Resolved, That ex-Commissioner General Greer be requested to furnish the commissioners by April 5 1892, a full and complete report of all his doings and actions as commissioner general; also to furnish a full and complete itemized statement of all sums of money received and from whom; also the amount expended and for what purpose, to whom paid during his term of office; also to turn over to his successor in office all moneys, furniture, property and other belongings to the commission. Resolved, That the secretary be instrected to forward a copy of this resolution to Mr. Greer.

The following resolution was accepted and adopted by his colleagues: Resolved, Tnat the Nebraska educational exhibit be made in the Liberal Arts building in connection with the educational exhibits of other states, as required by the rules prescribed by the national board of control, and that energetic efforts be made to have the exhibit in keeping with the excellence of our educational system, and that we earnestly invite the hearty co-operation of all educational institutions in the state in our efforts to make a creditable snowing of Nebraska's advancement and liberality in educational development, and that we will extend all financial aid possible to accomplish that end. Resolved, That application be immediately made for 3,000 feet of floor space in the Liberal Arts building, to be used for the Nebraska educational exhibit.

On motion of Commissioner Weiss the secretary was instructed to forward a copy of the resolutions passed yesterday to President Strang calling for an itemized statement of the financial affairs of his official career and a full statement of all his doings.

The afternoon session was spent in informal discussions of ways and means and worrying over the following telegram from Garneau, who went to Chicago yesterday: "Burnham in Boston, Returns Monday, From what his chief clerk says he don't think Woods' plans suit.

Silver Wedding.

On Thursday, the 17th inst., Mr. and Mrs. William Morrow cele brated their silver wedding, surrounded by their interesting family and a large number of their friends and neighbors. The day was cold and disagreeable, but this fact did not keep away relatives and friends from a distance, and at least one hundred people were present to offer congratulations and join in the festivities of the day.

There is not a household in this community which is better known or more respected than "the Morrow's," they having lived here for years, and, while Mr. Morrow has accumulated quite a considerable share of this world's goods, it has been done without injury to his neighbors. During his entire life he has had time, while caring for his own interests, to help his fellow men, and there is not a member of his family but will follow his most worthy example. The refreshments prepared for the occasion were of the highest order and ample to satisfy the demands of all present. We venture to say that never were congratulations more sincere or heartfelt than those offered Mr. and Mrs. Morrow that day by their friends, and the the Banner begs to join in the wish that a long life of happiness and $1,000 perhaps if another can be got to prosperity may be in store for them. match it perfectly.-Kansas City Times. -Murray Banner.

Women's Ways.

Women have their own ways of keeping their consciences clear and their minds freed from all uncharitablen as One woman when she encounters a disagreeable person goes off into a corner and counts off on her fingers the agreeable people she knows. This she does not in effect, but literally as she might tell her beads, and she keeps on doing it until the image of the disagreeable one is effaced. Another woman in the presence of an unusually annoying circumstance was observed to unbook and rehook her gown. The rehooking miscarried several times to her great impatience. She was asked why then had she unbooked it. Her answer was that hooks and eves were the most disagreeable things ever invented. One always began to hook them in the middle, and the chances were ten to one that you linked the wrong pair. But this you did not know until you were half through and one side came out ahead. So with that, and the strain upon your fingers, you were naturally exasperated, and as they were only hooks and eyes it didn't much matter what you said. With the chance to free your mind other disagreeable things seemed almost pleasant.

It will be observed that it occurred to neither of these women, who were both religious, to fall on their knees and ask in the old fashioned way to be delivered from anger and ill feeling. This was not because they distrusted the efficacy of this method, but simply because they hadn't at the moment, and seldom had, the time or place. Also, both being scientific minded the one knew that in thought as in physics two beings cannot occupy the same space at the same time, and so pried out one thought with another; while the other, by simply transmuting her angry force from an incorporeal offense to hooks and eyes, had the relief of its expenditure without its sin.-New York Evening Sun.

Such a Romantic Affair.

She was a convalescent from la grippe, and as she leaned back in the depths of her easy chair she played with the roses in her lap, which had been brought her by the first caller she had been able to receive, and smiled over some stories he was telling her of a summer at-well, we'll only say at a certain fashionable watering place on Narragansett bay. 'One of the beauties whom I used to see at the casino," said he, "was a young married belle about twenty-three or four, I should think, and her husband was about sixty, and it was great fun watching them. There was such a good story, bona fide truth it was, too, about their engagement. He called at her home one evening and offered his heart, hand and fortune in correct style. Pretty Miss Bud said she 'must ask mamma,' and coyly tripped up stairs to mamma, who told her that every girl did not get such a chance as that, and of course she was to accept him.

"Down she went, picturing the ardent lover awaiting her return with anxious, throbbing heart and found the old gentleman comfortably asleep in the biggest armchair, while an occasional snore attested to the depth of his slumbers.' "I hope she didn't wake the poor old meet in convention in the city of sion. The $5,000 allowed for the thing up," said the convalescent, when Falls City, Wednesday, April 20, first year have about evaporated, she got her Lreath again after her laugh. 1891, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., for the and their is nothing on the records "Oh, yes she did. Catch her losing that to show where much of the money | chance! She woke him up and told him it was all right and she'd have him."-Boston Saturday Gazette.

Thackeray's Realism.

Thackeray is verily as great a realist as a great artist can be. He prides himself on presenting life as it is, unseasoned by the hot spices of artificial romance. Nay, he employs devices to entrap the credulity of the reader-the device, for example, of making Arthur Pendennis, whom we know independently, tell the story of his young friend Clive Newcome, and the noble, meek hearted gentleman with whom he had seen the boy at the Cave of Harmony.

Yes, Thackeray is a great realist, if ever there was one. His characters are no decorative figments to amuse our fancy. They have become some of the men and women we know best-personal friends or foes of our own. It consoles us for living in these late days of a reformed parliament that we have lived late enough to have known Colonel Newcome. They were no tears of unreal sentiment that we wept over his martyrdom; it was a very genuine itch we felt to kick Barnes. - Blackwood's Magazine.

The Necessity of the Times. Inventive faculty will not have reached high tide until some one perfects an envelope flap warranted to stick. One of the considerable discomforts of life takes the form of a nonadhesive mucilage that allows the envelope upon which it is placed to peel open again and again as it is pressed down, until in a fine frenzy the letter writer is driven hither and you for real mucilage. And the finer the quality of the stationery the more trials lie in the wake of the envelope.

If they are trusted to the mails with out an extra dab of mucilage, they may be depended upon to arrive at their destination invitingly open-or accessible to the sneakish individual, who in spite of our civilization does exist, who is capable of going against all written and unwritten laws and tampering with a seal. A padlocked envelope is one of the necessities of the times. - Boston Commonwealth.
