A Religious Debate.

A religious debate is in progress at Elmwood between Elder Atlen pastor of the Baptist church at Union, and Rev. Porter, of Saline county, of the Mormon persuasion. The discussion began Tuesday night, and, unless the time as originally set has been extended, the debate closed last evening. In his report of the discussion to the Union Ledger, an Elmwood correspondent has the following to say of the debate:

"The speakers have so far been kind and patient toward each other came in from Chicago this morning, and have demonstrated the fact called hither by the severe illnes of that debates can be held without personal spite. As to their abilities, Elder Porter comes as a representative of his faith, is English by birth, and is a fine speaker, and while he seems to understand his business from his standpoint, he is not a sparkling orator, but a genial and companionable man. As to Elder Allen, he needs no commendation from me. He is a man whose reputation as a skilled, fair and scholarly debater stands in the front ranks, and in this debate he has more than met the expectations of his friends, and last night his onslaughts were so fearful and unanswerable that his opponent seemed to sit and gaze with amazement, and yet while Allen shredded the Mormon claims as by a whirlwind, his bearing toward his opponent was that of a friend and brother, and he plainly stated to the congregation that if they came to hear the Mormon prophet villified they might as well go home He has now in this debate the admiration of even his opponents as a man who stands above personal prowess or vindictive slang."

John Monroe Instantly Killed While Making a Coupling at the B. & M. Yards.

From Tuesdays Davig Our citizens were horrified last John Monroe, a switchman at the B. & M. yards, had been instantly killed. The corpse was at once taken in charge by Coroner Unruh and conveyed to apartments over his place of business. As it lay upon a stretcher it indeed presented anything but a pleasing scene The head was crushed into an unthe extreme, Evidences that the car-wheel had passed partly over

The accident happened a few minutes before 7 last evening. The unfortunate man was attempting to couple a flat to a box car. The timbers, which projected over the at litst was, though that view has jury, that as he stepped between the cars his head was caught by one of the timbers and jammed against the car with great force. Brakeman Wilson stated that he stood within eight or nine feet of the man at the time of the acc dent and he saw the timber jam his head against the car and as the train slacked he immediately dropped to the ground. Others testified before the coroner's jury that the wrinkled women lead up very young injury was more probably caused men, holding their arms as if they might by the car wheel.

THE COMING MAN.

A pair of very chubby legs, Encased in scarlet hose; A pair of little stubby boots, A little kilt, a little cont, Cut as a mother can-And lof before us stands in state The future's "coming man."

His eyes, perchance, will read the stars And search their unknown ways: Perclance the human heart and soul Will open to their gaze; Perchance their keen and flashing gland)

Those eyes that now are wistful bent On some "big fellow's" kite. Those hands-those little busy hands-

So sticky, small and brown;

Those hands whose only mission seems To pull all order down-Who knows what latent strength may be Hidden within their clasp, Though now 'tis but a taffy stick In sturdy hold they grasp.

Ah, blessings on those little hands, Whose work is yet undone! And blessings on those little feet, Whose race is yet unrun! And blessings on the little brain That has not learned to plan! Whate'er the future holds in store, God bless the "coming man!"

At a Marriage Liceuse Window.

A marriage license window is a queer place, and one at which human nature is bared to official inspection as it seldom is in any other government office. Hither come the gossips to ask whether certain couples whose names were published the other day have yet got married; to ask what sort of a looking man it was who took out a license to wed end of the car and the presumption with Susie Told-was be tall and light or stout and dark? And hither come anbeen disproved by the coroner's gry mothers to say that no permit should have been given for their daughters, who are not so old as was said. They ask how the law can be invoked to punish the offending bridegrooms. But there are other brides who appear to be forty or thirty, yet declare themselves thirty or twenty.

Back comes a man to ask if his permit number cannot be changed, because he wants to buy a lottery ticket of the same number as his wedding license, and cannot do so unless a change is made. Old men speak for girlish brides, and ancient escape. Once a girl came weeping, and said the man she meant to marry lay dying, and there was not a moment to lose. Indeed, it is a queer place, and the whole illimitable gamut that novelists have spanned in many centuries is there at dozen witnesses were examined and hand still sounding fresh notes and offering new chords.-Julian Ralph in Harper's Weekly.

How Muskrats Are Trapped.

Trapping is one of the modes by which muskrats are secured. The traps are made of boards about 6 inches wide and 3 feet long. These are nailed together like an ordinary box trap, the open ends being secured by swinging doors of wire network, fastened to the upper part of both entrances. These doors allow easy ingress to the trap, but once in the rat cannot get out without opening the door by pulling it to him, which secret they seem very slow to discover. These traps are put in the leads running from the houses to the water when the tide is at low ebb and the rats are out feeding. On the return they crawl up the leads, push against one of the wire doors of the trap, which immediately opens into the trap, but they cannot go further, a the next door opens toward them. Before they can gnaw out the tide makes up and they are drowned in the trap. By having a number of traps and watch The deceased is a young man, ing the tides closely a trapper can capture a large number in this way.-Baltimore Sun.

Judged by His Appearance.

An amusing incident occurred some time ago which illustrates the scanty ceremony with which shabbily dressed people are often treated. A country magnate in the north of England was called upon with reference to a scheme for the furtherance of some local charity by a person whom the servant, judging by his timeworn habiliments, described tout for orders," adding that he had left bim in the hall, not thinking it safe to show him into one of the rooms. The "beggar or tout" turned out to be no less a personage than the member for the district, and one of the richest men in the county.-London Tit-Bits.

He Couldn't Be Frightened.

A small boy on Sixth street hates the washing process worse than snakes. His mother was scrubbing him and he was kicking.

"Why don't you be a good boy," she begged. "Don't you know that you'll go to the bad place if you are not?" "There ain't any water there, is there?"

he asked. "Not a drop," she answered solemnly. "Then I guess I'll keep on being bad." And he kept on .- Detroit Free Press.
