An emigrant was on the streets today with a four-horse team, consisting of two oxen and two cows yoked to a wagon.

The city is as quiet today as though there was a county seat election, and old Sol pours down his rays upon the devoted heads of those who have to be abroad, with unrelenting fury.

Yeats, at his barber shop, has the most expressive and convincing campaign document that a fun-loving public ever saw. It is an object lesson that every democrat should see.

The lawn party given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church at Thomas Pollock's last evening, was largely attended, and the pleasant evening and social gathering was enjoyed by all present.

One of the entertaining features of the ice delivery in the city is when the ice wagon drives up to a residence and the boy in charge introduces his coming by swearing at his team in a manner to do credit to a pirate.

The firemen started forth this morning at 5 a. m. accompanied by the B. & M. band for the state tournament at Omaha. If the weather at Omaha corresponds with the weather here, they will have a warm time of it an no mistake.

The young mens' republican meeting held last evening decided to procure full suits for the fall campaign, and they will be ordered just as soon as the members of the club leave their orders with the secretary. In this connection, all members of the club are called upon to interview Mr. H. N. Dovey, secretary of the club, and leave their orders.

Despite the tropical weather and grievous days and nights that do annoy, some twenty couple of the T. A. M. club held a dancing party in Rockwood Hall last evening. The occasion was a partial farewell to Miss Hawke, of Nebraska City, Miss Anderson, of Genwood and Miss McElroy, of Fair field, Iowa, who have been visiting friends in this city. The party is described by the participants as a most pleasant and enjoyable one.

Plattsmouth sent another needy one to the Home of the Friendless this morning. The person in question was a young woman with a babe, who had been deserted by her husband. She came to this city to live with her parents, but as they are very poor people they could not keep her, consequently the ladies of the Home in this city, secured her a place in the State Home for the Friendless at Lincoln.

There is a man in this county to whom the cake deservedly belongs for unequalled cheek. He is supervisor of a road district, and evidently takes a wide view of his official privileges. The other day he went into Bradt & Grimes' and called for a drink of whiskey. He drank it and said, "Charge it to the road district." The barkeeper replied that the house didn't do business with the road district. "Oh, thats all right," he said, "out at Filley we get whatever we want and have them charge it to the road district." He walked out, leaving the barkeeper to charge it to the road district or to who he pleased. We don't believe the road district will pay it.—Beatrice Express.

A Railroad Rumor.

Some few days ago the Denver Tribune published the statement that the B. and M. were arranging to contract in a very short time for the building of four hundred miles of new road west from Denver, and through the mountains.

The Chicago Times considers the statement of sufficient weight to republish it, and it may mean business. The B. and M. folks have now four surveying parties working west of Denver, and they have been surveying in the mountains for the last three years. Evidently this work is not for nothing; and the Denver and Rio Grande railroad connection is proving anything but what the B. and M. desire, so it may not be a surprising fact to see the latter company commence work at once in a new broad gauge line from Denver to Salt Lake. In which event, it will mean business all along the road.

A New Campaign Club.

Last night while the leading citizens slept beside their wives and were happy while the bats fitted in the darkness and the owls hooted up in Central park, Richey's lumber yard was the scene of another midnight meeting—a gathering of patriots was there held to organize a campaign club. From the record of the meeting found this morning on a shingle in the yard the following were among those present:

Col. Ruffner, Lieut. Col. Krehler, C. Whopper Sherman, Stonequarry Draper, U. S. Judge Crites, J. Smiling Hartman, Patriot Ramsey and other who appeared to take little part in the meeting. After striking several matches, and illuminating the darkness sufficient to ascertain that Bro. Connor was not present, and after posting private Hartman as a sentinel to shoot him on any spot if he should appear, all stood up and were sworn to secrecy excepting Stone quarry Draper, who was led up before patriot Ramsey, who at once pointed out to Bro. Draper the evil effects coming from his giving the stone quarry vote business away and who on account of his loquacious disposition must be doubly guarded. The judge then administered to Brother Stone Quarry Draper, the iron clad oath, and business proceeded; after much discussion as to a name for the club, in which some advocated calling it "Bachelor Cleveland Club," and others favored Hendricks old organizations name, "Knights of the Golden Circle," it was decided with the greatest unanimity to straddle the question at issue, and call the club "Knights of the Bachelors Circle." This settlement of a very momentous question elicited great applause, and the following officers were at once elected:

Grand Jos—Chairman Ruffner. Grand Enunciator—Judge Crites. Grand Fiddlesticks—C. W. Sherman. Grand Watchman of Connor—Patriot Ramsey. Grand Collector of Delinquent Assessments—Col. Krehler. Grand keeper of the Sacred Relics—W. Mickelwait. Janitor of the Lumber Yard—Private Hartman.

It is "Only."

J. Sterling Morton, the sage, philosopher and anti-monopolist of Arbor Springs Lodge, discourses at great length and with much unctation through the columns of the State Democrat. The epistle is directed to "Dear Watson," but the wad is aimed at the Protection wing of the democratic party in Nebraska. Mr. Morton, as one of the carpenters and joiners, authoritatively defines the mooted plank. He says it is crisp, direct and square-toed free trade: that it is "tariff for revenue only." This ought to settle the matter definitely, and the HERALD hopes there will be no more wrangling among the democratic leaders over this question. When one duly annointed and appointed by the Nebraska democracy performs the labor allotted to him, he ought to be authority, at least for what he intended to do and did. Morton says it is "only," and now we hope Mr. Monopoly Poppleton and the Rev. Dr. Miller will acquiesce and subside, and that all heresies and backsliding may be forever ended.

The Hastings Gazette Journal has the following particulars of Sunday night's storm:

At Grand Island the hail did but little if any damage, that city having suffered from the storm of Friday night, but a cyclone, which was easily distinguished from the balance of the storm, came down upon the U. P. car shops, and heavy and solid stone mason work as they are, the cyclone completely demolished one end of the building blowing in the end, and tearing off one end of the roof. It did no other damage until it struck the town of Phillips, on the Grand Island branch of the B. & M. Here it blew down two stores and a hotel. Those buildings, were not, as we understand it, entirely completed. At Central City the hail broke all the unprotected glass upon the north and west sides of the buildings, stripped the leaves from off the trees, and destroyed gardens and farmers' crops. At Columbus a heavy rain fell, but so far as we can learn no damage was done. At Juniata a house was blown to atoms. The occupant was badly hurt as he was just about to enter the cellar for safety.

A Card to my Friends.

I wish to extend my sincere and heartfelt thanks to the many friends who personally and otherwise attended to my family and the funeral of my darling wife. To my friends I cannot express my feelings. I felt their sympathy for me and my dear children in our great loss.

To those who had more direct management I would say that there was nothing left undone. The arrangements were perfect in every respect, and far beyond what I could have expected. R. D. GALLAGHER. Plattsmouth, July 21, 1884.

Both Puzzled and Mixed.

PLATTSMOUTH, July 21, 1884. ED. HERALD:—We are very much concerned, and would like to know if there has anything gone wrong in the democratic world, or if some of the leading spirits are in the habit of holding midnight revels, thereby frightening honest people out of their beds at untimely hours.

We were awakened last night by hearing some unusual noise, and quickly springing from the bed, we hastened to our window, and judge of our feelings, on beholding what appeared to be a full sized ghost. But as our room was in the second story, we felt comparatively safe, as his ghostship did not attempt to fly, but only kept moving about, getting into all sorts of shapes, now kneeling and bowing down like in earnest supplication for mercy, and again raising up like it would declare to the world its position and future prospects, now rushing madly forward until it reached the walk, and again rolling and tumbling into the middle of the street; and thus it kept on, always moving, never still, until we wondered if it was some troubled spirit, doomed to walk the earth at night for a period of years, and not being satisfied with its sentence, was groveling and supplicating mercy.

After becoming satisfied that it meant no harm to us, we again retired, but only to ponder the question in our mind as to what it was, and what its mission was if any it had.

On coming down stairs the next morning to see if his ghostship had taken himself off with the darkness, and left no traces, imagine our surprise on beholding that all the ghost there was or had been, was a late issue of the Plattsmouth Daily Journal, which had been blown by the wind until it seemed to be rising and kneeling as described.

Now, Mr. Editor, we would like to know, if the democrats are so dissatisfied with their nominated candidate, that the spirits of some of their leading lights, such as Mr. Sherman, can not rest easy in their beds at night, but must ever go wandering up and down through life, seeking, "they know not what."
