

STILL ON GUARD

The Strikers Will Still Keep Their Pickets on Guard.

TRYING TO SECURE NON-UNION MEN

The Militia Take the City Without the Formality of a Music and Flower Reception--War-ran's Issued For the Leaders.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 12.—The night passed quietly. All Homestead was in holiday attire this morning in anticipation of the militia. It was expected the troops would arrive by daybreak and the people turned out in anticipation of that event, ready to welcome the blue-coated representatives of the state with a procession, brass bands, school children and flowers, but the situation became somewhat ludicrous as the hours passed and the militia did not appear. The bands did their best to keep up the spirits of the multitude, with indifferent success. It was 11 o'clock when the cry went up "The troops are coming!"

The troops arrived by train from their rendezvous at Queensburg and consisted of the Second and Third brigades, numbering 3,000 men under command of General Snowden, together with two galling guns and three field pieces. Their sudden arrival in the absence of the leaders of the strikers disconcerted the programme for the reception and the soldiers evidently did not desire such treatment from the men whom they were sent there to keep in order. They were received with perfect respect and here and there an attempt at a cheer was set up by the on looking populace.

The troops descended from the train, formed silently and marched in perfect order to take possession of the mills, displayed artillery across the Monongahela, opposite the mills, set pickets all about the works and settled the question of taking the town by marching one company direct to the strikers headquarters, another to the vicinity of the depot and a third to a slight eminence overlooking and commanding the commercial center of the town, then Homestead was in the hands of the military and martial law had succeeded the arbitrary reign of the advisory committee.

The citizens of Homestead are deeply disappointed that the militia thought it necessary to occupy the whole town, instead of confining themselves to the mills, but gave no open evidence of the fact. It was a complete acquiescence in the power of the state, and they gracefully accepted the inevitable.

The battery across the river commanded the whole town as well as the Carnegie works.

When the troops arrived, the strikers' pickets, located in the neighborhood, left their posts and congregated to watch the soldiers. The strike leaders at once sent them back to their stations, telling them they had no business to leave their posts, and instructing them not to let any non-union man or detective through their lines. The leaders told them the troops would not interfere with them in this. Similar instructions were given the other watchmen, and the strikers' picket was re-formed outside of the picket of the troops.

What They Will Do.

PITTSBURG, July 12.—President Weir of the amalgamated association, substantially admitted this morning that the workmen in all of the Carnegie plants, to the aggregate number of 30,000, would be called out if the company attempted to start up the Homestead mills with non-union men.

The congressional investigating committees arrived at noon and held a preliminary conference with Carnegie's attorney and others. The attorney said the company would like the fullest investigation and that Frick would appear before the committee and testify. The committee went to Homestead this afternoon and will begin the taking of evidence at 4 p. m.

After Non-Union Men.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A Philadelphia dispatch says a representative of Carnegie arrived here this morning to engage non-union men for the mills. He says an attempt will be made to resume work at once.

Still on Guard.

Patrols of the strikers outside of the town and railroad depots will be continued, and every effort will be made to keep the Pinkerton watchmen and non-union workmen out of the town.

"We are not going to commit suicide," said O'Donnell, "and consequently bow to the inevitable. The troops will be here for about ten days, it is said, at an expense of $22,000 per day. How long will the taxpayers stand that, and when the troops go away, as eventually they must, how will the situation be changed?"

O'Donnell and other members of the advisory committee are of the opinion that the works will at once be filled up with non-union men, but they decline to discuss how they will meet and solve the problem.

"We will not be beaten," O'Donnell remarked, confidently, "and the result will prove it. Now we will take much needed rest and wait for the next chapter in the story."

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

Go and See.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Washington, June 10, 1892.

Rev. Benjamin F. Diffeubacher, Sir—I had the pleasure of seeing your views and hearing your lecture in this city on the 6th inst. and take pleasure in saying to you that I was both pleased and surprised with it. I am familiar with most of the scenes you exhibited; dead, indeed, must be the man whose patriotism is not stirred by the sights and scenes so graphically portrayed.

Cold is the heart whose pulses are not quickened by the scenes that have passed into the nation's history from the days of Washington with their simplicity to the better, brighter and grander days of the present.

It is indeed a great portrayal of a great nation's succeeding conflicts, and successive triumphs. It speaks to us of the past, calls attention to the grand present, and bids us hope for a glorious future.

The lecture brings to us again the words of the good men of the past.

We left at the close feeling that this is an age in which to live, is indeed sublime.

I am, sir, yours truly,

W. A. McKEIGHAN.

Gone but not Forgotten.

Fade, fade each earthly joy; heaven is mine.

Yes, mother has gone but there stands her arm chair

And we prize it far more than gold.

For while sick and sad there so patient and kind.

But her sufferings can ne'er be told.

When we enter her room and find her not there.

It is then that we miss her sweet face.

And many's the tear that we shed for her.

For no one can fill mother's place.

What a comfort it was to kneel by her side

And listen to the sweet, earnest prayer.

So when she was called from her loved ones away.

Again they would meet over there.

Although friends may speak both loving and kind.

And try to keep sad thoughts away.

It's a mother that's gone and we can't but weep.

For a while yet on earth we must stay.

Her last request was her son to see.

And he came, but short was her stay.

For she was then ready and waiting to go.

To dwell in a home far away.

The husband and father with children is left

To mourn for the one that is gone.

But soon may we meet where parting's no more.

Where sickness and death cannot come.

The form that lies buried was one we loved well.

It was a treasure just lent, not given.

And now she's sleeping that long peaceful sleep.

May her children all meet her in heaven.

Rest, weary one, rest.
