Things are in good shape for having one of the largest Fourth of July celebrations ever known in Cass county. It is for the benefit of a Sisters' school in this place. Mr. John Fitzgerald has kindly donated the use of his forty acre lot to hold the picnic and celebration in. Most all the leading citizens have kindly consented to take part. A general invitation is extended to all societies to participate. Large delegations from Omaha, Council Bluffs and Lincoln have signified their intention to be present.

A meeting of the sportsmen's club was held at Geo. S. Smith's office last night, and reports were had from the different committees in charge of the Tournament, all whom reported their work finished, or well under way. The reports are coming thick and fast from parties and sportsmen all over the State who will be in attendance, and it is safe to say that the attendance will be the largest ever assembled at a State Tournament. Frank Sherwin, fireman on an A. & N. passenger engine, met with a painful hurt down at Sallito on Tuesday evening. He was doing something about the engine and had his right arm in between the spokes of a wheel, when the machine was started forward through mistake and the arm wrenched and crushed in a serious manner before his position was discovered by the engineer. He was brought to this city where he will rest for a month or so, or until the business of repairing the wounded limb has been gone through with in nature's work-shop.—State Journal.

The assessment returns are all in, and the Fourth ward work done by Martin McGuire, takes the cake. In all his figures and summing up, Martin did not make a single error. This is the first time that an assessors book has been returned from any of the city wards in years, wherein it was not necessary to change a figure, and the assessor of the 4th ward has shown that he is a competent man for the place. The only other precinct in the county sending in returns without clerical errors, is Liberty; Geo. N. LaRue, the assessor there, not having an error in his work. The county commissioners are now sitting as a board of equalization at the clerk's office, to whom any should appeal who feel aggrieved over their assessment.

The following tells how to make a cheap hammock: Take a piece of Manila matting two or three yards long and a yard and a half wide, bind or hem the ends firmly, then fasten each end to a piece of timber. These pieces should be five feet long, two inches thick, and should have holes bored in it about three inches apart the whole length. The matting is fastened by passing heavy twine from matting to hole, back and forth, sewing the matting to the wood. For each end of the pieces of wood, larger holes are bored through, which pass ropes to hang the hammock between two trees. This makes a cheap, comfortable hammock. Being hung from four corners there is no danger of rolling out, and a half dozen children can swing in it at pleasure.

A Complete Wreck.

"Is Mr. Tilden in?" asked the interviewer. Hardly had he got the words out of his mouth before Mr. Tilden in a full suit of chain armor, leaped from the second door with the remark in a voice like thunder:

"Here I am, young man. What is wanted?"

The reporter managed to murmur something about "candidacy" and "convention;" but before he had time to proceed further, the sage had turned a double back-somersault and informed the interviewer that he was out of politics.

"May I inquire who is your first choice?" asked the interviewer, timidly.

"My first choice?" shouted Mr. Tilden in his excitement wrenching three or four uprights from the stair railing; "I have no first choice. The country, however, wants a strong man," and he struck the heavy, oaken front door a tremendous blow, knocking it completely off its hinges. "However," he added, with a roguish wink, "you understand."

The reporter understood, and he returned to the office and informed the world through the columns of his newspaper that Mr. Tilden was a "complete wreck."—Boston Transcript.

PETTIT'S BODY FOUND.

A Dispatch From Nebraska City.

Agent Latham received a dispatch today from Nebraska City stating that the body of a man was found floating in the river there this morning. The telegram says the man was about 30 years old, full beard, with some gray streaked in it, the man being dressed in a checked shirt and heavy pants and without coat or vest. There is no doubt but what it is the body of Pettit, and Mr. Latham telegraphed back to the city to hold the body until parties could go down and identify it. Mr. Pettit's folks have been notified of the finding of the body, and this afternoon a team will go the city with parties to identify and bring home the remains.
