have been invented in England. The metal equals steel in hardness and temper, and does not lose its temper when heated by friction. The alloys consist of pig iron, ferro-manganese, chromium and tungsten in proper proportions, melted together in crucibles under stick charcoal and calcined borax. This compound is then remelted with bar iron and proportions of nickel, copper and aluminum are added. It is then cast in sand molds.—New York Times.

Stage Coach Dreams.
Losses are presaged by a dream of riding in a stage coach. If you run after one you will be out of employment for a long season. To see one pass will rid you of troublesome friends. If you are in a stage coach and it turns over without injuring you, you will be lucky in your speculations, but if you dream that you are killed by the fall you must expect misfortunes.—New York Herald.

The Matching Habit.
A woman brought a small sugar coated pill into a South End drugstore the other evening and wanted a box of pills just like them, under the impression that matching pills was as simple a matter as matching ribbons.—Springfield Home-Stead.

In appearance the ordinary truffle is about the size of a walnut, with a rough, brown, warty surface, closely akin to the potato, which it likewise resembles in consistency, though not in color.

The largest building that ever was erected was the machine gallery at the Paris exhibition, which was exactly a quarter of a mile in length, with a span of 360 feet.

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep and had to walk the floor. I purchased Fly's Cream Balm and am using it freely, it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the medicine above all other for catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.
