PRIVATE CARS.

Wealthy People Who Will Travel in Nothing Changer than a Special. i af hiladelphia Press' Lackawaxen Letter. When President Hugh J. Jewett, of the Erie railroad, passes through this little towa the citizens flock to the station to gaze upon is private car, the Ramapo, which is one f the most luxurious over made by the uliman company.

The Press. "There were two other cars after a moment's stop the "Ramapo" honor, so many of them declined that the whisked away from the station on its voyage project was abandoned. Politics will not omprehensive wave of his hand. "One was or Henry Villard, president of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, and the other was for Thomas W. Pierce, president f the Sunset route, in Texas. Just look at his car." At the forward end of the car is a kitchen, ack of this is a parlor, which can be turned nto a fine dining-room; adjoining is a bed-oom; with a small bath-room attached, and t the rear end a smoking-room and observaory. Electric bells connect with the kitchen. he upholstery is magnificent, and the interior decorated with inland woods of the most ostly kind. The cost was $20,000. "The 'Old Commodore'" (Vanderbilt), said the Jewett, with a smile, "used to ride over his roads in a car that he thought was about s fine as could be gotten up. That car is ow owned by the Wagner company, and is alled the Iroquois and any one may ride in n it who chooses to pay the extra fare. Peo-de who are not able to control as many mnies as the commodore had dollars can to-ay ride in better cars than the railroad king ver dreamed of. It costs at least $15,000 to uild a Pullman car now-a-days, and the "oquois did not cost more than half that sum." What kind of private car has William H. anderbilt?" was asked. WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT'S CAR. "A beauty. It is about seventy-five feet ing and six feet wide, by about thirteen feet igh. It has a kitchen in front, just like this ar; back of it is Mr. Vanderbilt's state-room. he dining-room, sitting-room and card-room ome next. The observatory is at the rear nd has inclosed sides. It is elogantly fitted ip in the most luxurious style, and on the ides of the car are four views, representing he West Albany bridge of the New York Jontral, Niagara Falls, the Grand Central lepot at Forty-second street, and one other, which I do not call to mind. The car probaly cost $20,000. "Mr. Vanderbilt does some fast travelingt least he used to?" "Yes. When he makes a trip he goes as ast as he can. He takes a special engine, orders all trains off the main track, and he ravels as rapidly as the engine can go. A time-table is made up, generally, for his train before he starts, and telegraphed to every station along the road. This prevents the possibility of accident." "How about Jay Gould's private car!"

"The Convoy, No. 143, is its name-at least used to be. It is the same car that Comodore Garrison used to occupy, and has ac-munodation for twelve. It is not strikingly beautiful; finished in black walnut.' "Are the cars of the Pennsylvania railroad officials strikingly elegant?"

"They are handsome-supplied with state room, sleeping room, kitchen and other apartments. John W. Garret's car, the and is as unbending as ever toward reporters. An eastern correspondent tried to interview him the other day. "Sir," said the dignified ex-senator, "you must excuse me. I cannot converse with members of the press." Roscoe had some bitter lessons in interviewing when he was in the zenith of , his political career. The representative of one of the leading pa-pers of the country called upon him before he had sourced against newspaper men. Conk-ling received him like a prince, and was at some pains to give him the desired information. The scribe assured Roscoe that his language would be given verbatim et literatim. But the scribe reckoned without his chief. On reporting the result of his mission the latter said: "Pshaw, if Conkling gave you that he meant just the opposite. Fill twist it into shape." He twisted it into such a shape that made the proud Roscoe wild with vexation, and threw the scribe into epileptic fits. A year or two afterward this interviewer was made chief of the bureau, and he In the bitte gloom of a winter's morn determined to make amends to Lord Roscoe at the first opportunity. That opportunity arrived sooner than he expected. During a time of great political excitement, when the views of Conkling were looked forward to with great interest, a prominent Republican asked this correspondent if he would print an interview with the New York senator just as interview with the New York senator just as it was given. "Certainly," was the prompt reply. "I will guarantee that not a word hall be changed." The interview took place. It was wired to the home office as Conkling dictated it. The editor evidently suspected this, since he prefaced it with a stinging in-troduction to the effect that Roscoe had caused himself to be interviewed, and strutted like a peacock as he talked to himself. That was the last straw. It killed every vestige of Conkling's faith in newspaper men. To-day he would rather have a scorpion dally with his favorite curl than spend five seconds in the company of a reporter on business.

Girls in the Breakers. " St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Did you ever sit in one the "grand stands" at Coney Island and see the girls in fancy stockings wade in till the puny surf just about wets the tops of them--the stockings, please remember--and then hop up and down, clinging to the ropes and yelping? Well, that is what you don't see at the unheard-of bathing places I am telling you about. You would be surprised (writes a New York correspondent) at the number of girls who are break and dash down upon them. With a seething sound the crest of the wave shoots upward, combs over gracefully, thunders down upon the beach, and goes back with a roar, and Miss Murray Hill is seen floating at her ease out beyond the line of breakers. I

A Lesson in Good Manners. Amos Kaeg in San Francisco Chronicle. Hanover has the reputation among foreigners of being the most desirable place at which to initiate their children into the mysteries of the teutonic tongue. And the natural resul: is that the town is pretty well filled with foreigners-especially English and Americans. So that one hears a good deal of his mother tongue as he strolls about the streets, and has to keep a pretty close watch of his own, if he does not wish to get himself disour own, the same class in the United States liked by making remarks about the personal appearances of such people as he may meet. And it is strange how careless one becomes in this regard after he has been in a strange country awhile. At first he does not realize average American town will contain three times as many members of the profession as an English town of equal size. Amer-ican lawyers might claim with con-siderable cogency that they had cultivated not merely the gracks of their profession more assidiously than the English bar, but that they were accustomed to look at new legal questions raised by the circumstances of modern society with a freedom and breadth of view which is very rare here." that his speech will not be understood ar 1 he
