> Secretaries. A CASE IN FOINT.

The pearl button industry is yet young and comparatively small in Omaha, but in Newark, N. J., it is an industry of considerable importance, giving employment to about 3,000 operatives. The manufacture of pearl buttons was little known in this country until after the passage of the McKinley bill, by which the American manufacturer was protected and able to compete with cheap foreign labor. It was the passage of this measure that caused the establishment of the pearl button business in this city, and in Newark and other places where it had previously started the business was very largely increased in consequence of protection. One of the Newark manufactures says: "My business began with eight employees. To-day I employ over 100, When my new factory is completed I shall employ between 250 and 300. hands at work. My orders now in the tariff has resulted in the building up of large pearl button business in a very short time and it is as much to the advantage of the employe as the employer. Under the old tariff the wages of the pearl button makers in this country averaged between $8.50 and $12. Now they are from $18 to $24. Yet the buttons are cheaper now than they were before the McKinley bill was passed. Wages are so low in the old country that the foreign manufacturer can still compete on even terms with the American manufacturer on some of the smaller grades This is where the question of wages and protection comes in.

There are in Omaha two small pearl button factories that came in existence solely in consequence of the increased tariff. They are prospering and are giving employment to people who, in turn, give employ ment to others, and thus increase busines of the community. In this instance, as in many others the republican protective policy has produced benefits which the people of Omaha and of the whole state can see and estimate at their true value. The market that has been opened to the Omaha pearl button makers is a growing one, and will continue to extend under the beneficent influence of home patronage, which has already done much to demonstrate that it is needless to go away from home for good article at moderate prices. A continuence of the policy which made it possible to establish the pearl button industry in this city will bring other manufactories here, and it will be found that the fruits of the protective tariff will become more precious to the people the longer they enjoy them .- Bee.

AMERICAN SYMPATHY FOR HOME RULE

The underlying American sentiment is undoubtedly in favor of home rule for Ireland-this apart from all merely political reasons why American political parties may be supposed to favor the American-Irish vote. The underlying reasons for American sympafor August, by Richard Henry Dana, who makes an instructive historical study to show that the causes of our colonial aucestors and of Ireland to-day are substantially the same. He draws a parallel between the treatment of the American colonies by Great Britain and her treatment of Ireland. The parallel is much more accurate than one would suppose from the first glance. For instance, the English argument is that the conduct of the Irish shows that they for her appearance. The next are unfit for home rule. The same argument was used to show that fine, which cleared her from the the American colonies were unfit law. for independence.

Mr. Dana goes on to point out that the parallel so often used by the English tories between the English-Irish situation and the Union-Confederacy in the United States is no parallel at all, for the reason that the Confederate states were in armed rebellion against the Union and wished to secede from it; whereas the Irish do not wish to secede from Great Britain, but to have home rule with union. How well this plan would work can be guessed from the real Union-Confederate parallel that would hold if Ireland were granted home rule with union, because the Southern states after our civil war were granted home rule only on the condition that they would remain in the Union. This is an instructive and impassionate explanation of the deep-rooted American sympathy for Ireland's cause-for purely historical and not for partisan rea

A LOUISVILLE TIME.

LAWYER MAKEPEACE RECEIVES A TONGUE-LASHING FROM AN IRATE FEMALE.

G. A. Anderson Makes Life Burdensome for Some of the People of Louisville.

For some time trouble has been existing beetween G. A. Anderson and the people of Louisville and last week S. P. Metz, becoming tired of being bullyragged, struck Anderson on the head which resulted in Anderson causing Metz's arrest. Metz secured a change of venue from Weeping Water to 'Squire Mitchell's, six miles southwest of that place. The day set for the trial was last Thursday, and about two dozen went through the rain and mud to attend the trial. Plenty of "booze" was taken along and as a result the whole party became pretty well filled up and the lawyers tottered as they marched into court

D. O'Connel of Omaha, plead the case for the complainant and Geo-W. Makepeace for the defense. The case was dismissed by the 'Squire without decision.

After the crowd had returned Lawyer Makepeace was sauntering quietly and peacefully down the street when a rap on the window drew his attention. Entering he was asked by Mrs. G. A. Anderson. "Did you bring that fellow back with you?" (meaning Metz.) His response being in the affirmative she flew at him with tongue and fist-with the tongue uttering some of the most disgraceful words, calling Makepeace names that would be horrible for a man to utter. Makepeace had her arrested, but she wished her trial postponed, which Judge Cline granted, under bonds of $50. While she was trying to secure bonds, "Lawyer Marks," as he is termed here, from Omaha, who was defending the case for Mrs. G. A. Anderson, got into a rousing controversy with 'Squire Cline concerning the late arrest, thy for home rule are set forth, in which resulted in O'Connel, the an interesting article in the Forum Omaha lawyer, being fined $1 for contempt of court. He, refusing to pay, was marched by the constable straight for the lock-up, but before he got very far "Marks" shelled out the money and was at once released. Court resumed once more and this time O'Donnel pleaded that Mrs. Anderson could not appear before the court that night. She was placed in the hands of the marshal until morning, but was allowed to stay at home, "Marks" giving his word that he would be responsible

Fluorine gas is of a yellow color, with a smell resembling bleaching powder. It has not been liquefied, and still remains gaseous at 140 degs. Fahrenheit. Every precantion has to be taken in studying its action on other bodies, both on account of its dangerously irritating action on the eyes and mucous membrane of the operator and its marvelous and wonderful energy, far exceeding that of anything hitherto discovered. There is hardly a gas, liquid or solid that it does not attack, usually with the greatest violence; in fact its mere contact with any other substance is nearly always signalized by the sudden evolu tion of intense heat and light and fierce detonations. It almost realizes the fondest dreams of the alchemists, and might fitly be their long sought liquor, alkahest, or universal solvent, for even dull, inert flint takes fire instantly it is exposed to the vapor, and the whole mass becomes luminous with a grand incan

As a supporter of combustion it leaves oxygen far behind. Lampblack bursts immediately into brilliant flame and gets red hot in a current of fluorine gas; and charcoal is made to give an interesting exhibition of its porosity by first filling its interstices with the gas and then burning spontaneously with sparkling scintillations. The diamond, however, is able to withstand its action even at high temperatures.-Chambers' Jour-

The Danger of Metaphor.

Metaphor and simile, poignant weapons in the armory of a skilled debater, produce disastrous effects in the hands of the inexpert. Certain figures, originally of force and freshness, cause a bleak sense of depression from the frequency of their employment by halting speakers, and one who desires to engage the understanding of an audience ought, at whatever sacrifice, to take a pledge of total abstinence from such outworn phrases as "the thin end of the wedge." 'oil on the troubled waters," etc. Some times, it must be confessed, the audience derives unexpected and lasting enjoyment from the delightful incongruity of figurative discourse.

The pages of Hansard bear, or at least ought to bear on record, the poetic flights of a certain honorable baronet, who became in parliament the very darling of postprandial debate. Those who were fortunate enough to be present on the evening when he was denouncing the course taken by one of his colleagues in the representation of Ireland will remember the rich brogue in which he referred to him as "the young sea serpent from County Clare," and how he was promptly called to order by the speaker for using the expression. "Very well, Mr. Speaker," he rejoined, "I bow to your ruling of course and beg leave to with-draw the sea serpent."—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Migration of Reindeer. The annual migration of the reindeer from Lapland in search of food has now Carries an Elegant Stock become a serious matter.
