The HERALD is glad to learn from inquiries among farmers who are in the city today that no storm to do any damage has occurred among them, and it is evident that the heavy wind and scattering hail of last evening was confined almost entirely to this city and immediate vicinity. It will be remembered in this connection that tomorrow is the anniversary of the great hail storm of a year ago.

A Texas Liar

"I never knew Sam Baldwin to tell the truth but once," remarked Colonel Foley to Jim Mitchell, the latter being in Foley's store, one day.

"If Sam Baldwin told the truth, it must have been by accident," responded Mitchell.

"You have hit it precisely; it was by accident that he told the truth. He had an old shot gun that had been in the family for forty years, and one day he put two loads in one barrel, and when he fired the gun burst in a thousand pieces. When Sam was restored to consciousness, his head was banded up, and the doctors were exploring for the relics of the battle. The biggest piece of that gun which could be found was about two inches long, and was dug out from under his collar bone."

"What did Sam say?"

"He said that if he lived to be 1,000 years old he would never fire off that gun again, and he never did, for no one could find that gun again when there was nothing left of it to fire off, except the piece Sam had hid away under his collar bone."

"Just as I said. He never told the truth unless it happened by accident.—Texas Siftings.

JUST THE THING.

Fills the Bill to a Dot, and as Things Get Hot Politically, Everybody will Want It.

The special edition of the B. & O. Red book, devoted to the history of the Republican party and its antecedents, is an almost indispensable publication to those at all interested in the development of the campaign of the year. Great care is manifested in the compilation of data, and while everything is stated in the most concise manner, the information is so clear and explicit, as to be readily comprehended. The chapter devoted to the origin of the party and its national outcome from the dismemberment of prior parties is of exceeding interest, as is also the points showing party policy as expressed through Congressional action.

The condensed proceedings of the National Conventions of the various parties, from the earliest period of the country's history, to the present; is of no ordinary value, and it is a thing never before attempted in such form of publication. Indeed, it would be difficult to tell of all the important information gathered together and shown so intelligently in the little book.

Those who desire so invaluable a text book for handy reference, as matters grow interesting, will not delay long in enclosing a two cent stamp with their address to C. K. Lord, Baltimore, this being the only requisite to secure a copy. In addition to the data having direct bearing upon the one party, there is a vast amount of information given as regards both parties, and with the Red Book at hand no one need be at loss for an authority to settle almost any question as to political history which may come up. In common with all the B. & O. publications, it is a model of perfect typography, the make-up a d type used generally being very far above the average political text books.

THE STORM.

The Worst of the Season, Sweeps Over Lincoln.

Probably the worst storm that has visited Lincoln this season swept down upon us about six o'clock last night from the southwest. In the western part of the city it was not considered much of a storm, and outside of a few trees that were broken no damage was done.

East of Thirteenth street, however, the gale was little less than a cyclone, and from meagre reports received it is believed that the country to the east of the city, suffered even more severely.

The storm began by a stiff breeze from the southwest which filled the air, as well as the eyes, ears and mouths of pedestrians, with dust. The wind did not reach its height, however, until the rain began to fall. This, of course, settled the dust, but it rendered pedestrianism more disagreeable than before. The rain was accompanied by a slight fall of hail, not enough to do any damage in the city, but we learn that the rural districts suffered quite seriously. The storm was of very short duration, and after it had subsided, a reporter started out to see what he could see and hear.

The most noticeable effect of the storm was the large number of trees broken. Large limbs six or eight inches in diameter were twisted off and carried in some instances a hundred feet, while others were broken off just above the ground, and left to blockade the sidewalks and streets.

The broom factory of N. W. Frazer, on the corner of Fourteenth and P, standing broadside to the south, felt the full force of the wind and was left fully two feet off from a plumb line.

One of the houses on Sixteenth street, now being remodelled by T. F. Barnes, is somewhat rickety and out of line, and appears to have been moved about two inches on its foundation.

W. J. Lamb's wind mill, just in the rear of G. M. Lumberton's residence on Fourteenth street, was leveled to the ground.

After the storm a farmer living about four miles east came to town to get glass, saying that every window in the south and west sides of his house was broken. He reports that the hail cut the corn down pretty badly.

Further reports could not be obtained last night, but it is probable that some very bad news will come in today—State Journal.

The horse doctor has the floor this afternoon and the Cleveland boom has hastened to its setting. At the corner of Waterman's opera house the veterinary physician was holding forth this afternoon to a large and appreciative audience. However, when the HERALD man witnessed him produce a pair of horse forceps about the size of a steam excavator, our teeth quit aching. The doctor said his method of extracting teeth for horses, was to first procure a horse with a tooth, he then attached his extractors and turned the horse loose sooner or later the molar is found in the possession of the extractor, and that is called the square root of the business. Another thing your reporter learned from his brief attendance upon the lectures was that some horse doctors could neigh at a read report write.

We noticed some splendid specimens of horse flesh, the property of the veterinary surgeon.

WHEN THE FIRE IS OUT

Magic No More a Mystery—Seen From Across the World.

"Harour of Aleppo," said Sir Philip Dervel, "had mastered every secret in nature which the magic seeks to fathom. He discovered that the true art of healing is to assist Nature to throw off the disease— to summon, as it were, the whole system to eject the enemy that has fastened on a part. His process all included the reinvigoration of the principal of life.

In this the Eastern sage merely anticipated the practice of the best physicians of today, what life itself is, nobody knew then—nobody knows now. But we have learned something of the reasons why the mysterious tide rises and falls. Provided the great organs of the body are not irreparably destroyed, medical science can always relieve and often cure. Yet no reputable physician now adheres to the barbarous and stupid process attempted to cure diseases by reducing the patient's ability to resist it. Now-a-days we do not tear down the fort to help the garrison—we strengthen it. In this intelligent and beneficent work, it is conceded that PARKER'S TONIC leads all other medicines. As an invigorant it acts immediately and powerfully upon the circulation and the organs of digestion, thus giving Nature the assistance she calls for. It is the laws that ailments of the stomach, kidneys and liver are at once relieved or cured. No other preparation embodies the same qualities or produces similar results. It is delicious to use, and the best known anti-intoxicant. Price 50c and $1. Hiscor & Co., New York.

Call for Blaine and Logan cigars wherever you deal, as they are the best nicker cigar in the market. If your dealer does not keep them induce him to get them.

Fruit Record

We again call the attention of our fruit growers to the importance of keeping a record of the varieties as well as quantities of fruit's grow in Otsego county for the year 1884, as well as the price for which it is sold in the market, either by the bushel, gallon, quart or pound.

A little pass book, only costing five cents, will answer the purpose, and when a bushel of fruit or pound of grapes are disposed of, put it down, and in the meantime approximate as near as you can the amount consumed at home—charging yourself the market price of the same. By this means we can tell exactly or approximate very closely, the value of the fruit crop from year to year, and become better advised as to what variety of fruits are best to cultivate—both for home use and to ship to distant markets.
