SOELLER, the saloon keeper, under indictment, charged with burning the Newhall house in Milwaukee, is on trial, a jury having been empaneled without difficulty.

The United States mints are going to coin the silver of the Hawaiian government. Secretary Folger, it appears, upon a consultation with the directors of the mint and the Hawaiian minister, has, at the request of that government, decided to grant their request. This will be a new feature in our mintage system—grinding out money for foreign nations.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR is on a fishing vacation in Florida—fishing for health, and the press announces he is the first president who has visited this state. The cares and responsibilities of the office of president of the United States are very trying and soon pull down the stoutest men. General Grant, perhaps, could stand the wear of this position as well as almost any man who has ever filled the position, and the last years of his term was a series of vacations. He became so wearied over the importunities of the office seekers and their representatives, that every possible opportunity or excuse for a trip from Washington to some retired place was seized upon. Even President Hayes became a dodger, although he managed to keep his health pretty well while in the White House.

THREE hundred of the velvet Iroquois gentlemen meet shortly—tomorrow, at Cincinnati—in order to address each other, and thus the whole country, on what the future democratic policy will be. Mr. Carlisle and Samny Cox and Mr. Frank Hard and that class of bourbons, will have an opportunity to shie their castors over the table and declare for free trade; and Samuel J. Randall and his school of democracy will have an opportunity to put their oar in on the other side of the question, and they all will doubtless indulge in the eloquent remark made by the governor of North Carolina—"Suffice it to say, letters from absent loved (?) ones will be read, and the old republican party soundly denounced, and a good fat subject for one of Pack's immense cartoons furnished the country. Certainly, let the tolling masses of the country pause a moment to notice these high-toned patriots swallow their wine and whine over the poor oppressed laborer. There's nothing like it.

The startling news is cabled the world over, that one of the suspected, now arraigned for trial in Dublin, has declared his intention of pleading guilty when the trial commences, also that the prisoner expects no mercy, and has no hope of escaping conviction, and proposes to make a clean breast of the murder of Cavendish and Burke. This latter part of the cablegram is a little fishy, and while such a thing may be possible, and if so, would probably have beneficial results in breaking up the horrible conspiracy—it bears on its face strong marks of being a canard. In the first place, one could imagine one of these men making terms with the government, in order to save his own neck, and turning states' evidence; but to imagine one of them doing so without such an incentive, is beyond the comprehension of the ordinary man. These men are unquestionably brave men—desperate men—and it is highly improbable that although one of them would care ever so little about his own life—he would implicate or place in peril his friends and associates in the horrible work. The HERALD believes, if it is true, that one of these prisoners is going to make a confession in regard to the murder of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke, that it will turn out that the crown has granted him a concession commensurate with his revelations.

On the other hand, if the reports are true as wired to the world, we believe it would have a good effect upon the Irish cause. From his prison cell in England Michael Davitt speaks eloquently against these murders. Mr. Parnell, and we believe most of the representatives and leaders of the Irish party, have disclaimed any sympathy with such a policy, and anything would be hailed with joy which would break it up and open the eyes of these desperate men to the folly of such a course; and while all good men—all lovers of liberty—of personal freedom—unite in condemning the men and the means used in these murders and assassinations, they all of them must understand that it can only be outrageous treatment and barbarity that will drive men to the commission of such heinous deeds in this enlightened day and age. Only men rendered desperate by terrible wrongs will engage in such an undertaking.

RAILROAD RACKET.
Under the head of "Unsolved Railroad Problems" the Omaha Herald yesterday says many sensible things to the people of Omaha—and says them well too—things that will bear the saying to almost any community of importance in Nebraska. The Herald is advocating a line of road from Omaha into the Elkhorn valley, with main line bearing westward, and spurs into Plum Creek valley northward, and to Decatur in the direction of the Minnesota lumber regions. It will need no argument to a business man in Omaha, if he will lay the map of Nebraska before him and study it for a moment. His first glance will show him the C. B. & Q. and B. & M. in Neb., hard by, and in firm possession of Nebraska south of Platte river, with their main line crossing the river on their superb iron bridge at Plattsmouth; his second glance will show him the north-west territory of Nebraska with Dakota Black Hills, and all that section of the northwest to the northern Pacific accessible to Omaha if the opportunity is promptly seized upon. At the same time the threatened danger of the Northwestern system crossing at Blair and taking possession of this country will be seen at a glance. Hence, the Omaha Herald, we take it, in good faith, with an eye single to the welfare and prosperity of Omaha, is pointing to the danger impending and calling upon the people of Omaha to arm (3) and avert it.

Precisely the same argument applies to the city of Plattsmouth and the towns on the proposed Diagonal route southwest from this point. From the lakes northeast this line is coming; let our people quietly organize and take steps to precipitate the building of this line. If the determined, quiet business, was displayed by this point, or Omaha either, that has been displayed by the Council Bluffs people in their northeastern railroad scheme, the air would have been alive with the hum of the enterprise long ago. In the language of the Omaha Herald, "can there be a shadow of doubt about it?"

COUCER V. MANDLER.
The slander suit of Mrs. Helen M. Gouger, which has attracted such wide attention in this country after a run of about three months, was finally terminated yesterday morning by the jury bringing in a verdict in favor of Mrs. Gouger of $5,000. This is a solid vindication for Mrs. Gouger, and one that will rejoice the good people of this country universally. The foul slander against this woman in the first place sprang from the intolerance of the evil influence that was combatting both as a journalist and a public lecturer; and not a few respectable journals throughout the country have apparently attempted to palliate the uncalculated slander, by Captain Mandler; by criticising Mrs. Gouger's habit of indulging in personal attacks upon the reputations of the individuals she was engaged in attempting to drive from the liquor traffic. However bitter Mrs. Gouger may have been, and temperate, in her attacks upon the prevailing evils of the day, it should furnish no excuse for such cowardly and dirty slanders as the one launched upon the country by this man Mandler against the good name and chastity of this woman. The HERALD congratulates Mrs. Gouger and the good people of Lafayette upon her vindication, and the vindication in fact of the community in which the parties to this scandal reside.

Dr. MILLER, of the Omaha Herald, says: "Sam'l J. Randall, is not going to the devil." Of that we are glad; but the manner in which the Dr. and his brother elders in the moral branch of the democratic party are going to prevent Mr. Randall from going to the evil one, is the cunningest thing about it. The Dr. proposes that Samny submit to "heroic treatment" in order to save him as a leader—i. e., that his political nose be broken and set over again, and while he (the Dr.) proposes Mr. Randall shall remain the acknowledged leader of the democratic party; "with the tariff issue in the balance," the Dr. says, Mr. Randall shall not be speaker of the next house. Just how Samuel J. Randall is to "remain in the leadership of the democratic party" and be knocked clear out of time when he leads up to the scratch on the speakership contest, is what enquiring minds will ponder over.

VICE PRESIDENT EDMUNDS and daughter are expected in St. Louis today.

Judge Edmunds is the HERALD's best ideal of our next President.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE
FROM COL. L. T. FOSTER
Young-Low, Ohio, May 10th, 1880.
I, J. Kendall & Co., Agents—had a very valuable and successful case which I will very briefly describe. I had a large horse spavin in one joint and a small one in the other, which made it very lame. I had him under the charge of a veterinary surgeon who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, and determined at once to try it, and our friends here said, "if it will cure your horse, I will give you $100." I took three or four doses and thought I would give it a thorough trial, and according to directions and the fourth day the spavin disappeared, and the horse had disappeared.
