YOUTHFUL CONVICT PARDONED.

Ill and Dying, He is Born Home on a Stretcher.

From Monday's Daily.

A wan faced, hollow eyed youth reclining on a stretcher at the B. & M. depot yesterday afternoon, tenderly cared for by his father and brother-in-law, formed a pathetic picture that enticed sympathy from all beholders. The pleading eyes of the suffering boy served as mute conveyance of misery, for his tongue was stilled by desease that may end in eternal silence.

The name of the unfortunate youth was Micheal Cochran, and he was being taken to South Omaha by his father and brother-in-law, Bailiff Spaulding of Omaha, having been released from the penitentiary by a pardon issued by Governor Boyd. The young man was serving a twelve years sentence and has been in the prison about four months. He was convicted of assaulting a Swede at South Omaha with almost fatal results, and of robbing him. Other young men were known to have been implicated and it is claimed that Cochran was innocent of the crime. For several weeks he has been in the hospital unable to speak or take nourishment on account of an ailment resembling paralysis. He is only eighteen years old and goes home to fight the battle of life or death. —Lincoln Journal.

Don't go Now.

Saturday evening a stranger went into the fruit store at the corner of Third and Main streets, and bought ten cents worth of fruit, handing the proprietor a $20 Confederate bill. The Italian took the bill and gave him ten dollars in change and said he would go out and get the rest for him. The stranger said that wasn't necessary as he would be in Sunday morning to buy a bill of goods of him, and he would pay him $10 in advance, and then left the store. The Italian in a short time ran short of change and started out with his $20 Confederate bill to get it changed and soon found he had been swindled. Then there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth at Mike Conaly's fruit stand, indulged in by the whole family. In the meantime the fellow had skipped and has not been heard of since.

HE HELD UP HIS END

Hon. Roswell G. Horr Told How the Tariff Was a Benefit.

DEALT WITH FACTS, NOT THEORIES

Ex-Congressman Horr Gives the Democrats and "Calamity Howlers" a Black Eye—A Few Facts Concerning the Tariff.

From Tuesday's Daily.

Despite the intense heat last night a large audience was present at the Waterman opera house to listen to Hon. Roswell G. Horr expound good republican doctrine.

Judge Chapman was selected and presided over the meeting, and, in introducing the speaker, said that we were on the eve of another presidential election, and that as there were several questions of vital importance at issue which could be better explained by the ex-congressman than anyone he knew of, he would not detain them any longer.

Ex-Congressman Horr spoke about two hours. He did not deal in theories, but in facts, and the way he handled his subject was a caution. He is a well-read man and has the tariff question down to a fine point. Those who failed to hear him missed a rare treat. As hot as it was in the opera house last night he held the audience spellbound for two hours. Following is a part of what he said:

"There was a strange thing happened in the outset of the campaign this year, and that is the fact that our democratic friends, when they formulated their platform at Chicago, the committee made a report. The majority of that committee were in favor of a tariff, a plank which had been prepared by the men who won their purpose to nominate a candidate, who was nominated, and that plank in the platform states that they were in favor of levying duties so as to protect the working people of this country, and that they were in favor of destroying the tariff only so fast as the best interests of these United States would warrant; but the democratic party, in convention, struck that proposition out, eliminated it from the platform, and by a large majority voted in a square free trade proposition that the protective tariff is robbery, and they even went so far as to state it was unconstitutional. Now it is quite a mystery to a good many people why that convention should declare the protective tariff unconstitutional. It bothered me at first to find out how such a thing happened, but I think I struck the reason for it. The constitution, the one adopted by the rebels, which went into force at Richmond, had a clause in it prohibiting the levying of protective duties, and the delegates in that convention, so many of them had served under the Confederate constitution, that they got their constitutions kind of tangled up and then passed their resolution. They passed the one which would have been true under the Confederate constitution, but which is not true as applied to our constitution, because in fact there is not a syllable of the kind in the work. Why, don't you know that Washington, who presided over the convention that adopted our constitution, that he signed the first protective bill that ever was signed in the United States, and it was the second bill signed after he became president, and nearly every man who sat in that convention that framed the constitution was in that very congress and voted for that very bill. Now, don't you think that men who helped frame the constitution should know as much about what is constitutional as those fellows at Chicago? It seems to me they did. Then there is another trouble. They had a leaky roof in their wigwam at Chicago, and just as they were putting that plank in the platform the roof came down and flooded the whole house with water, and too much water will cause democratic confusion any time."

After stating the relative positions of the two great parties he stated that if there was any one thing he was posted on it was salt, for over one million barrels of that article were made last year in sight of his door.

"In 1861 salt was worth $2.50 per barrel in Michigan and congress levied a duty of 64 cents per barrel, and salt had been going steadily down instead of up; in 1868 it sold at $1.40 per barrel and in 1872 at $1.10 per barrel, when the republican party revised the tariff and reduced it to 32 cents per barrel, where it has remained for twenty-four years and is to-day, and to-day salt sells for 30 cents, barrel and all. At the factory the barrel costs 20 cents, so that salt really sells for 30 cents per barrel, two cents less than the tariff. So the consumer cannot pay the tariff in this case. A few years ago wire nails were selling at $6 a keg, and none were manufactured in this country. The republicans levied a tax of $4 per keg, and, if what the free traders say is so, nails should have advanced to $10 per keg, but instead they dropped to $3 per keg in one year and have been going down ever since."

He went on and took up crockery, silks, steel, woolen goods and linen and showed that all had been cheapened on account of the tariff. He even tackled the tin question, which the democrats said we could not make in this country. He said there were twenty one establishments in these United States making tin to-day and inside of four months they would be increased to forty-six, and all making tin plate right here in America.

The great convention hall at Minneapolis, where the next president and vice-president of the United States were nominated, was carpeted with American-made linen.

A MURDEROUS MILITIAMAN

A dispatch from Pittsburg this morning says: David Lester of company A, Fourteenth regiment National guard of Pennsylvania, stabbed Frank Calhoun with a bayonet on Grant street, near Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, at 3:30 o'clock this morning. The affray is the outcome of a night's carousal that Lester and Howard Hook indulged in last night. They were drinking yet this morning. They went along Grant street, insulting every person they met and brandishing their bayonets in the faces of passers-by. When they reached Devore's undertaking establishment, where Calhoun is employed, the latter advised Lester to be more careful with the bayonet he was thrusting about. Lester, with a vile exclamation, plunged the weapon into Calhoun's stomach. Calhoun fell without a struggle. Lester rushed upon him again, but was caught by bystanders. After a hard fight Lester and Hook were arrested.

Dr. McElvery, who attended Calhoun, says the wound is very serious; the stomach was torn, and the liver was penetrated by the bayonet, and he has no hope of recovery. Calhoun is 34 years of age, a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and has a family. Lester lives in the Thirty-second ward of Philadelphia, and is 26 years old. Lester and Hook were deserters from the camp at Homestead.

WORST FORM ECZEMA

Baffled Best Medical Skill for Eight Months. Cured in Two Months by Cuticura Remedies.

This is to certify that a child of mine had Eczema in the worst form, and which baffled the best medical skill that could be employed here. The little sufferer was wrapped in sores for at least eight months. Six months of that time the suffering was simply unbearable, then I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. In two months the awful disease had ceased its vengeance, and my darling boy had rest, and to all appearance the disease had yielded, but I continued the medicine for several weeks after no trace could be seen of it on any part of his body. The doctors here watched the cases with much interest, and could only say "Well done!" The case was known far and wide, and everybody was much surprised. But thanks to CUTICURA REMEDIES. Could there be anything on earth that would cause a father to rejoice it surely would be when the little innocent one could have such a remedy at hand. (See portrait herewith.) J. A. NICOLAS, Banker Hill, Ind.

A child was brought to me with chronic eczema that had defied splendid treatment from many good doctors. As a regular M. D., should have continued similar treatment, but thought it useless, so put it on CUTICURA. The child is well.
