FOR PRESIDENT,

JAMES G. BLAINE of Maine.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, JOHN A. LOGAN of Illinois.

Call for Republican Judicial Convention.

The republican electors of the second Judicial District of Nebraska are requested to send delegates from the several counties to meet in convention at Plattsmouth, Tuesday, August 19, 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for District Attorney, selecting a central committee, and such other business as may properly come before the convention. The several counties are entitled to representation as follows, being based upon the vote cast for J. M. Blatt, regent of the university, giving one delegate at large, and one for every one hundred and fifty votes and major fraction thereof:

Cass county	13
Lincoln county	21
Madison county	21
St. Paul county	21
York county	21
Total	107

It is recommended that no proxies be admitted to the convention unless held by persons residing in the counties from which the proxies are given. Plattsmouth, Neb., July 1, 1884. J. B. STRODE, Chairman, D. H. WHEELER, Secretary.

Republican District Convention.

The Republican Electors of the First Congressional District of Nebraska are invited to send delegates from the several counties therein, to meet in convention at Beatrice on Wednesday, August 28, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for Congress, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the convention. The several counties are entitled to representation as follows, being based upon the vote cast for J. M. Blatt, Regent of the University, giving one delegate at large, and one for every one hundred and fifty votes and the major fraction thereof:

Del. Counties	Del.
Douglas	19
Gage	11
Johnson	9
Lincoln	12
Madison	12
Nebraska	21
Otoe	11
Cass	13
Total	130

It is recommended that no proxies be admitted to the convention, except such as are held by persons residing in the counties from which the proxies are given. C. A. HOLMES, Chairman. Lincoln, June 26, 1884.

Mr. W. B. WHITE had he lived would have been nominated for State Treasurer by acclamation. The field now seems to be an open one.

The editorial comment of the Journal is simply an exhibition of anger over the great republican campaign meeting. You are galled Jade winners.

Ed. J. HALL, who for years has run the Wahoo, has been the interests of Greenbackers, and with his demagogic and greenbackism in his eyes, has been a darkness will hunt.

The Credit Daily Globe is, upon our table, a neat, six column paper that will be the pride of the editor, but a distress to the pocket books of the publishing company. Such is the life of a daily paper in the glorious climate of Nebraska.

The present state treasurer, Phelps D. Surdevant, of Fillmore county, is to be the democratic candidate for governor if the state prevails and is not broken. We trust the slate will remain intact; after election the democracy will wonder what has become of their candidate anyway.

A. J. WEAVER will be re-nominated for Congress by acclamation. He will not only be re-nominated but re-elected, and the democratic party in the big First may bring Mr. J. E. Boyd forth and spur him for the race. As Ajax defied the lightning so Ajax may defy Boyd—neither of them are dangerous to our Ajax.

The republican county convention at Louisville will be a harmonious one. It will be a body of representative men who do not desire personal ends and personal spite to jeopardize the interests of the whole party. It will be republican in all the length and breadth of the term, and it will nominate a ticket that will represent all parts of Cass county, and that Cass county will elect.

1876. BLAINE. 1884.

The Republican nominee for the Presidency grows in strength every day, and we re-produce the eloquent tribute paid our next President by that gifted orator Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll, at the Cincinnati convention eight years since. What was true of Mr. Blaine then is true now, with the addition that the intervening years has brought experience in state-craft and politics. That Mr. Blaine is the ablest political leader in the United States is beyond dispute, even by the thinking men of his adversaries. With his political admirers everything that adds to the lustre of his fame is read with avidity. A perusal of the following is commended to our young republicans:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—Massachusetts may be estranged with royalty of Benjamin H. Bristow; so am I; but if any man nominated by this convention cannot carry the state of Massachusetts, I am not satisfied with the loyalty of that state. If the nominee of this convention cannot carry the grand old commonwealth of Massachusetts by 75,000 majority, I would advise them to sell out Faneuil hall as a democratic headquarters. I would advise them to take from Bunker Hill that old monument of glory. The republicans of the United States demand as their leader in the great contest of 1876 a man of intelligence, a man of well known and approved political opinions. They demand a statesman; they demand a reformer after, as well as before the election. They demand a politician in the highest, broadest and best sense, a man of superb moral courage. They demand a man acquainted with public affairs, with the wants of the people; with not only the requirements of the hour, but with the demands of the future.

They demand a man who is broad enough to comprehend the relations of his government to the other nations of the earth. They demand a man well versed in the powers, duties and prerogatives of each and every department of the government. They demand a man who will sincerely preserve the financial honor of the United States; one who knows enough to know that the national debt must be paid through the prosperity of this people; one who knows enough to know that all the financial theories in the world cannot redeem a single dollar; one who knows enough to know that all of the money must be made, not by law, but by labor; one who knows enough to know that the people of the United States have the industry to make the money, and the honor to pay it over as fast as they make it.

The republicans of the United States demand a man who knows that property and resumption, when they come, must come together; that when they come they will come hand in hand through the golden harvest fields; hand in hand by the whirling spindles and the turning wheels; hand in hand past the open furnace doors; hand in hand by the chimneys filled with eager fire, greeted and grasped by the countless sons of toil.

This money has to be dug out of the earth. You cannot make it by passing resolutions in a political convention. [Applause.]

The republicans of the United States want a man who knows that this government should protect every citizen at home and abroad; who knows that any government that will not defend its defenders, and protect its protectors is a disgrace to the world. They demand a man who believes in the eternal separation and divorcement of church and school. They demand a man whose political reputation is as spotless as a star, but they do not demand that their candidate shall have a certificate of moral character signed by Confederate congress. The man who has in full heaped and rounded measure all these splendid qualifications, is the present grand and gallant leader of the Republican party—James G. Blaine.

Our country, crowned with the past and marvelous achievements of its first century, asks for a man worthy of the past and prophetic of her future; asks for a man who has the audacity of genius, asks for a man who is the grandest combination of heart, conscience and brains beneath her flag—such a man is James G. Blaine. [Applause.]

For the republican host, led by this intrepid man, there can be no defeat. This is a grand year—a year filled with recollections of the revolution; filled with the proud and tender memories of the past; with the sacred legends of liberty—a year in which the sons of freedom will drink from the fountains of enthusiasm; a year in which the people call for a man who has preserved in congress what our soldiers won upon the field; a year in which they call for the man who has torn from the throat of treason the tongue of slander—for the man who has snatched the mask of democracy from the hideous face of rebellion; for this man who, like an intellectual athlete, has stood in the arena of debate and challenged all comers, and who is still a total stranger to defeat. [Applause.]

Like an armed warrior, like a plumed knight, James G. Blaine marched down the halls of the American congress and threw his shining lance full and fair against the brazen forehead of the defamers of his country and the maligners of his honor. For the republican party to desert this gallant leader now, is as though an army should desert their General upon the field of battle. [Applause.]

James G. Blaine is now and has been for years the bearer of the sacred standard of the republican party. I call it sacred because no human being can stand beneath its folds without becoming and without remaining free.

Gentlemen of the convention, in the name of the great republic, the only republic that ever existed upon this earth; in the name of all her defenders and of all of her supporters; in the name of her soldiers living; in the name of all her soldiers dead upon the field of battle, and in the name of those who perished in the skeleton clutch of famine at Andersonville and Libby, whose sufferings he so vividly remembers, Illinois—Illinois nominates for the next president of this country that prince of parliamentarians—that leader of leaders—James G. Blaine.

The vicious exhibition of anger exhibited by the Journal over the great republican meeting of Monday evening shows that the demonstration must have punctured his obtuse conception of a great meeting. Calling members of the Young Men's Republican club malicious liars, and applying opprobrious epithets to the demonstration is a magnificent argument in favor of democracy.

Advertising Cheats!!! "It has become so common to begin an article in an elegant, interesting style..."

"This run into some advertisement that we avoid all such." "And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible."

"To induce people "To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use any thing else."

"The remedy so favorably noticed in all the papers, Religious and secular is "Having a large sale and is supplanting all other medicines."

"There is no denying the virtues of Hop plant and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability."

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

"No!" "She lingered and suffered along, yining away all the time for years." "The doctors doing her no good?"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about, "Indeed! Indeed!" "How thankful we should be for that medicine."

"A Daughter's Misery "Eleven years our daughter suffered on the bed of misery. "From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and nervous debility."

"Under the care of the best physicians names, "Who gave her disease various names, "But no relief."

"And now she is restored to us in good health by a simple remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it."
