FROM WASHINGTON

Paymaster Wasson's Sentence.

Small-Pox Among the Indians.

Other Matters.

THE HILL INVESTIGATION.
Washington, June 29.—The Hill investigation was resumed this morning, with General Stinemetz as witness. In the Bartlett-Robbins case he testified that the latter firm charged $37,000 for extra work on the New York postoffice. He read from itemized bills and pointed out what he alleged to be the unauthorized and illegal charges. In one instance the witness said the extra was charged when Mullett simply ordered the firm to repair the imperfections of their own work. Chairman New inquired, "What has all this to do with Hill?" Coleman replied, simply this, "We are going over these items simply to show that no part of this $37,000 charged for extra work was ever authorized, and Hill knew it. It was he who paid bills before." Witnesses stated that Bartlett, Robbins & Co.

stipulated under the contract to furnish screens at the price per pound, whereas, they charged by the lineal foot, and was so paid by Hill, which greatly increased the compensation of the firm to correspond with the loss of the government.

POSTMASTERS APPOINTED.
J. H. King was appointed postmaster at Chamberlain, Dakota, and Elliott Shurtz, at Marshalltown, Iowa.

WASSON'S SENTENCE.
The President approved the finding and full sentence of the court martial in Paymaster Wasson's case, and an order will be issued from the war department tomorrow, officially announcing his sentence, which is to be dismissal from the army, and confined at hard labor for eighteen months in some prison to be hereafter selected.

Information has been received at the war department that Major Nickerson sailed for Europe June 16th.

WANTS TO RETIRE.
Paymaster General Ingalls has requested to be placed upon the retired list of the army, from the first of July. He will then be forty years in the service. Generals Holabird, Sarton and Frey are candidates for the position.

SMALL POX.
Advices received here today indicate a general outbreak of small pox among the Arizona Indians, and Commissioner Price has ordered a supply of vaccine virus sent there.

REVENUE DISTRICTS.
The President today made several unimportant modifications in the recent executive order relating to consolidating the internal revenue districts.

REGARDING PENSIONERS.
A point of importance to pensioners has just been decided by the acting secretary of the interior in the case of the application of John R. Collett, for an increase of pension. The decision construes the act of June 18, 1877, defining total and permanent helplessness to mean permanent injury, and requiring regular personal attention or aid from other persons, and as these conditions were found in the present case the application was granted.

P. M. AT WASHINGTON.
The President appointed Frank D. Congor, son of Senator Congor, postmaster at Washington, District of Columbia.

RUSSIA AND AMERICA.
Mr. William Almon, charge d'affairs Russia, was today presented to the President, and delivered a letter from the emperor of Russia, expressing his appreciation of this government in sending Mr. Hunt as special representative to Moscow at the recent imperial coronation. The President replied that the cordial relations existing between the United States and Russia was gratifying to Americans.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.
The excess value of exports over imports for the twelve months ending May 31, 1883, $993,346.49. The increase in the total value of exports was $197,748. Increase of imports over last year, $57,488.57.

CROOK ON HIS WAY.
Albuquerque, N. M., June 29.—Gen. Crook arrived here this evening and proceeded to Washington direct, accompanied by Capt. John Burk, of his staff. The bucks had not returned to San Carlos reservation when he left Prescott. Crook is positive that they will bring little Charlie McComas if alive.

TRADE DOLLARS.
New York, June 29.—Nearly all the business men, including liquor and cigar dealers, today refused to take trade dollars. It is expected that this general action will drive the coin out of the city. In short live mercantile exchanges brought about the change, bullion dealers, not willing to pay over eighty five cents for trade dollars, except to fill out of town orders.

PAUPER EMIGRANTS.
Boston, June 29.—The board of health reports to the collector of the port, that within the last six months the port physician has examined 23,339 cases of assisted emigrants, many of them too feeble, by reason of their age or other infirmity, for self support, and must be aided by private and public charities. Most of them are without luggage and a scarcity of clothes.

THE RIVER FALLING.
St. Louis, June 29.—The river fell eight inches today. Nearly all the sidewalks along the river front are again visible. Business is resumed in most stores along the levee. The water on the bottoms north of East St. Louis is not falling so rapidly as that in the river, on account of the outlet being comparatively small, but much of the overflowed land will be above water again in a few days.

THREE OF A KIND.
Fort Smith, Ark., June 20.—The murderers, Martin Joseph, William H. Finch and Tualista, were executed at noon today. Tualista was a Seminole Indian. On reaching the scaffold a minister offered prayer, after which a hymn was sung every one joining. In response to the question if they had anything to say, Tualista replied that he had not, and putting his hand on his heart said, his heart was broken. Martin Joseph replied in the negative. Finch made a brief speech and confessed and then asked to see the photograph of his sister, on which he imprinted a kiss, saying he was sorry he had to leave her. At 11:45 the drop was sprung. Tualista's neck was broken and he died in three and one-half minutes and Finch in nine minutes. Tualista, the Indian, killed Emanuel Cochrane, July, 1881; Finch shot and killed Burt Johnson and Washington Grimky, two colored soldiers, in July, 1882. Finch was a deserter and had been captured, but made his escape by killing two men. Joseph killed a man named Stephens and his wife, in April last.

The Old Capital of Illinois Abandoned

The venerable City of Kaskaskia, once the Capital of Illinois, is mostly under water, owing to the present flood in the Mississippi, and is to be at least temporarily abandoned, the inhabitants having sent to Chester for a steambot to take them away.

Kaskaskia's glory has long since departed. The old State Capital is now a mere relic—a reminiscence of former greatness. From a city of 7,000 inhabitants and the seat of Government, as well as the home of fashion in the West, to which the people of St. Louis once came to do their shopping, it has dwindled down to a picturesque ruin, the home of less than 500 people. The curious-looking two-story brick building in which the first Territorial Legislature of Illinois held its session; the little one-story frame "hotel" were Lafayette was welcomed and feted; the new Catholic church, erected on the ruins of the old pile, with its severely plain but full, rich toned organ made by one of the priests; the old burying-ground immediately adjoining, its surface thickly studded with venerable, weatherbeaten, and crumbling tombstones—a prey to "the tooth of time and rature of oblivion"; the remains of the convent, further north, from whose upper stories the Sisters of Charity escaped during high water of 1844; the residence of Senator Kane on the high bluff across the Kaskaskia, were Gov. Bissell wooed and won his wife old Fort Gage, further south, on the crest of the bluff and now little more than a high, broken mound of earth work; the old Menard mansion, nearly in front of it, but closer to the river bank, rich in its jealously-guarded store of art—these and other monuments of a historic and fast fading past are now pointed out to the occasional visitor as objects once of public interest, but important now only through the associations which cluster around them. Kaskaskia is doomed. The Father of Waters has encroached upon the town for years and it is gradually barely disappearing. Originally a peninsula, occupying a narrow strip between the Mississippi and the Karkaskia, which joined each other seven miles below. Kaskaskia is now an Island the Mississippi having broken its narrow barrier of land on the north two years ago, swept across it, and joined its muddy tributary at that point. The wearing force of the Mississippi has swept away thousands of fertile acres within a few years. The rapid detrition is plainly visible from the passing steamboats, and its merely a question of time when the entire Island shall be obliterated. The result may not be immediate, but it is ultimately inevitable. The general government has sought in vain to protect the banks by rip rapping, but the waters rush in between and behind the stone and the work of tearing down goes on faster than the work of building up. The temporary removal, enforced by the present flood, is only a preparation for final abandonment. The inhabitants expect it, and have been expecting it for some time. At the recent session of the Illinois general assembly a bill was introduced allowing the Kaskaskians to remove to and purchase lands on the Kaskaskia bluffs immediately opposite, and at the same time retain their interests as commoners, under the old law, in the fertile soil on the island so long as it should remain above water. The bill was introduced too late in the session to give much hope of its passage, and it failed to become a law. It will reappear at the next session, however, and the constant menace to which the people of Kaskaskia and their homes are subjected is apt to secure the desired legislation.
