The B. & M. R. R. are extending their southern Nebraska lines and branches down into Kansas at Hanover in that state, they are completing their depot buildings, and are making that place a point from which to secure a large carrying trade from northern Kansas.

It is rumored that Judge Cass so thoroughly anointed his head and beard with carbolic acid last night, preparatory to holding that inquest, that when he returned home he was deuced admission, and was obliged to pass the night under the cold stars and the family clothes line. The HERALD does not vouch for this; so the Coroner will please not sue us for libel.

The police last night held a round up and in a box car in the north end of the B. & M. yards, they discovered seven men and a woman holding forth—all genuine tramps. They were all arrested and lodged in the cooler, where Chief Sage searched the men who disgorged two revolvers, and in one case a little money. This morning they were arraigned before the police court, who gave the men just ten minutes to leave the city.

Quin Bohanan. As for shalowed by the Press, Quin Bohanan will not be executed on the 8th of August. Yesterday Sheriff Canada received notice from Hon. Guy A. Brown, clerk of the supreme court to the effect that on the 8th inst., there was issued out of the supreme court a writ of error to the district court of the Second judicial district, in and for Otoe county, in an action lately pending in said district court, wherein the State of Nebraska was plaintiff, and one Quin Bohanan, alias Rayen, was defendant. This will stay proceedings until after the January meeting of the supreme court.—Neb. City Press.

A young man in this city, of very industrious habits, called upon Mr. McMurry recently and made the inquiry "if he invested his surplus salary in real estate, would the property be beyond the possibility of his disposal until reaching his majority?" Most assuredly, such is the law. "Well, then" said the anxious youth, "here is the amount I would like to invest, and shall make payments according to terms if health permits." Mr. McMurry took the funds, and made deed, remarking, if other young men of Lincoln wanted to pattern after this example, they could afford to marry when of age.—Lincoln News.

Tuesday evening about 9:30 p. m. there was an ominous gathering on the corner of Main and Sixth streets. From the assembled dozens who spoke in whispers, the venerable form of Cass county's "best Coroner" was seen, and he gave his instructions in a solemn tone that meant business, and well befitted the solemnity of the occasion. A HERALD representative gathered near and learned that the cause of the gathering was that our Sheriff had discovered out near the Platte bottom a newly made grave with a man enclosed in a rough box buried therein.

This gathering upon the street corner was the Coroner and a hurriedly gathered number who were going out to hold an inquest and unravel the mystery. The preparations for departure were soon made. Lanterns procured, spades were loaded in, and F. M. Richey procured from near at hand a new quart pickle bottle of disinfectant. It was proposed to secure our sweet and spirited contemporary of the Journal to make a few remarks at the grave, but the presence of so much disinfectant it was thought would cause the iron to enter his soul, so the procession moved onward without him. The order was as follows: First Coroner Cass, Sheriff Eikenberry, Asst. District Attorney Byron Clark, the Statutes of Nebraska. Second: The chief of Police, the HERALD reporter, two spades and a lantern. Third: The mourner's wagon, containing W. D. Jones, F. M. Richey, A. B. Todd, and others. The disinfectants were also in this wagon. Fourth: Citizens in carriages. Fifth: Citizens on foot.

As the HERALD rode along in such close proximity to the mourners our thoughts were necessarily solemn, until we remembered the old Indian brave that was buried out there last fall, and the sublimity of the farce dawned at once with all its brilliancy. The Coroner rode before, however, innocent of any disappointment or deception. Arriving at the scene Jones and Richey proceeded at once to disinfect themselves, and all followed the lead of the Coroner until they stood by the grave of the old Indian, who had been undisturbed for months. The Coroner looked a little shaky when he saw what the grave contained, and when a native rode up and remarked that he was present when the old Indian was buried, the inquest at once adjourned amid the applause of the audience.

Today it is rumored that a good share of the credit for setting up the job is due to a little gathering in Livingston's office last night, but at best there are several sets abroad—one of them is on our Coroner without doubt. There is one also on the Assistant District Attorney and the Statutes. The Sheriff also comes in for one to pay him for digging open the grave. Jones also is out a lively bill, and Marion Richey is out a bill for carbolic acid, and he has enough left now after all he and Jones used at the funeral to disinfect a whole cholera district. When it comes to cigars, however, call on the Coroner.

The Soldier's Home.
Do our citizens want it? It would seem not from the lack of interest in the matter. Plattsburgh has more than an equal show with any other place asking for it, to get it. The Home will cost not less than a million dollars. It will be occupied by not less than three or four thousand men when finished. Is it worth an effort from our citizens? It would seem every property owner ought to see what an advantage such an institution will be to him from a financial stand point.

Last night was the night for the regular monthly meeting of the board of trade. The secretary had sent cards to every member to be present, and it was understood that important business was to come before the board in relation to the securing of this Home, yet there was no quorum present.

Capt. Palmer, who has taken great interest in this matter, and who realizes just what is necessary to be done, and who knows what our chances are, was present, to make known what he thought ought to be done. The commissioners appointed to select the location, are expected to visit Plattsburgh in September. Little time is left to mature anything in a tangible form to present this commission when it comes.

Again important meetings relative to the locating of the Home in the State of Nebraska, are soon to be held, and if this city wants the support of the entire state, it can be secured by prompt and efficient work.

To this end a meeting of the board of trade is called for Friday next at 8 o'clock at the city council chamber to which meeting all the business men and citizens of this city who feel any interest in the matter, are invited.

Let every citizen of the town put his shoulder to the wheel and aid what he can. We can make a strong and favorable showing if we will. Let everybody turn out.

Capt. Palmer will be there to explain just what our chances are, and what we ought to do.

At the Cottage House, Tuesday night, of flux Mr. A. W. Lane.

Mr. Lane had been here working for the B. & M. in the yards since the last of May, until the beginning of his sickness two weeks ago. Nothing is known of his people or friends except from a letter found on his person from George Rogers of Silver City, Iowa, indicating that he was the owner of a blacksmith shop in that place. Mr. Frazier learned from conversation with Mr. Lane that he was the owner of 80 acres of land somewhere in Missouri, also of some wild land in Texas. He had no money on his person, but $30 was coming to him from the B. & M. The commissioners took charge of the body and will give it a decent burial. The man Rogers was notified by telegraph, but no reply has as yet been received.
