Call for Republican Judicial Convention.

The republican electors of the second Judicial District of Nebraska are requested to send delegates from the several counties to meet in convention at Plattsmouth, Tuesday, August 19, 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for District Attorney, selecting a central committee and such other business as may properly come before the convention. The several counties are entitled to representation as follows, being based upon the vote cast for J. M. Hlatt, regent of the university, giving one delegate at large, and one for every one hundred and fifty votes and major fraction thereof:

Cass county.....	12
Lancaster county.....	11
Ohio county.....	11
Total.....	34

It is recommended that no proxies be admitted to the convention unless held by persons residing in the counties from which the proxies are given.

C. A. HOLMES, Chairman.
J. B. STROBE, Secretary.
Lincoln, June 28, 1884.

Republican District Convention.

The Republican Electors of the First Congressional District of Nebraska are invited to meet in convention at Plattsmouth, Wednesday, August 28, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for Congress, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the convention.

The several counties are entitled to representation as follows, being based upon the vote cast for J. M. Hlatt, Regent of the University, giving one delegate at large, and one for every one hundred and fifty votes and major fraction thereof:

AT RANDOM.

A generous, a noble deed, performed by an adversary, commands our approbation; while in its consequences it may be acknowledged prejudicial to our particular interest.

A Burlington girl has a diary devoted entirely to noting down the visits of her beaux. She calls it her court dock et.

The Irish vote has been the backbone of the democratic party in New York. Prior to the democratic convention the Irish leaders sent word that they would not support Cleveland, and gave their reasons. We have a theory that the democrats will not be able to herd the Irish vote this year in consequence. It will not stand the snubbing.

"Do you call this a fresh egg, madam?" he asked as he turned from his plate to the landlady.
"Sir," she said, in a voice meant to paralyze him clear through, "I am no hen, and I do not know. I am simply a poor overworked landlady who runs $14 behind expenses last month."

The wife is called the better half, but in the base ball season the husband bets for the whole family.

John Kelly will send his congratulations. Precautions will be taken to tie a string to them, however.

A good story is told of the bishop of Atlanta, Ga. He recently addressed a large assembly of Sunday school children, and wound up by asking them in a very paternal and condescending way, "And now is there a-a-y little boy or a-a-y little girl who would like to ask me a question?" After a pause he repeated the question, "Is there any little boy or a-a-y little girl who would like to ask me a question?" A shrill voice called out: "Please, sir, why did the angels walk up and down Jacob's ladder when they had wings?" "Oh, ah!—yes, I see," said the bishop; "and now is there a-a-y little boy or a-a-y little girl who would like to answer little Mary's question?"

A Omaha youth calls his girl "Ice Cream," because she is cool and sweet.

Is it not about time that these disappointed ones moved along and left decent people in peace? If they have anything to say against Mr. Blaine, in heaven's name let them come out with it like men, and if they have nothing, let them keep their heads shut. The country is tired of this perpetual chin music. Mr. Blaine was nominated by the duly elected representatives of the republican party. At the news of his nomination the country broke out into a shout of triumph that is ringing and echoing yet, and in its present humor the country has neither time to listen to Curtis' doleful music, nor inclination to smile at the antics of his monkey, Nast. Blaine is for the people and the people are for Blaine, and Curtis and the Weekly are, or soon will be, forgotten.

"Doctor, I come to see you about my younger brother."
"What is the matter with him?"
"One of his legs is shorter than the other, and he limps. Now, what would you do in a case of that kind?"
"I reckon I'd limp, too."

There are but three ways for a man to revenge himself of the censure of the world: To despise it, to return the like, or to endeavor to live so as to avoid it. The first of these is usually pretended, the last is almost impossible; the universal practice is for the second.

Here we are, a nation of 50,000,000 people sailing along, and not a word of direction or advice from Wayne McVeagh for nearly two months. Does Wayne suppose George William alone will save the Republic from ruin?

If you would not have affliction visit you twice, listen at once to what it teaches.

Old Mr. White was somewhat irritable when he came down to breakfast, and when his wife reproved him for neglecting to tie up the dog before going to bed the previous night, he answered her rather snappishly. Then they had some words and she said:

"Well, I'm sure I don't know how you expect we'll agree in the next world if we can't agree in this one."
"Oh, we'll agree well enough in the next world," said Mr. White sarcastically, "we won't see much of each other there. You know the Bible says there's a great gulf fixed between the two places."

Having said this the old gentleman caressed his bald head and snickered to himself.
Mrs. White was thoughtful for a moment, then, with a twinkle in her eye she said:

"This is the first I knowed of your havin' given up all hopes of goin' to heaven."
The conversation dropped.

George William Curtis thinks the "bolt is growing steadily." Yes, it grows like an iceberg in July and August.

When we are young we are slavishly employed in procuring something so that we may live comfortably when we grow old, and when we grow old we perceive it is too late to live as we proposed.

We meet in society many attractive women whom we would fear to make our wives.

There are soft moments even to desperadoes. God does not, all at once, abandon even them.

Dan Voorhees says, "The republican party is like the squab—biggest when first born." We would like to suggest to the tall sycamore that he open his mouth and say something more, whenever he hears of the squab being born the second time. Even a cat has eight more lives than the squab but only one birth. It is understood, by the way, that the Buttonwood bases his opposition to the ticket on account of Logan's western manner and dreadful grammar.

garding various circumstances which had turned the stomachs of different people. When dinner was ready, Johnny began to help himself very vigorously, until stopped by his aunt, who said, wishing to suggest grace before meat.

"My little boy, we always say something before we eat."
"Oh," said Johnny, "go ahead and say what you please; you can't turn my stomach."

There is a great deal of Democratic testimony on record to the effect that Grover Cleveland is not a fit man to be president.

A lady member of the Female Se-risis Club agitated the subject of starting a weekly newspaper, "conducted wholly by women without the assistance of a male man."

The paper was launched on the already troubled waters and hundreds of copies made ready for "entered at the Postoffice as matter of the second class" The enterprising lady called upon the postmaster for bags wherein to ship the papers to the government building. She was required to sign the necessary blank for bags, and an order was issued to grant her four mail bags.

She read it through very carefully before signing it, and her hesitation was observed by the postmaster, who informed her that it was a form adopted by the department to keep track of the bags.

"Oh, that does not trouble me in the least," replied the lady; "but can you not alter the reading of the blank, or prefix the letters 'fe' to male, so that it would read female bag, instead of male bag, as our paper is so thoroughly devoted to women that we desire to be distinctly independent of anything of a male character."

Mail bags in that office are nailed up in the wood box.

Troubles spring from idleness and grievous toils from needless ease; many, without labor, would live by their wits only, but they break for want of stock.

A couple of Hoosier statesmen were traveling from Chicago to Washington with Senator Logan. The latter occupied a seat by himself and was engaged in reading a magazine. His companions seated immediately behind him were discussing the rules of whist. They got into a heated argument over the rule that requires a player, when in doubt, to lead trumps. After talking several minutes, one of them applied to the Senator: "General," he said, "when you're in doubt what do you do?" Logan, half turning his swarthy face towards his questioner answered in a cool matter-of-fact way: "Consult Mrs. Logan."
