Three Groves Letter. The wind blew a gale last night from the southwest that was frightful for a hailstorm farmer to witness; however the damage is not as bad as would be expected on examination this morning.

The corn is blown down and twisted around considerable and broken off. Small grain is injured by being blown down; grain that has been cut and put up in shocks are blowover. No damage has been reported other than to crops up to this writing: very little rain fell, not enough to wet a man in his shirt sleeves. Orchards are injured to some extent by the fruit being blown off. The corn will very likely straighten up again and in a few days the growing crops will be on their feet again.

REPORTER. The Coming Statesman.

Hon. C. O. Whedon, of Lincoln, visited this metropolis Wednesday. His mission was of a political nature, the Republican ventures to presume. It is said that Mr. Whedon is ambitious to represent this district in congress. The ambition is a laudable one, but our surmise is that the kingdom of Gage will give him a black eye, whatever the outcome may be in other principalities.

Yes, Mr. Whedon has been in the combination business for months on the congressional matter in this district.

The HERALD would advise Mr. Whedon not to neglect Lancaster as he fences all the other counties. With Cass, Saunders, Gage, Otoe, Nemaha, Richardson, Douglas, Pawnee and Johnson, it would look bad to not have Lancaster. Make it unanimous Mr. Whedon, while you are about it.

The Watch companies of this country seem to be at arms. Prices of movements have fallen within the last thirty days from 25 to 50 per cent. From Over the Range. ROSITA, COLO., July 17, 1884.

DEAR HERALD:—Leaving Plattsmouth on the 13th inst., I awoke at Hastings at 5 a. m. on the morning of the 14th, and proceeded to post myself in a position to observe the improvements, crops, etc., of the Republican Valley. I found on every hand new farm houses, new barns, the prairies spotted with fresh breaking of the sod, and from Red Cloud to McCook as fine crops of wheat, corn, oats and millet as I ever saw growing in the eastern counties of our productive young state.

Late rains had thoroughly drenched the whole face of the country from Red Cloud to Akron, Colorado, which almost insures a maturity of corn crops. A finer looking country than the Republican Valley today would be hard to find.

Upon arriving at Denver I found the same bustle that distinguishes that city from many above cities of the same size; but as I was promenading the streets I saw too many posters of "To Rent" to denote prosperity. Along down the foot hills of the Rockies from Denver to Pueblo (the Pittsburgh of Colorado) the country seemed very dull and quiet. Pueblo was smoking away and presented every appearance of a lively, prosperous city. The railroad system in the interior of Colorado has suffered much from high waters, travel west of the range being impeded for the present. This camp and all those near about here are exceedingly dull, only now and then a mine that is working. The amount of money that has been wasted in putting up mills and other machinery in this camp and Silver Cliff, that is lying idle and rotting away, would put up and erect a half dozen good colleges in the agricultural states, and bless humanity for centuries to come.

I do not think that I am exaggerating when I say that within a circle of fifteen miles of where I am sitting, there is three million dollars of value in buildings and machinery that has not turned a wheel for years, and is absolutely rotting down and going to waste. Then you can imagine about how the people with such an aspect before them look and feel.

I go from here to Leadville and hope to find something more cheerful.
