To see how the people feel in this campaign, hold a public meeting and see the enthusiasm for Blaine and Logan. It is a tide democracy can never stand against.

WHEN the democracy of Plattsmouth attempt to come up to the republicans in a public demonstration and meeting, the boys will turn out and have another meeting. They have just well commenced now.

J. L. CALDWELL, of Lincoln, one of the eloquent public speakers of the state, addressed a Plattsmouth audience for the first time at the great rally; his speech was replete with eloquence, patriotism and the facts which make the solid argument and is highly commended by all. We shall hear from him again.

WHEN James G. Blaine was nominated by the republican party, a direct appeal to that party's enthusiasm, to the younger and more vital elements of the party, to the masses of the people that party was made, and the people knew it. No nomination since the days of Lincoln was so enthusiastically ratified, and in no campaign in the history of the republican party have such campaign meetings been held early in the fight. In the face of such a state of affairs, no prediction as to results is necessary. The enthusiastic masses of the people rise and elect their nominee with a charge and a hurrah that demoralizes and routs the common enemy. Mr. Blaine, for these reasons, above any other, stands as good as elected today. A great campaign skill fully planned, the influence of interested industries, the work of skillful politicians, all aid and contribute to the general result; but no one factor will equal the popular uprising and enthusiasm of the people, as a whole, who have taken it as their special work and pleasure to elect the great commoner, James G. Blaine, to the Presidency.

A MAGNIFICENT MEETING.

The opening meeting of the campaign in this city under the auspices of the Young Mens' Republican club was the greatest political meeting ever held in Cass county.

Plattsmouth in other years of national campaigns has seen many fine demonstrations, but the equal of the torch light brigade that marched down Main street Monday night, with their accompaniment of transparencies, flags and fireworks has never been seen in this city, and the demonstration was simply on a magnificent scale that even exceeded the expectations of the members of the club, who have worked indefatigably for the success of this opening campaign meeting.

Of the three speakers, Messrs. Wilcox, of Illinois, Thurston, of Omaha, and Caldwell, of Lincoln, the former was unable to attend, owing to business difficulties which detained him in Denver. But this omission in no way marred the success, for Judge Thurston and Mr. Caldwell occupied the time in the most acceptable manner, and were listened to with the closest attention by over a thousand people who made as large an audience as has ever assembled in the Waterman opera house.

The Young Mens' Republican club are deserving of more than passing commendation for the magnificent meeting they have given the republicans of the county, and which will have a most salutary effect upon the campaign. Every member of that club had the success of the meeting directly at heart, and the HERALD knows whereof it speaks, when it says that no more wide awake, working club can be found in the country, working for Blaine, Logan and victory.

A RECENT SCENE.

"Is this Mr. Grover Stephen Cleveland, the democratic candidate for President?" "It is, sir." "I am Thomas A. Hendricks democratic candidate for the vice presidency, and I thought I would call on you." "Ah! my dear Hendricks, say no more. I am really glad to meet you. You must excuse the fact that I did say you a tribute of respect in my address to the notification committee, but really I had not been introduced to you and —" "O, I assure you it's no consequence. I never take offense at a little thing like that. I am delighted to strap you by the head that vetoed the Five Cent Fare bill, and —" "By the way, Hendricks, come down to New York and take a ride on the 'L.' I assure you that you will not be disturbed by the 'Northern mudsills' that o' hated during the war, if you will ride at, say 3 o'clock.—Burlington Hawkeye."

PLATTSMOUTH.

The Chicago Times in a double page article upon the great C. B. & Q. R. R. in describing the cities along its route says the following of Plattsmouth: PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., located where the Platte river joins the Missouri, in the county seat of Cass county, and is twenty miles south of Omaha. Cass county is mostly prairie, a small portion being valley and bluff. A superior quality of magnesian limestone is found there, and extensive quarries have been opened. It has a population of 20,000. Plattsmouth has a population of 5,000. The principle thoroughfare of the city is wide and well cared for by the authorities, and has eleven substantial business blocks. These buildings are mainly constructed of brick and stone, such materials being found in abundance in close proximity to the city. In addition to the business blocks, there are a large number of stores, work-shops, etc., in other parts of the city, while the Burlington and Missouri river railroad, belonging to the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy system, has extensive machine shops located here, occupying some fourteen acres of ground. The original town site and later additions embrace fully 600 acres. The railroad shops give employment to 400 men, paying them through the local banks from $22,000 to $25,000. One of the main attractions at Plattsmouth is the steel or dge. The bridge was built in 1850. There are two main spans 400 feet long and 60 feet above the water level, while the entire length is 2,900 feet. The bridge with its approaches cost nearly $1,000,000, and is a splendid example of engineering skill. Plattsmouth has a board of trade, good railroad connections, two trains each way between there and Denver, two each way with Kansas City and the south, three each way with Chicago and the east, and five each way with Omaha and the north. There are three banks of $50,000 to $75,000 capital, doing a good business. The different branches of business are well divided—large iron works, flouring mills, opera house, hotels, broom factory, and grist mills, ten stores for general merchandise, two elevators, five brick yards and two daily newspapers. The education of the youth is committed to the hands of an efficient corps of trained instructors, a high school and four ward departments affording ample accommodations for all applicants. Plattsmouth, although young, boasts of eight churches. Land is very productive. Any land in Cass county, which is level enough to plow, away from bluffs or streams, is first rate soil, and produces from 50 to 60 bushels of corn, 10 to 20 of wheat, 40 to 50 of oats or barley per acre, if well tilled. Good land is selling in any part of the county from $20 (wild land) to $60 per acre, according to improvements and nearness to markets.

JUDGE THURSTON made a most magnificent speech. He felt the enthusiasm of the hour, and he moved upon the wreck and rubble of the democratic party with his illustrations and stories in a way not soon to be forgotten.

The Young Mens' Republican club sends greeting to the Blaine and Logan clubs in the state; come down in old Cass and see how it is done.
