Crumbs from the Tent.
But few convened at the tent last evening owing to the rain and mud. A "patient continuance in well doing" was considered with some degree of interest Nov. 3:
Elder Nettleton goes to attend some appointments in the western part of the state, up in the Republican Valley. Elder Cudney returned from Kansas City this afternoon, and it is expected the third division of present truth will be considered, viz: "The nature and destiny of man." The rain caused but slight embarrassment at the tent.
For positive curative effects, one bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is worth three of any other name. wltde
You save money by buying your boots, shoes and slippers at Merges', where you have the largest assortment to select from. 611

Dont fail to hear "Blind Boone" at the opera house tomorrow night; it will only cost you 25c for any seat you wish.

The delegates from Avoca to the Co. convention are: A. Sheldon, William Rose, E. Heppner, John Davis, J. L. Hutchins, Walker Bates.

Miss Hattie Latham has a birthday party at her home on north Sixth street, this evening, and it is a safe prediction that all who attend will have a most enjoyable time.

Wm. Herold will this fall, build twenty feet additional room upon the room now occupied by him, which will give him as much leeway for business as any house furnishes in the city.

The long, steady rain of yesterday was just what is needed to round up and perfect Cass county's magnificent corn crop. It came just in time, in just the right way, and farmers were all glad to see it.

Business has been good in the city of late, a large number of hogs being delivered for shipment here, and the grain crop has commenced to move. Plattsmouth will see the highest times for trade this fall ever experienced in her history.

John A. Kouhn, consulting engineer and architect, Plattsmouth, Nebraska. Plans, estimates, and specifications furnished for bridges, roofs, railway construction cars, machine shops, private building, or other structures in iron, steel and wood foundations.

The answer has been filed in the case wherein Dr. Schildknecht is accused of doing injury to Mrs. Callahan's jaw, and the answer sets forth facts that contradict each and every allegation, showing that the Doctor simply extracted the tooth and was not attending her or had nothing to do toward contributing to the injury the woman claims to have received. The answer is complete, and ought to satisfy any who examine it.

Charles Barnes, last evening, celebrated his 18th birthday, some forty of his friends and schoolmates being present and making the evening a merry one. He was the recipient of numerous handsome presents, and the young folks were bountifully supplied with refreshments, some of the cake reaching this office this morning, and after a full discussion, we are prepared to say it was very good, indeed.

The health ordinances that have been running in the city papers for some time are published by order of the board of health, and they have been published for a purpose. That purpose is this: That every citizen might know the law, their duties in the premises and that they might act accordingly. The board of health propose to enforce those ordinances, no matter who they may hit, and those who do not comply with them, may expect the chief of police to enforce them, for their enforcement will be exacted to the letter.

Work will be commenced at once on moving away the old buildings on the corner of Main and Fifth streets where the new Bank of Cass County building will be erected and work on that will commence at once. Mr. Herold is figuring with the bank to build with them, and he will build half of the east wall if not an entire building this year. The bank will build their new building sixty feet deep, plans of which are now being made, and they will make other rooms out of the present building by moving it back on the lot.

From Elder Collins, of Galesburg, Dec. 4th, 1882.—Blind Boone visited our city, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1st and 2d. Large and appreciative audiences greeted him each evening and that they were not disappointed was evident from the frequent and prolonged applause which greeted his performances. It is no exaggeration to say that, considering his age and advantages he has no peer living. His entertainments are noble, classic and moral, suitable for church or hall, and cannot fail to please and edify all. Don't fail to hear him.—Wm. O. Collins, pastor of First M. E. Church.

Removal.
Remember that J. P. Young will remove from his present location on or before August 31st, to the room now occupied by Bennett & Lewis, one door west of Robert Sherwood, where he will carry in stock a full and complete line of school books and supplies, stationery, confectionery, largest and most complete stock of toys and holiday goods, doll perambulators, express wagons, toy carts, finest stock of albums ever seen in Plattsmouth, musical instruments, accordions, violins, harmonicas, fine stationery, best brands of cigars and tobaccos, periodicals, &c., &c., all of which will be displayed in his new room in the best style, and sold at the very lowest living price, and defy competition.

The representative of the Grimaldi family, dignified by the cognomen, Editor of the Daily Journal, (published in this city) takes exception to the transparency that reiterated the sentiment of his speech, made at last weeks meeting of the democratic squad.

The representative of the HERALD listened to the closing sentences of the speech made by this fellow, Sherman, and arrived at the same conclusion that the president of the club—Dr. Livingston and Mr. Weidman did. The former denounced the sentiments voiced by Sherman as the most outrageous and vile dogmas of Know Nothingism, and Mr. Weidman claiming to be what the high priesthood of the Shermites "would call a Dutchman" referred to his record and demeanor while a resident of Nebraska, and ventured the remark "that citizens of his class were quite as good as the Sherman heretics." Our fellow laborer in the press gang, by courtesy styled a contemporary, like the craven that he is, apologized for what he had said, venturing by way of parenthesis, to say that his hearers had misunderstood him, and saddled the responsibility of his heresy on his eastern exchanges. The Democratic hearers of the gifted editor of the Journal, repudiated his doctrine with a vehemence that startled the Republican Greely reformer.

Several years ago one "Blind John" Boone, a weaving, restless colored lad, a genuine musical prodigy and wonder appeared at the opera house here and gained some laurels and much praise from those who went to hear him. He visited a number of other points in the state, and everywhere the press and musicians were loud in their praise for him, declaring that even then, he was equal to Blind Tom in many respects and his ideas of classical music caused many to pronounce him Tom's superior. From Nebraska the boy was taken to Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio, and then to Kansas, and, if we may judge from the statements of the press and of musicians, opera house managers and professors of high standing in those states, then Blind Boone is indeed great. The prevailing opinion along the route traveled by him seemed to be that, being intelligent, he is able to comprehend and grasp ideas which Blind Tom could not, Tom being a simpleton. We learn that he will make a tour through this state, beginning in August. He will come as "Blind Boone" the name John having been dropped. It was the intention of the managers to begin their Nebraska tour here, but the opera house will not be in readiness until September, hence, we will be deprived of the pleasure of hearing him after his wonderful development, unless, perchance, arrangements be made to have him exhibit in one of the halls or churches. A statement from the president of the Young People's Society, of Lawrence, Kansas, shows that he played to nearly 800 people in their Plymouth Congregational church.—Lincoln Evening News, July 16, 1884.

A Voice From the Tent.
Among the interested listeners at the tent is a girl, about sixteen, who formulates some thoughts on present truth in the following words: we suggest the youthfulness, in this case that we may exercise more gentle criticism, than were we considering a production from one of riper years, she says:
"We are never too old to learn," is a true saying, and almost every day brings a new lesson to be learned: different ideas, and other thoughts to the observant mind.
So it is now in the latter days many new lessons are to be learned and many old ones, learned in error, must give way to the truth at last.
Now this doctrine, the subject of the second appearing of Christ, is made very prominent in the scriptures; but we lose sight of it by accepting theories found elsewhere. We often hear the statement that death, or conversion, is the second appearing of Christ, and it is received by many without a thought, as to the utter impossibility of such a procedure. Do not the Spiritualists generally agree in saying, "Lo, here is the second advent of Christ," in the manifestations of spiritualism? Are not these false prophets who have arisen at this day to deceive the people, in regard to His second coming, the same as the false prophets who arose to deceive the Jews at His first appearing? Math. 24: 4-5. It certainly seems so, and it is so, judging from the language found in Math. 24: 22-24. Not only has our Lord pointed out false prophets and warned us against their mystical teachings, but he has set in contrast before us, the manner of His second coming in the plainest terms.
The vivid lightning, flashing out of the distant east, and shining even to the west, lighting up the whole heavens, is the most appropriate figure our Lord could have employed to illustrate the flaming glory that shall attend His second advent, when he shall come with all his holy angels.
Again, can the prophecies be understood? Certainly. Why should they be in the Bible, if not to be understood.
Upon examination we find such perfect harmony in the different parts of the prophecy that a person can have but little excuse for not understanding the prophetic portions of Dan.: especially that relating to the main features.
Infidelity can but stand confounded and dumb before the inspired records, so clearly and accurately, and so many ages in advance, does it give the outlines of the great historical events of the world's history.
It is the prophetic portions of God's word which especially constitute it a lamp for our feet, Psalms 119: 105; 2d Pet. 1: 19, and no person having the light placed before him, can continue to walk in the darkness and be held guiltless.
Many of the things which had been revealed to the prophet, were to be shut up and sealed unto the times of the end; Dan. 12: 4, that is, they were not to be especially studied or understood till that time. And by diligent searching the prophecies and placing all events in their order, it will be plainly seen that the time of the end commenced in 1798. As the book was to be closed up and sealed to that time, the inference is that at that time, or from that point the book would be unsealed, and people would have their attention especially called to this part of the inspired word.
With intelligent, earnest speakers to make these things plain to the minds of the public; with good music, clear lights, pure ventilation, and a general air of comfort and freedom, much is added to the interest of the subject under consideration; and the spacious tent is thronged nightly with crowds of intelligent people, beholding with interest today, the nations marshalling their forces and pressing forward in those movements described by the royal seer in the courts of Babylon thirty two hundred years ago. And these movements are the last political revolutions to be accomplished before this earth plunges into her final time of trouble, and Michael, the Great Prince, stands up to crown everyone that is found written in the Book of Life, with full and final deliverance.

The officers of the Bank of Cass Co., this morning, disposed of the two-story frame building situate on their lot, corner of Main and Fifth streets, to the former owner, Wm. Herold. Mr. Herold at once started a force of laborers, and the work of demolition is rapidly proceeding. The building will be carefully taken to pieces and re-built on a two acre tract of land belonging to Mr. Herold near Plattsmouth. It is contemplated to have the material and workmen on the ground and proceed with the erection of the bank building, not later than next week. It is also rumored that Mr. Herold will build an addition in rear-of the bank building forming an L with the brick building he will erect on the lot north of the bank, and that the Bank of Cass Co. will further improve Fifth street by the erection of three business store rooms 30x44 feet each.

It will pay you to hear "Blind John Boone," the colored pianist, at the Opera House tomorrow night. He played at Lincoln last Friday and Saturday night to crowded houses, and gave entire satisfaction, the audience pronouncing him far ahead of "Blind Tom." Come out and hear him, it will cost you only 25c, and I assure you, that you will not regret going.
Yours, J. P. Young.
