Ice cream at the art loan tonight.

Concert tonight at the Art Loan. Everyone is invited.

Attend the Jubilee singers tonight and be happy.

Antil's candy stand at the art loan was a happy hit. Jim knows how to make good candies and the people seem to appreciate his efforts to please and sweeten.

The Art Loan concert as planned by the programme last evening occurs this evening and will be an important part in the entertainment. No extra charge for admission.

Tomorrow night is the last one of the Art Loan, and the ladies having it in charge have engaged the B. & M. band to play for them on the street and in the hall. The boys make fine music and will be one of the chief attractions.

It is a strange but true commentary that Nebraska City's greatest source of revenue at present comes from her grave yard.—Press.

This is a grave charge for the Press to make. It has been known for sometime, outside, however, that Nebraska City was a very fair graveyard.

The fountain scene at the Black Crook last night was something never before witnessed upon the stage in this city, and was something simply magnificent. The "Water Witch," with a corps of the fire boys, furnished the material for the display.

Secretary of State Roggen, and General Bowen, of Hastings, passed through the city last night on their way to Washington to endeavor to make some arrangements for tents for use at the next reunion. They are armed with the necessary credentials, etc., and will make an effort to secure the tents which will be used at Denver, just previous to the Nebraska reunion.

"Uncle" Sam Barker came in last evening from Lincoln. He purchased from Turner Bros., who are feeding at Raymond, 500 head of fat cattle and 500 hogs at a cost of $50,000. This is the second purchase "Uncle" has made within a month aggregating $150,000. We have a right to be proud of a man who will boldly walk away with $150,000 in one month.

The HERALD calls attention today to the advertisement of Mrs. A. P. Stout, who has today and tomorrow her grand display of millinery goods for the spring and summer trade on exhibition at her millinery parlor. The display as depicted by one of our special reporters is such as to delight the hearts of all the ladies in the land, and the HERALD hopes all the ladies in the city will call upon Mrs. Stout and consult the latest fashions there displayed.

The boys returning home yesterday from attendance at the session of the grand lodge of the Knights of Honor, held at Fremont, have a good joke on a Nebraska City attorney. By some slight-of-hand trick one M. of Plattsmouth, managed to purloin the gold watch of one W. of Nebraska City. Our informant remarked in giving the story away that W. was offering big money for its return, and suspicioned one from Crete, of having the "ticker" in his possession. Probably about tomorrow the Nebraska City chap will be called upon by W. F. & Co's express agent with a C. O. D. package, the manner the boys adopted of returning it to him.—State Journal.

Last night Capt. Black went out in the country with his shot gun and brought home with him thirteen geese, and today the sportsmen in the city are all agog with the mania spreading rapidly, taking in many of the most sly and industrious business men who haven't fooled with a shot gun for years, and who have with the entire sporting fraternity hied to the fields in pursuit of game. The HERALD counted team after team wending their way out of the city, and if they have luck proportional to Wiley Black's last evening, they will bring 1785 geese home with them, and the "goose will hang high."

The New Orleans University singers appeared at the City Hall last evening with one of their fine programmes, to a large audience, the seating capacity being taxed to its utmost. The quaint, thrilling songs of slavery days, as well as the jubilee selections, were rendered in a matchless style by the vocalists, a double quartette, all gifted with full toned, melodious voices, the resulting harmony being exceptionally rich and captivating to the musical ear.—Alton (Ill.) Daily Telegraph.

THE ART LOAN.

A Further Description of It.

Several articles were crowded out in yesterday's mention of the department of BOOKS AND MANUSCRIPTS, among which was one side of a leaf from a business ledger, found by Capt. L. D. Bennett, during the rebellion, dated 1769. It was an evidence that they did business in those days, and that they knew how to keep books. The penmanship and general appearance of the page would do credit to some of the expert book-keepers of today.

There is also an old newspaper which was printed at Philadelphia on the 8th day July, 1776, called Dunlap's Pennsylvania Packet, printed by John Dunlap, which contains the account and Declaration of Independence. This is the original paper, and not a fac simile, and is one of the most interesting specimens in this department. The Ulster county Gazette, published at Kingston, Ulster county, New York, on Saturday, January 4th, 1800, by Samuel Freer & Son, is another newspaper quite interesting, and is dressed in mourning on account of the death of President Washington. It contains some speeches by members of the House of Representatives, in session, on the death of Washington. These papers are the property of H. M. Bushnell, and are valuable relics. Mr. Bushnell is in the newspaper business himself, now, and it might be well to lay away a copy of his paper for exhibition at the art loan a hundred years hence.

We found a deed made by A. B. Smith's grandfather to his father, transferring a piece of land in New Hampshire, which was signed Feb. 8, 1826, which is well preserved.

There is another old bible which belonged to Curtis Moore's grandfather, and the binding is of heavy leather, sewed on with leather whangs. It contains the family record from the 24th day of January, 1799.

M. A. Hartigan furnished the fac simile of a map of Ireland, published in 1798, showing the localities and titles of the principal old Irish families. The O'Flahertys, McCarthys, O'Slaters, McFinnigans and O'Laffertys are all there and have been for long years back.

A copy of the Plattsmouth Jeffersonian, the first paper printed in Plattsmouth, dated June 25th, 1897, and published by Jeffers and Sherry, occupies a prominent place in this department and is of much interest to old residents of the city. Mrs. Todd has preserved this paper for to these many years, on purpose to have it here at this art loan.

The most valuable and liberal contributor to the exhibition is J. W. Barnes, who has a collection of stones, ores, etc., of the value of over $1,000. The specimens number about a thousand and each article ranges in value from 25 cents up to $50. There are all kinds of precious stones, except diamonds and sapphires. There are quite a number of petrified specimens, prominent among which are pieces of pine and black walnut, that are so perfect as to require no explanation regarding them, and another piece of petrified ivory found in the Republican valley during the construction of the B. & M. railroad through there. It is worth the time and money invested to visit the Art Loan just to see this collection.

A Chinese idol, "The God of Harvest," which is about 1,000 years old, stands there in the same position that he did 1000 years ago. He don't look very tired either, but apparently derives as much pleasure from being on exhibition as those to whom he is exhibited. He probably is a good God, and his presence here now may have some good effect upon the crops that will be harvested this fall. There is "Ganesa" the God of wisdom, a little brass fellow about 2 or 3 inches high, standing in the attitude of a man playing a life. He don't look very wise, but we don't say that he isn't, if he is, his looks give him away. There is "Krishnu" the God of Incarnation. He is the most sensible looking one of all. He sits upon an elephant with both arms extended as though giving orders he meant should be obeyed. They either came through or passed close to a brass foundry, and became brass. In the same case with these gods are a number of other curiosities such as Chinese slippers and shoes, knitting needle cases etc., of which space forbids particular mention.

On the other side of the hall is an "ideal mining camp" by D. B. Smith. It is arranged on a board about a foot and a half square. In one corner is the little log cabin and in another the opening of the mine, while in front of the cabin stands the old well curb and famous oaken bucket. Three men are visible on the scene, one chopping wood, another taking a rest on the old bench by the cabin door and the third is carrying one end of a halter to which is attached a mule at the other. The whole is fenced in by little stones and specimens of ore, etc.

Frank Carruth has a set of Chinese chessmen on exhibition in which each piece is an image of the character it represents. The collection of masonic badges by D. H. Wheeler is an attractive exhibit. We don't know how many there are but we counted up to forty-seven and got tired. Another handsome collection is the hand painted tidies by Ernst and Maggie Wagner. The work is done on satin and they are very beautiful and evidence artistic skill.

The Art Loan is a complete success all the way through, not only financially, but as an exhibition and those having it in charge deserve great credit for the zeal and labor required in its management.

Kiralfy Bros. Black Crook.

This entertainment in the Opera House last evening was witnessed by a very large and select audience of Plattsmouth people, and a goodly number from Weeping Water, Pacific Junction and Louisville, who came to the city to visit the Crook. The first entertainment ever presented to a Plattsmouth audience by the Kiralfy Brothers, whose spectacular plays lead the world in scenic effects and natural presentations. To say the audience was delighted is a safe expression, and all through the presentation of the play the wonderful scenic effects were witnessed with the greatest delight by the audience entire. The scenes of special merit were the incantation scene, where in the wild mountains the Crook kindled his ghostly fires where every rock opened and revealed a devil, where the serpent writhed and the owl on the mountain side blinked as he sat beside the portal where the evil one himself made his appearance and conversed with the Black Crook. It was no wonder that "Grippe" was frightened and "wanted to go home." The audience appreciated his position. "The Fairies' Retreat" was a magnificent scene, and elicited rounds of applause. The ballet was pronounced by those supposed to know, to have been very skillful, and the acting of Von Puffengrunt and Dame Barbara was highly amusing, while the singing of Miss Seymour as the Fairy Queen was very pretty. There was no objectionable feature to the entertainment, and Plattsmouth people may know that managers having the reputation that Kiralfy Bros have, do not place objectionable plays before the public.
