 "Our Summer Boarders" at the opera house tonight.

We notice quite an improvement in the Republican Valley Echo these days. It is a neat, well printed, enterprising paper.

Jim Sage today bought a horse of W. D. Jones for $130 to mate the one he already had, and now drives one of the handsomest double teams in the city.

The Nebraska City Daily Press contained the best and most enterprising account of the recent fiasco of any paper on our exchange list.

One of Mike Curran's little boys fell down, striking his nose just between the eyes on the edge of a kittle, cutting it open. Drs. Hall & Keller were called, and dressed the wound and the boy at this writing is very comfortable.

We can repeat the above compliment of the Journal, by saying that it comes to us this week much improved in appearance, having changed its "make up" from the little eight page sheet to a four page eight column paper, regular size, and is chock full of good reading matter.

The Plattsouth HERALD has put on regular metropolitan airs, and is not so secret, so quiet, so unobtrusive, and is larger than the Omaha Daily Bee. We are glad to see this evidence of prosperity in the Herald, for it is one of the live papers of the State.—Clay County Journal.

The County Commissioners returned this afternoon from their tour of bridge inspection, and report the Weeping Water as high as it was Sunday morning and still rising, and is about 45 feet above low water mark. There were a number of bridges they could not reach on account of high water.

More marriage licenses yesterday. One to Wm. H. Karnes and Larabel Johnson, and one to James B. Follen and Frances J. Sanders. Today the judge just stepped out of the office to take a little exercise, and another fellow was looking for him. We hope he succeeded in finding him, but haven't time to wait until he goes, so let him go until Monday.

Major Wheeler reports entries beginning to come in for the State Fair. Mr. T. W. Harvey, one of Chicago's heaviest lumber merchants, has written to secure thirty stalls for his fine stock from the Burlington Stock Farm, near Syracuse. Mr. Harvey, it will be remembered, invested in a Nebraska stock farm, a short time since, and is conducting it on a first-class scale, and will have one of the finest exhibits of stock, including sheep, at the State Fair.

The Liberty Journal is responsible for the story that not long since a man from Pawnee county went on a visit to Illinois, and while there, of course swapped lies with the grangers of that state. They told him many of the most delicious stories which were stupendous indeed, and then asked him how they grew out here. He said they could not raise them in Nebraska, and when they asked why he said that the vines grew so fast here that they were the pumpkins out dragging them around. They gave up to the buzz eater.

A party of "coons" came down on the Omaha train this morning on their way home to Lincoln, from Omaha, where they had been in attendance upon some kind of a "show" at the Hotel. They told him many of the most delicious stories which were stupendous indeed, and then asked him how they grew out here. He said they could not raise them in Nebraska, and when they asked why he said that the vines grew so fast here that they were the pumpkins out dragging them around. They gave up to the buzz eater.

Eight Mile Grove Items.
 Mrs. Jno. McConkey returned from Missouri, where she has been visiting a sister and friends for the last three weeks.
 Miss Hatie Ruby is very sick with bilious fever.
 Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw and daughter of Cedar Creek were visiting last Sunday at R. Troop's.
 Messrs. Pettee and Moore of your city, called on W. Jenkins last Friday. They were enroute to Weeping Water with a load of flowers plants.
 One evening and not long since, as Dr. Sturdivant was trying to speed his horse, he tried to see how far he could run his head through the barn, with the help of his horse did excellent for the first time.
 Mr. and Mrs. J. Pool, of South Bend, come down to attend the funeral of their niece, Mrs. Dan Satchel; they also made Mr. Richardson's short visit.
 R. Morrow returned from Iowa, last week, where he was called to see a brother that was very sick at the time when he came away his brother was better.
 Jim Jenkins did not have to go to Cedar Creek, Sunday week, duck hunting, his ducky flew down and Sundayed in the Grove, at R. Troop's.
 Two horses belonging to H. W. Vallery, that were running in a pasture, were snake bitten last week, supposed to be by a rattlesnake; being found out soon after, did not prove very serious.
 Last Sunday as A. S. Will was crossing a bridge by W. Jenkins' farm way letting one horse through. It got very tely several men were near, who ran to the rescue, and the horse was not hurt very bad.
 There must be a very sick patient at J. H. Kiser's, as Dr. Sturdivant calls every Sunday and several times through the week, sometimes going far out of his way to get there without being seen.
 The corn is growing very fast the last few days, when the rain is not beating it down, and the farmers are busy cultivating when it is dry enough. The last rains have washed some fields very bad. The prospect is not very flattering, and if it continues to rain much longer the crop will not be very heavy unless the fall is exceedingly favorable.
 Last Saturday night we had by far the heaviest rain that has fallen here this season. It did great damage to the roads by washing out nearly every bridge, making it almost impossible to travel anywhere. Early Monday morning J. T. Lloyd, the supervisor, gathered together several men and fixed up as many as he could that were needed the worst. The timbers in some were kept rotten to be moving back, consequently will have to build new bridges.

Eight Mile Grove, June 31, 1883.
 Corn 47 Years Old.
 Mr. W. D. Farris, of Douglas precinct, called in Monday and left an ear of corn which was raised in Canada in the year 1836, which makes it now 47 years old. This corn shows its age, but is as sound as a dollar, and Mr. Farris informs us that one kernel planted this year grew. He says the way it came to be preserved, his mother had it for the children to play with when their family was small, and it passed from one child's hands to another, until it became an interesting relic for his mother and she preserved it until she died, and then it passed into the keeping of her daughter, Mrs. Willows, and it has now come to be such a valuable relic to the family, that no money would induce them to part with it. It is certainly a curiosity.—Wahoo Times.

They Laughed.
 There was immoderate laughter in the opera house last night on the part of the large audience present, and that was ample testimony of the fact that the managers did what they promised,—gave one of the most laughable shows on the road. There is nothing in the play, nor are any pretensions made in that line. The play is a glorification of funny incidents, which are or are not likely to occur when half a dozen sons and daughters of the Emerald Isle, a dutchman and a negro get together. The digestion of many people was undoubtedly aided greatly by their being present at the performance. Messrs. Gallagher and Frew, who took the leading parts as Kennedy and O'Shaughnessy, had the play almost to themselves. They are splendid comedians in their line and continually brought down the house. The actresses connected with the company acquitted themselves very well. They possess considerable talent about which they take with an audience. Their dressing was also quite the thing, some of the robes worn being very handsome.—Free Press.
