AT RANDOM.
"Are you a Theosophist?" inquired a St. Louis lady of a brilliant Bostonienne, who was visiting her.
"A what?" ejaculated the young lady from the Hub.
"Why a Theosophist?"
"Oh, dear, no; we have no such thing in Boston. The Sullivan list is the only popular one in Boston now."
Without mooting by degrees a man cannot attain high things, and the breaking of a ladder still casteth a man back and maketh the thing wearisome which was easy.
The Spartans were renowned for their courage, but even Spartan heroism pales before the courage of the woman who has resolved that her last year's bonnet is good enough for this fall.
"Insuperable objections to Cleveland other than political was the enigmatical way John Kelly put it when he was in Chicago. But his riddle is no longer hard to read. In the light of the exposure made by the Rev. Dr. Ball and others, its meaning is perfectly plain.
"My darling, you have never kissed me yet," she said.
"Haven't I?" she answered with a gurgling laugh.
"Never," he repeated, "and I wish you would now, will you?"
And she did.
"Ah! he said, "how sweet it is to feel the re-sure of your warm lips on my cheek." "Do you know why my lips are so warm?" she asked.
"Because—because," he stammered.
"Because," she broke in, "no ice cream has passed them for ever so long." He took the hint.

Nasby reports that the Corners have inaugurated the campaign "by shooting a nigger, and whenever the Corners sallies out and shoots a nigger or two it is a shore sine that the Dimecrisy is encouraged. To show our apprehensions we made up a club of one, for Harpers Weekly which I have agreed to read to the people in Bascom's every week out. All our 'em can understand some of the pictures, of the titles under 'em are read to 'em."

A stock yards small boy thoughtlessly ejaculated, while at the breakfast table a few mornings since, "O, dear, how I sweat!" quite to the horror of a youthful and very precise aunt, who reproved him for making use of so inelegant and impolite a term. "O, yes, I know all about it," he replied, in an impatient manner and petulant tone "horses sweat, men and women perspire, but giddy young things like you only glow."
It is with some good qualities as it is with the senses; they are incomprehensible and inconceivable to such as have them not.
Hickory poles are all the rage upon which to raise the Democratic banners; And yet Old Hickory declared: "The Union, it must and shall be preserved", Did not every Democratic State swear to destroy it? They have not a splinter of the Hickory left in the party.
An inward sincerity will, of course, influence the outward department, but where the one is wanting there is great reason to suspect the absence of the other.
Were we as eloquent as angels we should please some more by listening than talking.
Utah cannot vote for President and vice-President, but if she could Cleveland and Hendricks would have about six votes to one for Blaine and Logan.
Young husband: "How thoughtful you are of my comfort, love. I little knew what a treasure I was getting."
Bride: "I certainly am trying to be a good wife, dear, but to what do you particularly refer?"
"To that circular block of marble you had cut for me."
"Marble?"
"Yes; when I said we needed a stepping stone out in front on account of the height of the carriage, I had no idea you would relieve me of the trouble of getting it."
"Stepping-stone?"
"Yes, you left it on the sideboard to surprise me, didn't you love? But I saw it, and the gardener and I carried it out and put it in position; but it was very dangerous to allow the quarriesmen to place such a great weight on the sideboard. It might have broken it."
"Circular—stepping-stone—marble—side-board—great weight—Oh, you horrid brute, that was my first ice cake."
Men are not to be judged by their looks, habits and appearances, but by the character of their lives and conversations and by their works. 'Tis better that a man's own works than that another man's words should praise him.
Of all heavy bodies the heaviest is the woman whom we have ceased to love.
A woman whose husband was recently sent to the Arkansas penitentiary, wrote the following love letter to her loved one:
"I don't like to shake you now that you are in trouble, but under the circumstances it is the best thing I can do. The man you stole the hog from, has proposed to me, and I have consented to marry him. I am getting tired of the neighbors throwing it up to me that my husband is in the 'pen.' I'm going to marry this fellow quietly, and when they come around and say "Your husband's in the 'pen." I can call 'em a liar an' have 'em arrested for sander.
Henry Watterson, a few days before the convention wrote: The longer Grover Cleveland has been before the people the more he has weakened." This was the truth at the time and was prophetic of the condition since the convention.
Said bright eyed little Julia, a Queen City girl of five summers, who was giving evidence of some bodily pain, when asked by her mother if she had the back ache: "No mamma, but I've got the front ache."
Young wife (new to marketing—

"You may send a saddle of mutton for dinner."
Butcher—"Yes, madam. What kind will it be?"
"Well, as my husband is away, and there is no one in the house but mother and myself and the two servant girls, you had better send up a side saddle, I think."
When it comes to the election there is no doubt but that Cleveland will get more votes than his Massachusetts rival, but those cast for Ben Butler will be given with a warmth and enthusiasm that will make the Albany nonentity wish he could change places with the widow.
Abraham Lincoln was once a country postmaster, with a salary of less than $90 a year. The pay doesn't look very large now, but then Lincoln didn't have to read a pack of postal cards every day.
A Cincinnati genius has discovered a process for converting soruses into marble. He will continue to perfect his methods until the latter part of November when he will begin work on the body democriti.
Somebody has invented a safety hairpin which locks after being put in the hair, and is warrant not to fall out. This, indeed, fills a long felt want. How many a man's life has been embittered by his wife walking into his office and picking up a hair pin. Now, thank heaven and the security hairpin, all such unpleasant episodes may be avoided, and the life of a married man will flow on as smoothly as a mill stream.
In the holier seasons of life the image of the most beloved soul is hung, not in the parlor, and the ante-chamber, but in the dim, silent oratory. Only with loved ones do we speak of loved ones.
A gentleman who had been struck by a young lady's beauty, was determined to follow the injunction, "and kissed the rod that smote him."
Jones—Why what is the matter? You look ill.
Smith—I was out last night with the boys, and drank too much lemonade or something.
Jones—I thought so. Feel pretty bad don't you?
Smith—I feel just like the democratic ticket.
Jones—How's that?
Smith—Very heavy about the feet, and very light about the head.
