

THE WIDOW'S PURSE

A Lincoln Young Man Gets $200 From His Widow.

MRS. GRACE PENNINGTON LOST

He Showed Her His Signed Agree which Extended to Sampson
Etc., and Promised Her a Mortgage on Treas.

The following from the Lincoln Journal concerning a lady well known in this city will be read with considerable interest:

Mrs. Grace Pennington, a widow residing from Hastings, filed a complaint in Justice Borch's court Monday evening charging Ed T. Hughes with obtaining money under false pretenses. Mrs. Pennington claims that Hughes induced her to loan him $25 by representing that he owned considerable property upon which he would give her a mortgage. She in her guilelessness gave Hughes the cash, but she never received the note and mortgage. Hughes was arrested by Constable Hunger and being unable to procure bail is at present confined within the precincts of the county jail. Hughes has the reputation of being rather smooth and was recently arrested for obtaining board at the Lindell hotel under false pretenses.

Mrs. Pennington desires to deny emphatically a statement in a newspaper to the effect that she had taken a trip to Omaha with Hughes when the money was turned over, as she delivered the money to him at Hastings bank. She also denies that she was engaged to be married to him, and says that the loan was a straight business transaction, without the fainting tinge of romance.

Mrs. Pennington has friends in the city with whom she was visiting some time since when she met Hughes. The latter, as is always natural, after strengthening his acquaintance, invited Mrs. Pennington, who is an attractive, dark-eyed widow of decided youthfulness, to share with him an evening of his "pull" at the liveries stables. He drew toward the penitentiary and en route casually pointed out a number of broad acres of his own. Time passed on and the acquaintance ripened into strong friendship, as both Mrs. Pennington and her Lincoln acquaintance deemed him an honest and reputable young fellow, so that there is no way of telling except by the logical rules of cause and effect what might have happened had he proven the honest and reputable young man he was supposed to be, what did happen is more apparent. One day he struck Mrs. Pennington for a loan, offering to give her a note signed by Kimball Bros., the marble dealers of this city, for whom he appears to have formerly worked some, and a mortgage on the broad acres he had so casually shown her during their buggy ride. She let him have the money at Hastings upon his promise that he would send her the note and mortgage. Her confidence was shaken somewhat, but she thought he would certainly keep his word. She met him afterwards, but when she broached the subject he besought her not to talk about that. Finally her Lincoln friends discovered that she had loaned him the money. At about the same time they also discovered that he was living luxuriously and apparently by his wits, as he had evidently renounced his life of toil. This discovery led to his arrest, when his eccentricities became known. It was discovered that he owed a $5 livery bill, a $5 tailor bill, a $30 board bill and divers and sundry other bills peculiar to the plunger, while the furniture in his room at 1134 L street was mortgaged for the purchase money. Rudge & Morris took possession of it yesterday. It was also learned that he narrowly escaped having uttered a $200 forgery, and has been paying assiduous attention to several other ladies of means, more or less ample right here in Lincoln, and as there were more than one, it is presumed that he hasn't been so attentive simply for his health. It was also discovered that his broad acres near the penitentiary were owned by someone else.

When arrested Hughes did not deny the self-imprisonment and telegraphed his brother at Crawfordsville, Ind., that unless he received assistance he would be sent to prison. Mrs. Pennington forwarded the telegram for him. He will be taken to Hastings this morning, as that was where the alleged crime was committed. It is probable that if he is able to repay Mrs. Pennington she will not prosecute him, as she said she used to feel the same.

Going to the incidentless school days that ended with Mr. Hughes — who was a small boy — we find that he was a good boy, but not a great one, and that he did not do much in the way of learning.

Arrived for a Settlement.

It is quite likely Hugh O'Donnell will resign his office as president of the advisory committee soon. The Youngs' speech tonight at the meeting of the State and Congressmen, in which he was asked to speak in defense of the national bank, was carried by the forces of the committee to approve an almost unconditional surrender in the night on hand. Mr. O'Donnell expressed himself as anxious for a settlement even if he had to be sacrificed. He authorized two newspaper men, F. D. Maderia of New York and J. Hampton of Philadelphia, to see Superintendent Porter and ascertain upon what terms the old men could return to work. When they had executed the commission O'Donnell wanted to bring them before the committee, but that body would not admit them. This refusal ultimately will cause O'Donnell's resignation, as he said he would resign if his colleagues did not endorse his sentiments.

The mediators called upon Superintendent Porter and waited to know upon what terms he would accept the old employes. He said there was no vindictiveness in their dealing with their men, but they would not take back certain obnoxious strike-makers under any circumstances. No names were mentioned, but he said those against whom criminal charges had been made were among them. Even these might not be rejected if the informations against them proved incorrect. He further stated that the men would not be questioned about membership in any organization, but they would be required to sign an agreement as individuals fixing the scale of wages and based on the $200 rates. There would be no dealing with any association committee except as provided in the agreement for a committee of workmen and officials and workmen to represent and fix prices of labor. No men now in the employ would be discharged if their work was satisfactory. The mediators were assured that the places were being rapidly filled.

The advisory committee refused to admit the newspaper men, but they would hear the report through the chairman. This was refused as they had no interest in the matter except to bring the two parties together. Superintendent Porter was informed of the result and expressed regrets, as the places of the old men were being rapidly filled.

Mr. Curry, who was present, took occasion to deny the report that Andrew Carnegie would interfere. He stated that in a cablegram just received Mr. Carnegie said he had no intention of returning to America at present and that he would not interfere with the management or interfere to settle the strike.

Depot Burned.

The B. & M. depot at Ashland was totally destroyed by fire last night. Shortly after 7 o'clock an employee of the company, while lighting a signal lamp in the freight room got too close to a barrel of coal oil which ignited, exploded and almost instantly the structure was in flames. The fire department responded and three streams of water were played on the burning building, but the fire had gained such a headway that the efforts of the firemen were of little effect. So rapid was the spread of the flames that absolutely nothing was saved, the employees in the depot not having time to get their hats or coats.

A rough estimate places the value of the baggage at $100, though it may be in excess of this. No estimate can be made of the loss on freight building and belongings.

The telegraph instrument was destroyed and for a time Ashland was without communication east or west except by telephone. Late last night the wires were restored to working order and a temporary miniature depot arrived on a flat car from Lincoln. Trains were only slightly delayed.

HABITATIVES CONVENTION

The Convocation, Yesterday at Weeping Water, Elected Delegates to State and Congressional Conventions. — News.

The Cass County convention met yesterday at Weeping Water. Isaac Pollard was made temporary chairman and S. L. Timlin temporary secretary.

The committee on permanent organization selected A. C. Wright for permanent chairman and A. L. Timlin for permanent secretary. A. J. Graves was elected assistant secretary.

Nearly all delegates elected were present. There were no contests and the convention refused to recognize proxies.

The delegates to the state convention are as follows and were instructed for Lawson Sheldon for governor, L. N. Woodruff, John Ellington, Orlando Taft, W. Smith, F. H. Pollock, J. H. Becker, R. W. Wilkinson, W. P. Killen, John Philpot, Jr., G. L. Sheldon, Byron Clark, Henry Eikenberry, William Royal, Sr., R. W. Hyers, C. E. Taft, William Wells, A. C. Wright, Sam Rector and A. M. Sanchez.

The delegates to the congressional convention which meets at Nebraska City tomorrow were instructed for Judge Chapman for congress. The delegates are as follows: A. Sheldon, Sam Barker, M. Cavey, J. S. Foster, C. L. Graves, J. N. Drake, G. W. Young, Isaac Pollard, E. R. Todd, Anderson Root, A. S. Cooley, N. E. Fields, E. E. Everett, A. X. Stillman, Henry Brock, A. W. Lewis, J. S. Barnes, and A. L. Timlin.

John Daviss made a brilliant speech on the silver question and held the convention spellbound until he was through. But the delegates refused to entertain the idea that he was through and persuaded him to continue, which he did amid the most tumultuous applause.

Orlando Taft made a talk, in which he said he was glad to see so many young men represented in the convention. After which A. S. Cooley sang a song on Bryan's tireless mouth and making fun of his efforts in the Rhode Island campaign.
