Nebraska City proposes to build a $700 grand stand in their park for the use of their band. It would be a good plan if this city had such a place built on the high school park.

A derrick car with a stationary engine and complete in every detail, has just been finished at the shops. This piece of machinery will lift and move a wrecked locomotive or lighter weights with the greatest ease.

A man, prominent in the republican party here, handed the secretary of the Young Men's Republican club a check for twenty five dollars yesterday. He proposed to help the club that was so successful in getting up a meeting.

Judge O'Donohoe, of this city, a democrat, writes the Western Celt his reasons for being a Blaine man, and why he thinks the Irish people ought to support Blaine. The letter is a good one, right to the point, and will be found in today's issue.

Bro. Connor requests us to announce the meeting of the democratic workingmen's club at the court house tomorrow evening. In this connection we also will announce the meeting of the Democratic Silk Stocking club at their club rooms.

W. D. Jones, F. E. White, J. G. Richey, and Charley Parmelee started west this morning for Kanesaw, where they will make diligent search for prairie chickens. If one should be found, a council of war will be called and the question will be determined whether they will shoot or trap it, or whether they will set upon it with their dogs; at any rate they will secure the bird, if possible, and Jones will be detailed to recount the adventures of the hunters upon their return home.

Blind Boone arrived this morning from the west, and the HERALD interviewed the prodigy, and found him a bright and intelligent colored man considering that he had been blind all his life. His home is at Warrensburg, Mo., and his manager says since starting out on this year's tour, that they have met with gratifying success. Blind Boone appears at the opera house to night and tomorrow night, and the outlook is that both entertainments will be largely attended.

The Ninth Iowa Congressional District did itself proud yesterday by the nomination of Major Joe Lyman, of Council Bluffs. This nomination, it seems to us, is peculiarly strong in several respects.

First, it lays Banker Pusey on the shelf, by the nomination of a distinguished citizen of Council Bluffs, who is an abler man than Congressman Pusey in every respect. Judge Lyman is one of the ablest lawyers of the Iowa bar, a self-made man in every particular, an orator and advocate of rare power, and a gallant soldier when his country needed his services.

This nomination by the Ninth Iowa District insures an additional republican member in congress from that state, and comes to a man who has never been a place seeker in any sense. It is a fit nomination and will be endorsed by the people across the river.

PERSONAL.

Mike Cavey, of Elmwood precinct, one of the delegates to the Louisville convention from that precinct, is at the county seat today.

John F. Kuhns and wife, of this city, were Lincoln passengers this morning. Mr. Kuhns going there on a business trip in the interest of the company.

W. L. Simpson, of Ulysess, Butler county, formerly a resident here, is down on a visit and will remain until next Monday.

Major Smith returned this morning from his trip eastward on legal business at Burlington.

Byron Clark sojourned in Omaha yesterday taking depositions in a case in court here.

Col. Joseph Alex Connor went west to look after his grain interests at Waverly and Greenwood this morning.

M. D. Polk is on a business trip to South Bend today.

L. C. Stiles went overland today to Weeping Water on a business trip through the county in the interest of this paper.

Susie Haggood returns to Omaha this evening after a pleasant visit with Minnie Coghlan.

Shortly after 11 p. m. last evening, the janitor of the lumber yard kicked six pickets off the fence, and the Knights of the Bachelor's Club filed through the aperture.

Up in the north east corner of the yard some of Richey's first quality flooring had been arranged in seats and here the club was soon gathered.

The roll call found the following officers present:

Grand Joss, Col. Ruffner, Grand Enunciator, Judge Crites, Grand Fiddle Sticks C. Whopper Sherman, Grand Watchman of Connor Baker Ramsey, Grand collector of Delinquent Assessments Gen. Krohler, Grand Keeper of the Sacred Relics W. Mickelwait, Grand Janitor of the Lumber Yard J. Smiling Hartman, and a quorum of members.

The Grand Enunciator read a chapter from the democratic platform and recited the democratic litany. The entire club then ranged itself in line and sang the club ode, the first verse running as follows:

"We are a loyal crew;
And our candidate's a beauty.
We all are patriots true
And hope to scoop the booty."

If any pedestrian was heard plodding his weary way about this time and imagined he heard a cat fight in the lumber yard, he will please remember the cat story.

Following the singing of the ode, the Grand Fiddlesticks secured the floor and launched forth in a speech on foreign immigration. It took the combined efforts of the Grand Joss, the Enunciator and a scantling to call him to order, and when the loquacious member had been laid upon the ground and the Grand Keeper of the Sacred Relics seated upon him, to keep him in order, the Grand Joss announced the initiation of a candidate, a convert from republicanism, and the applause was loud and long continued. The Grand Watchman of Connor proceeded to clear a space for initiation, and the Keeper proceeded to display the Sacred Relics; this move liberated the Grand Fiddlesticks, who at once arose, and proceeded with his speech on foreign immigration. The garrulous member was not to be squelched this time; he was loaded for the session, and the question of foreign immigration had to be settled then and there; an hour rolled by, and the introductory was only well under way; the belated moon rose and climbed the sky, and the speech continued; cocks crew their early morning matins, and the speech went on; hours before the club had adjourned the initiation and silently withdrew, but the speech showed no signs of adjournment. Oh, it was a powerful speech, and early workmen going forth to labor, walked a block out of their way to escape it; while today Jus Richey insists that a man can sit on a plank in the yard and learn more about foreign immigration than statesmen ever dreamed before.

One of the finest pieces of work ever done at the B. & M. shops here is the entire rebuilding of the Pullman coach, that was wrecked on the "cannon ball" this summer. The work is now well on toward completion, and the Pullman coach shops, with their extra skilled workmen, never turned out a finer piece of work than Master Mechanic Hawksworth is doing at the shops here. Much of the finishing work inside the Pullman coaches is carved work with the most expensive woods; but in the shops here there are some of the Bohemian workmen who are artists in this especial work, and they are doing their part of the work in constructing the coach in a most acceptable manner. A Pullman coach costs upwards of $15,000, and the shops here are just as capable of turning out that class of costly and skilled work as any kind, and we doubt if there are any general railroad shops in the west that can approximate to the work done in the Burlington shops in this city of Plattsmouth.

Services at the Christian Church.

There will be services this evening and tomorrow evening at the Christian church in this city, commencing at 8 o'clock p. m. The Rev. Willis Carter, of the colored Baptist church of Nebraska City, officiating. Subject for this evening, "Wisdom."

Subject for tomorrow evening, "The Word Being Made Flesh." A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to be present.

Crumbs from the Tent.

Thoughts new and old were presented last evening, based upon Col. 2, 11. Christ as "all in all" was viewed as associated with the Father in creation, and devising (if we may be allowed the term) a plan to put man upon another probation, as he had failed in the first trial, and was under the ban of death. He is seen proffering to pay the penalty of that death, and thus bring ruined man back from the land of the enemy. He is seen going with Israel while en route from Egypt to Canaan, 1 Cor., 10; 1-4, and later, clothed with humanity, passing the various decades of life from infancy to mature years, tasting all the bitterness of man's probationary experience, being tempted on all points, yet without sin, Heb., 4; 15. Again he is viewed agonizing with the Father, as he prepares to receive the last bitter cup, and sweats great drops of blood in Gethsemane, is deserted by all earthly friends, and grapples with the grim monster alone. As the son of God yields himself to the powers of death, saddened nature refuses to look upon the scene and curtains the world in darkness, as the Lord of Glory bows the head and in his characteristic, gentle tone says: "It is finished!"

As the third morning dawns the shackles of the tomb are broken, the conqueror comes forth, ere long he rises and a cloud receives him out of the sight of the anxious beholders. Men in shining garments (angels) say he will come again in like manner, Acts, 1; 11, for what? That where He is, there we may be also, John, 14; 1-3.

Now, more than 1,800 years stretch their weary length between us and that period. For more than a hundred years the signs that mark the Lord's return have been exposed to view. With the latest definite prophetic period in the past, we wait the glad announcement of the Lord's return, Matth., 24; 42-44. The third division of the Bible subjects are now to be presented.

Tonight the following will be examined: "The soul of man; is it mortal or immortal?" "Man in death; is he conscious or unconscious?"

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jenkins accompanied their son on his return to Ashland last Friday, to visit over Sunday with old friends living there, but formerly of this place. They report a very good time.

A social dance was given in W. Jenkins' new hall last Wednesday evening, in honor of his son's visit at home. A large number of their friends were present to participate in the entertainment.

Our farmers are busily engaged making hay and doing their threshing; the yield of small grain is very good, although the wet weather damaged a great deal of it before it was taken care of.
