Private abives positively announce Beriben's safety and it seems that the false reports of the death were circulated by the Spanish authorities to discourage others from going from here to join him.

Filibusters numbering about 150 did have an encounter with Spanish soldiers near Matanzas Sunday, and for the time held at bay 1,500 troops sent against them. Thirteen soldiers were killed, while the filibusters all escaped, with only Beriben and three men wounded, none seriously. Beriben, by last night's steamer from Cuba, sends encouraging reports of the war friends of the cause in Cuba are flocking to his standard, and says that his supply of dynamite did his band good service in both their encounters with the troops. On account of the government censorship little credence can be given the Espanole or any other Cuban journal. Another expedition is believed to be anticipated leaving Tampa bay shortly, if it has not already sailed, intending to land on the south side of Cuba.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 16.—The day opened bright and clear, and since daybreak people have been astir. The sounds of fife and drum early told that preparations were being made for a grand street demonstration of the nation's protectors. Nearly 30,000 uniformed soldiers passed in review before the chief magistrate and high officers of this and other governments before noon, and at their head rode General Sheridan.

CLEVELAND'S SPEECH.

The president of the commercial exchange then introduced the president, who said, "I am glad to have the opportunity to meet so large a representation of the business men of Philadelphia. It is well that one should not entirely forget, in the midst of our centennial jubi- lee, that the aim and purpose of good government tend after all, to the advancement of the material interests of the people and an increase of their trade and commerce. Though it sometimes occurs to me that in the rush and hurry of business there might well be infused a little more patriotism than we are wont to see, and a little more recognition of the fact that the whole sale political sentiment is closely related, not only to the general good, but the general success of business. Of course, our citizens engaged in business are quick to see the bearing of any policy which the government may adopt, as it affects their personal success, and their accumulations. But I would like to see that broad and patriotic sentiment among them which can see beyond their peculiar personal interests, and which can recognize that the advancement of the entire country is an object for which they may well strive, even sometimes to the diminution of constantly increasing profits. Must we always look for the political opinions of our business men precisely where they suppose their immediate pecuniary advantage is found? But how vain it is to hope for the eradication of selfish motives in the affairs of life. But I am reminded that we celebrate to-day the triumph of

The Queen Speaks Parliament Postponed.

LODOX, Sept. 16.—Parliament was postponed to day. The queen's speech was a formal one, and among other things she said: "I have agreed with the president of the United States to refer to the joint commission, the difficult questions respecting the North American fisheries, and which have recently been discussed by the two nations." Further along the queen says: "The wants and difficulties of Ireland have occupied your close attention during the prolonged session, and I trust the remedies your wisdom has provided will gradually effect a complete restoration of order in Ireland, and give renewed encouragement to peaceful industry. In order to pass them, it has been necessary to postpone many important measures affecting other parts of the kingdom, which, doubtless, you will be able to resume without hindrance at the coming session." The speech continues as follows:

"This year, the fiftieth anniversary of my reign, has been the occasion of an expression of fervent loyalty, which has deeply touched me, and I am indeed truly thankful for the warm, hearty proofs of affection which have reached me from all classes. In thanking God for the blessings he has vouchsafed me and my country, I trust I may be spared to continue to reign over a loving, faithful and united people."

The prorogation is until Nov. 30.

NOT ABANDONED.

Efforts Will Be Made to Get Before the United States Supreme Court.

CHESTER, Ill., Sept. 16.—A consultation as to whether they would do anything more to save themselves was held by the anarchists this morning. A member of the defense association said that three of the condemned men were opposed to an appeal to the supreme court, but he refused to disclose names. He also said that no matter what the final decision of the men was, their friends would go ahead and make every effort for the reversal of the judgement by the United States supreme court, and in the event of their failing a petition would be gotten up.

THE HADDOCK CASE.

Their Entire Day Consumed in Argument in Counsel in the Case.

STOUGHTON, Mass., Sept. 16.—The entire day in the Haddock case, was occupied by the arguments of counsel. Henry J. Taylor, for the state, spoke until 11 a.m., after which Judge Pendleton spoke adjournment. The case will probably be submitted to the jury to-morrow afternoon.

ON SLEEPLESSNESS.

A BRIEF MEDICAL LECTURE IN AN ELEVATED CAR.

A Physician Discourses on Insomnia and Its Causes, and Gives Some Good Advice—Several Popular Notions Shown to be Erroneous.

Two men were in an elevated car on their way down town to business. The man next to the reporter turned to his neighbor with the question:

"Did you sleep any last night?"

"No; did you?"

"I did, about three hours. When I woke up I felt more tired than when I lay down."

"Yes, it's pretty hard this summer for people who have to stay in the broiling city. But from all I hear, the folks in the country are not doing much better. My wife's letters are full of mosquitoes and sleeplessness."

"Gentlemen," broke in a man with gold rimmed spectacles, who looked the physician every inch of him, and around the corners of whose bearded mouth a humorous smile had been flitting during the dialogue, "This talk of sleeplessness proves how seldom people will take a medical man's advice, or even ask for it. It's so simple to induce sleep, with very little trouble, that every man of intelligence can obtain it unless he be a very sick man indeed."

"Well, sir," rejoined the last speaker, "if you will gratify our curiosity that far, tell us what you do to induce sleep."

"As to me, the best advice is: Kill them before you go to bed. Sleep where there is a current of air and have a mosquito netting around the bed, but leave yourself plenty of breathing space. If suffering much from the heat take a cooling bath before retiring. I find, however, that this talk of sleeplessness comes in nine cases out of ten from persons of an unduly nervous temperament. They fret about and imagine beforehand that they will not obtain sleep instead of composing their minds to properly receive the soothing influence."

SEVERAL POPULAR ERRORS.

"If given at all to sleeplessness do not smoke at the evening, and do not excite yourself. Lie down with the first inclination to sleep, and sleep will come quite naturally, provided the body requires it. There's the rub. A great many people think there is a cast iron rule as to the number of hours they ought to sleep. That's all wrong. Never try to sleep unless you feel tired and notice that your system wants it. Four hours of sleep, under certain conditions, are more beneficial to a man than the proverbial nine hours. I've had many cases in my practice which have shown me the folly of expecting so many hours of sleep night in and night out."

"It's the same with sleep as with food. The appetite varies, and so does the desire for sleep. Nature knows her business best, and when a man cannot sleep he very often ought not to sleep. A few weeks ago a well known business man came to me and wanted ointments to give him back his usual dose of sleep. I satisfied myself pretty soon that it would be only doing harm to comply with his request. There was nothing troubling his mind, and his health was good. He simply had the notion that he didn't get sleep enough, and had begun to worry about it. I gave him a few simple rules to observe, and he soon had more all the sleep that was good for him without using any poisonous narcotics."

"Judging from my experience, the need of sleep is very different in different persons, even among those of like habits and equally good health. I know a very active business man, a patient of mine, who requires but six hours' sleep, while another one needs all of eleven hours out of the twenty-four."

"City hall and Brooklyn bridge," shouted the guard, and everybody scrambled for the door, while the audience murmured: "Much obliged for the lecture, doctor."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Great Ball of Magnetism.

Most well informed people are doubtless aware that the globe on which they live is a great ball of magnetism, but comparatively few have an adequate idea of the influence this property is continually exerting on all sides, that many common but inexplicable phenomena can be traced directly to this source. Statistics go to show that in the matter of steel rails, as many as thirteen will become crystallized and break when they go to make up a railroad track running east and west before one of those on a north and south track is similarly affected. This is entirely due to the magnetism generated by friction, and the fact that the polarity of electric and magnetic current is in the former instance resisted in the headlong rush of the train, whereas in the latter it is undisturbed.

Another strange effect of this peculiar and occult force is that exerted on the watches of train men. A timepiece carried by the conductor running a train twenty miles an hour, however accurate it may be, will, if the speed of the train is increased to say fifty miles, become useless until regulated. The magnetism generated by the flight of a train may be said to be in proportion to the speed with which it is propelled, and the delicate parts of a watch, numbering all the way from 400 to 1,000 pieces, are peculiarly susceptible to this influence by reason of the hammering and polishing they have received, are not slow to feel the effect.—Globe-Democrat.

Filibustering in Cuba.
KEY WEST, Fla., Sept. 16. Espanol, organ of the Spanish government at Havana, announces the capture and death of Beriben, leader of the expedition which recently left here, and says: "The balance of his band are surrounded with troops and must soon surrender." This statement, however, is much doubted here.
