First of the season! New crop layer figs and raisins, at the P. O. News Depot. Johnston the fastest pacer known, was sold yesterday to Commodore Kitson, for $20,000.

Messrs. Strode & Clark have recently placed in their office two sets of very valuable and expensive reports, being those of Ohio and Massachusetts; this gives them with their other works one of the best law libraries in the city.

Oranges and lemons at Phil Young's. Judging from the way the Journal walked in to attack Coroner Gass last night, about the only hope the democrats have left is to elect the coroner and they are adopting their usual way to beat him—but they never throw mud on, no!

Extra fine lemons and oranges, just received from Chicago at J. P. Young's. The Weeping Water Republican's hearts endorsements and notices of the republican candidates this week has the true ring about it. There appears to be no half heartedness in this matter with our Weeping Water people, which is a guarantee that the republican ticket will be elected entire.

Don't fail to try some of Phil Young's new crop layer figs and raisins, finest in the market. If there is a paper that can make more blunders in its make up than this, it is entitled to the floor. In the haste to get to press last evening, a blunder was made in the game count article, which is fully up to our usual standard of errors. The Omaha Herald has always been noted for such blunders in its typographical work, but if it keeps in sight of us it is a good one.

The following from the State Journal would indicate a big apple crop in Otoe county; and when we come to consider the fact that all the counties south of the Platte bordering on the Missouri river have done as well an estimate can be made that would astonish our eastern neighbors.

Mr. Peirman came up today from his Nebraska City home to call upon our citizens who want apples for winter use. He estimates the Otoe county crop at 20,000 bushels.

A railroad got so full the other day he wouldn't have been able to recognize his own mother. He walked into Mrs. Ryane and deliberately laid down on the bed as though he was owner in fee simple of the entire premises; he was soon routed on y to get in to worse trouble at Holschneider's, who had him arrested as a disturber of the peace.

He was hauled up before Judge Pot tender who fined him $1.00, and costs, which after turning a few pockets wrong side out was duly paid and R. R. went his way.

This item, from an Iowa paper, may be localized almost everywhere: "Parents should keep their young daughters in-doors at night. Christian meetings between young school girls and young men of doubtful reputation are becoming too common and dangerous."—Neb. City News.

The above is golden advice and will apply in sober Plattsmouth. The young man with long nosed shoes, and spring bottomed pants, and red neck tie, is not the fellow to trust out with young school girls after the shades of evening have fallen.

We are pleased to see our young friend Jimmy Donnelly behind the counter in the Cass county bank. Jimmy is book keeper for that staid and solid institution and is an accomplished, industrious young gentleman. Also we see Mr. Ed Cummins flourishing in the First National. This shows what boys can do by keeping proper company and cultivating sober, industrious, habits. Employment can always be found for the young man of good habits. Boys, you want to start right; just leave the billiard cue, and the tobacco pipe, and the low company alone, and you can't help but get on in the world.

Matt Simmerman. Our readers will notice, by the dispatches of today, that Matt Simmerman the milder murderer, has again been tried and convicted of murder, at maiden in Keraney County. After three hours deliberation the jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree and his honor Judge Gaslin promptly sentenced the prisoner to be hanged by the neck until he is dead on the 4 day of February next.

Pullmans for the west. On number one this morning were three new pullman sleepers designed for use on the Denver and Rio Grande R. R. They were named the "Cimarron", "Salida" and "Provo". The cars are about two thirds the usual size of pullman coaches and are finished in the same style as the regulation coaches with all the conveniences and comforts. The constant by increasing through travel over the D. & R. G. has caused the company to secure ten sleepers these three being the first installment.

For three solid days the HERALD force has been trying to extract a roller from the mold it was run in, so it could be put to use. This noon Geo. Staats strolled into the office and he tackled it like Jumbo and brought it out. If George can hit as hard as he pulled on that mold he would make a good man to go in training under John L. Sullivan.

In the matter of the state vs. Joseph Sharp, which was given to the jury last night, at 3 o'clock today no decision had been reached. It is understood 9 jurors were for acquittal while 3 stubbornly insist on a conviction. The case occupied the entire time of the court yesterday and was ably prosecuted by district attorney Strode, Mr. Vanatta making a strong case for the defendant.

The voters of this county should see that John Clements, of Stone Creek, is elected county commissioner. A careful, prudent, and above all conscientious man, he will fill the responsible position to which he aspires in a manner that will be alike profitable and a credit to the county.—Weeping Water Republican.

It is a pleasure for republicans of Cass county to work for their ticket in its entirety this year. It is composed of the best men for the respective positions the county affords, and no true republican can do otherwise than give it his hearty endorsement.—W. B. Republican.

Communications.

Mr. Editor—I have been very much interested in the discussion over the employment of Allen Beeson by the Co. Commissioners of Cass county and see Mr. Crites a man who holds himself out as a good lawyer and who the responsible citizen C. W. Sherman asserts is a number one attorney makes a bid of $147.50 as the price for which he will attend to all business of Cass County for one year; now then as a business man I would like this legal gentleman to explain what that extra 50 cents is for? is that a bit of extravagance in these hard times or does it cover some extra case that will probably go to the supreme court of U. S. if so I for one am opposed to any such extravagance, sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof Cass County has no case that can probably get into that court and if one should get there we can probably get a cheaper lawyer. Now then Mr. Editor I am for economy in public affairs and unless Mr. Crites can explain this matter I shall certainly as a tax payer and property owner protest against any such jobs. I am Yours Truly A MERCHANT.

PLATTSMOUTH, NEB. Oct. 26, 84. ED. HERALD:—Being in attendance on district court and hearing a power of stuff about the Co. Commissioners of Cass county paying Mr. Beeson $100 for services rendered the county in some lawsuit he has attended to, I have heard a good deal of "half" among the lawyers about their fees and what they claim is a fair fee to charge a poor granger for attending to a law suit for him, and I find they estimate their services to be pretty valuable, for instance I see by the court records that Crites & Ramsey (the fellows who are raising Cain about Mr. Beeson charging $100 for services he has rendered the county) in the case of J. P. Fitzgerald vs John Fitzgerald, the contractor. When these men recovered a judgment at the present term of the district court for three hundred dollars and no sooner had they recovered that judgment against John Fitzgerald, the contractor, than they filed their attorneys lien for $300 for their fees. I cannot see how such lawyers can honestly make a charge like this, and honestly offer to do the whole business of Cass county for $147.50 with law suits in the district and supreme courts.

An Amused Spectator. This morning the case of the State vs. Curtis on the criminal docket, was called up for trial and nearly the entire forenoon was consumed in selecting the jury—District Attorney Strode for the prosecution and Crites & Ramsey for the defense.

This case has excited a good deal of interest, on account of the good character and standing the accused has always possessed up to the charges under which he stands indicted. It will be remembered that Mr. Curtis, who taught school last winter three miles south of this city, was along in the month of March arrested on a warrant charging him with stealing two fifty dollar bills from his room-mate, Mr. Hull, at his boarding place. The case was up before County Judge Johnson, last spring for preliminary hearing, at which time Curtis was bound over to appear before the grand jury, which afterward indicted him. Curtis had no difficulty in securing bail, and he has appeared promptly for trial. This forenoon the prosecution outlined its course stating what the State expected to prove; that Curtis, knowing Hull had the money, abstracted it from Hull's trunk, going to Omaha, spending a portion of it and getting the bills changed. That sheriff Hyers being put on his track, found him at Louisville, where he was searched and something over a hundred dollars was found on his person; that Curtis came to Plattsmouth with the sheriff and going to Hull restored to him ninety dollars, promising to return the other ten and asking Hull to say that he had found his missing money, and not to prosecute him.

The defense in stating the case to the jury, said that they would prove, that Curtis had at the time of his arrest more of his own individual money earned through teaching school, than was found on him; that he did not take Hull's money, but when charged with the crime, surrendered what money he had rather than be subjected to a trial; that Curtis felt the disgrace of the crime charged to him so much that he was willing to pay the money lost rather than go through a trial. This afternoon the evidence is being heard, and the case will be carried through and given to the jury this evening.

Sugar Culture.

Jas. J. H. Gregory, the well known seedsman of Marblehead, Mass., a practical man of wide experience has this to say on sugar culture and sugar tax: Two hundred thousand pounds of sugar and twenty-five thousand gallons of superior molasses were made in New Jersey the past season from sugar cane grown on the spot; and near Champaign, Ill., one hundred and fifty thousand pounds of sugar and twenty-two thousand gallons of syrup. The latter was made from sugar cane grown close at hand on two hundred and fifty acres of land. In the Illinois experiment the clear profits averaged $30 to the acre. Any one familiar with the agriculture of the west knows that there is no grain crop raised that will pay profits near that sum.

The west is full of enthusiasm and filled with hopeful anticipations of what they can do towards supplying the country with home grown sugar and molasses, and thus save for home use the two hundred millions of dollars annually sent into foreign countries for their purchase. In this state of affairs numerous petitions are circulating in the community asking Congress materially to reduce the duty on sugar.

Can a movement be conceived of as more inopportune than this? Were the production to be limited, as in the past years, to the little belt of country at the tail end of Louisiana, every wise man would raise a sign, but manufacturing industries are being so rapidly developed in the south that she cannot, as in former years, ask us to protect her sugar industry as a return to the protection to our woolen and cotton mills, in which she had no interest. As the case now stands, here is the industry of the east that has established the country that heretofore has been local, but now proposes to be national; an industry beyond the tentative stage, really in the bud, ready to burst forth and cover the prairies of the great west and valleys of New England with a rich fruiting tree of sugar cane industry, it needs the fostering of government in its young years. Organization machinery and education are the best processes of manufacture, each and all absorb many dollars of expenditure before there can be one dollar of product. Let us tenderly with it in its young years.

The sugar beet industry is also worthy of encouragement. True, there have been several failures to make the enterprise pay, but the early history of this same enterprise in both France and Germany was but one of those failures. Whether it has been established, the fact that some of our enterprises violated certain fixed climatic conditions, and therefore in a long run must have failed; they were located where the rainfall was not opportune for the successful raising of the crop. Let Congress but grasp this sugar question with but a title of the broad statesmanship exhibited by Napoleon I. in the interest of France, and the speedy success of this young effort among the farmers of the country at large to grow our own supply, and so retain within our own borders the two hundred million sent out to enrich the foreigner, would be assured beyond a shadow of a doubt.—Rural Neb.

A Noble Boy. Two boys, aged about sixteen years, named Ephraim Lewis and Budd Cowger, living seven miles southeast of Ullyses, in Seward county, went out hunting Sunday morning. Cowger had an instrument with one rifle barrel and one shotgun barrel. While Lewis was walking a few yards ahead of Cowger, a flock of chickens flew up in front of the former, when Cowger fired the rifle barrel of the ball entering Lewis' body under the left arm passing through the lungs and lodged in the right shoulder. Lewis lived about one hour and before he died said: "Don't hang Budd because it was not his fault.—Lincoln Journal.
