TO THE SILVER MEN IN CONGRESS

What the country has to say to these men is simply the direction spoken of old to Judas, "That thou doest, do quickly." Let not long debate and uncertainty prostrate business throughout the land. The prospects of trade and industry are now exceptionally bright. A long contest about the silver question would almost inevitably shake confidence and afrest business. Play the political game the harm to business as brief and little as possible. Send the bill to the senate in a single day; what is ively discussed last year and then he will not take weeks or even days in construction to the Monte Generoso to make up his mind what to do railway. to make up his mind what to do, congress may be sure. The republican party is exceedingly willing to meet this issue before the people. All it has to ask is that the industries and trade of the country shall be harmed as little as possible while the question is pending in congress. After that the democrats will see how wise they have been. -New York Tribune.

ANOTHER TREATY.

Secretary Blaine has once more demonstrated his astuteness of diplomacy. The French want a new commercial treaty. As they in its action. Many persons come to me nave no beet sugar to sell, and their exports of teas, coffees and other articles covered by the reciprocity clause of the McKinley bill are infinitesimal, that portion of the measure furnishes no adequate basis for a new treaty. When the French government forced through the senate of France the removal of the embargo on American pork it was understood that the United day. Will you buy me one, mamma? States would not be satisfied with it because the duty of more than two and one-half cents per pound was almost prohibitory. The statement then made was that when the restrictions were once formally removed by the concurrent action of the chamber of deputies and the senate the government would apply itself toward securing a reduction of the duty. France desires to get her wines, silks and other products into the United States on more favorable terms than her rivals can. To do this she is willing to reduce the duty on American cereals, breadstuffs and meat products. The agricultural products in France have hitherto opposed any reduction in the duty of agricultural imports into that country. > Warning Against Antipyrine. Let me say something about the indiscriminate use of antipyrine. I think it is villainous. Its use should be restricted like laudanum and morphine, and used only upon a physician's prescription. People use it carelessly, not knowing that it is a heart depressant and cumulative and say that they have been using ten grains every three or four hours, and without any idea of the harm it does. 1 came across two or three deaths last year directly due to its use. Too much cannot be said about the danger from its indiscriminate use,-Interview in Philadelphia Press.

Letters That Never Came.

They tell a funny story of a man who rented a box in the postoffice awhile ago. He appears to have been now to the business and failed to get the bang of the thing After a month er so he called on one of the postoffice efficials and began to kick about the box. "The blamed thing never had any mail in it," was his complaint.

"I have looked in that box every since I rented it and it hasn't had a thing in it the whole time. Leven addressed a letter to myself and never heard from it." The two took a look at the box and the postoffice man inquired if the box renter had ever opened his box Why. no; of course not. Couldn't he see that there wasn't anything in it. Of course it turned out that he had forgotten the number of his box though it was on his receipt, and had been watching and swearing over an unrented one. He found a stock of mail in his box at last and went away feeling small enough to crowd inside of it.-Buffalo

The Wooden Indian.

I used to live in Spain, and afterward in the West Indies, before I came to the States. I met the wooden Indian long before I came to this country. I have been asked before where the wooden indian got his start. I only know what I have heard about him in the Old World. There was an adventurer named Rutz who left his old city, Barcelona, and came to Virginia 300 years ago. When he returned he executed the wooden Indian in a rude way, as a type of the sort of animal he had met in the New World, and the figure was set up in front of a shop where wine was sold. Finally it became a sort of trademark. There were smokers in those days and they assembled around the indian. And the wooden Indian is now seen in front of nearly every cigar store. -Interview in Chicago Tribune.

Walted Until the Child Was Safe.

An interesting little war story has Governor Jones, of Alabama, for its hero. At the time Gordon was resisting Sherman's advance, Jones, then a staff captain, was delivering a message from his chief when he saw a little child, clad only in night clothes, hiding in terror behind a frame house in the direct range of the bullets from each army. Jones rode forward, took the child on his horse and galloped back with her to the Confederate line. When the Union forces saw the act they ceased firing, and there was an impromptu cessation of hostilities until the child had been carried to a point of safety.-Charleston News and

The Greek Dress for Women.

It is not to be wondered at that those women who care for their beauty rather than for style in their active should again and again revert to the idea of introducing among English ladies the praceful fashions of ancient Greece The flowing draperies and cumming folds in which the rope of the Athenian may was arranged formed the very idea of a suitable attire for women, if they studied only the art of making them selves appear charmon

That the Greek bereally the only mode sufficiently attested by the fact that in woman of taste wishing a hile size status of herself to be made would think of arraying berself in any other fushion of clothing. How would the bodice, show or long in basque, according to the prevailing style, the full straight skir or tim flowneed petricost, the tight laced waist and the peaked shoulders, appear when chiseled in marble or rendered in brouze. So far, however, the demanfor classic ideals has been made in vain The attempts to revive the beautiful beautions of the Greek women have been desultory and infrequent, and the few ladies who have tried the experiment have either been soon fired by the extra trouble involved and annoyed by the nodefile I stopped, turned round, saw all the gessed sufficient social importance for their example to be largely followed --

> To Catch Those Shamuing Deafness. "That no man is proof against the lovof money is evidenced by the ease will which a physician can expose a man who is feigning deafness," says Dr. Wal-face Smyth. "A man can pretend to be deficient in any one of the senses, and it is sometimes necessary to subject him to an electric shock to break down his self erected barrier. But if a man who is pretending to be deaf is approached from behind while standing on a stone floor or sidewalk and a coin is dropped o as to ring, he will invariably turn harply around with a view to picking

> "This simple device is frequently resorted to in countries where conscription is the rule and where deafness of my other infirmity relieves a man from army service. I saw it tried in Paris on six alleged youths, and, much to the exaudning physician's amusement, it suc ceeded in exposing the sham every time. -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

We Are Larger Than We Used to Be. "It is a great mistake," says an architect, "to suppose that men are becoming smaller physically. When I was in Europe, in Munich, we gave a grand ball and the city authorities decided to let the artists have the use of the medigeval armor stored in the museum there. There were only two suits of armor which could be worn by us. These were the suits of giants of that time. The rest, which belonged to the ordinary sized, strong mediæval soldiers, were too small for us. Would not this tend to show that we are larger than our ancestors were?"—Detroit Free Press.
