COLLINS-JEAN.

The Wedding of Charles H. Collins and Miss Alice Jean a Brilliant Affair.

At noon to-day a large congregation of friends assembled at the M. E. church to witness the wedding of Charles H. Collins and Miss Alice Jean, both well known and respected in Plattsmouth society.

At 12:30 when the friends were all assembled and waiting, the bride and groom entered the church, marching up the aisle took their stand before the officiating minister, Rev. W. B. Alexander, and the ceremony was performed, Messrs T. E. Reynolds, J. A. Davis, G. R. Chaburn and A. B. Knotts officiating as ushers.

Miss Jean was elegantly attired in a light cream colored surah silk, cut en train, with a white gauze veil, a wreath of beautiful cream colored roses, and a bouquet of the same in her hand. Mr. Collins was attired in a fine black dress suit with Prince Albert coat.

After the large party of friends had come forward and extended congratulations and good wishes to the wedded couple, a number of intimate friends and relatives accompanied the bride and groom to the home of Nelson Jean, father of the bride, several miles south of town, in carriages which were in waiting, and here a bountiful repast was indulged in.

The HERALD extends congratulations with other friends, to the couple, wishing them long life and happiness.

TOOK HIS OWN MEDICINE.

Lingg, the Chicago Anarchist Blows His Head to Pieces.

The finding of the six loaded bombs in Anarchist Lingg's cell Sunday which caused so much excitement and varied comment and theories, and the intended use of which was decided not to have been suicidal on the part of the anarchist was certainly this morning proven to be so, if the most reliable telegrams can be trusted for the truth. This morning Dr. A. Salisbury received a telegram from Omaha stating that the news had just been received at Omaha of the suicide of anarchist Lingg, by blowing his head to pieces with a loaded bomb.

The number of men to be hanged to-morrow numbered seven and the six bombs found and the one Lingg used makes seven, so it must be true that the anarchist intended cheating the gallows by taking their own medicine as soon as they became aware that clemency would not be granted, and Lingg becoming discouraged and having the only weapon left committed his last act on earth, leaving his companions to their fate.

Capt. Black yesterday made his last appeal before Gov. Oglesby for clemency, presenting petitions and pleading in person for the lives of the seven men.

VICTORIOUS!

THE BATTLE IS WON!

Only One Democrat is able to Withstand the Pressure.

REPUBLICANS HAVE DONE WILL

And Elected Every Man But One.

DEMOCRACY DOOMED.

The last precinct, Tipton, was heard from this afternoon and she comes to the front with a republican majority for every candidate. Majorities from that precinct are reported as follows: David A. Campbell, for treasurer 17, which swells his majority to from 450 to 500; W. H. Pool, for recorder of deeds 26, which gives him a total majority of about 150; Bird Critchfield, for county clerk, 20, which gives him a majority of 30; Calvin Russell, for county judge 36, giving him a majority of about 330; H. J. Streight, for clerk of the district court 23, giving him a majority of 18; J. C. Eikenbary, for sheriff 24, giving him a majority of about 80; Maynard Spink, for county superintendent, 34 giving him a good majority; Henry Beck, for coroner 29, giving him a majority of 300; George Young, for county commissioner 19, which leaves him behind his democratic opponent, Louis Foltz, by about 100 votes. Mr. Foltz being the only democratic official elected on the county ticket. A Madole, republican nominee for county surveyor had no regular opposition.

This victory is so complete as to completely squelch all democratic enthusiasm out of that party in Cass county, and the republicans have elected the best ticket ever placed in the field in Cass county.

The official count of the vote of the county will be made as soon as the ballots are all in and not till then can the exact table of votes be published.

A Cure for Wakefulness.

Many a middle aged man who is in the habit of going to bed after eating a hearty meal is puzzled when he finds himself waking up in the small hours of the morning, day after day, and unable to get to sleep again. He knows that this wakefulness is unnatural, but he never occurs to him that it is due to his stomach. It took me several years, during which I lost months of sleep, to find this out, but now I know it. If the victim of insomnia whom I have described will rise from his bed when he wakes and drink a pint of water he will go to sleep again immediately, and will not wake again until his ordinary hour.—Mag. E. S. Foster in Globe-Democrat.

Apoplethosis of Paper.

We knew it would come. The announcement has been made that a paper coffin has been invented and put upon the market. A man may now build his house of paper, cut his dinner from paper plates, wipe his face with a paper handkerchief, buy his wife a paper piano and go to his grave in a paper coffin. The coffin may be paid for with a piece of paper and the death published on another piece. There are few things more useful than paper.—Philadelphia Record.

The Smoked Herring Monopoly.

The island of Grand Manan is the home of cut and dried monopoly that would be hard to match. Grand Manan puts up annually more than 1,000,000 boxes of smoked herring, and controls the market.

LOUISIANA SALT MINES.

A Belt of Saliferous Deposit—Pure Rock Salt—Pepper Fields.

One of the visitors to the mines explained to Mr. Ely that there was a belt of saliferous deposit in Louisiana extending from Bossier and Bienville parishes, above Red river, to the Gulf. The largest of these deposits appears to be the beds of ancient exhausted lakes. Salt springs were known to exist on Petite Anse island from the earliest date, but the wells were abandoned until the late decade during the war raised the price of salt so high in the southern states that Major Avery reopened them for the use of the Confederacy. It was at this time that he came unexpectedly upon the enormous stratum of pure rock salt, which underlies the soil. Like the island of Ormuz, in the Persian gulf, Petite Anse is apparently only a huge rock of salt.

The mines have now been in operation about twenty years. The salt is excavated in large masses by blasting with dynamite. It is so pure that it is prepared for the market, not by melting and refining, as in the English mines, but simply by grinding into the requisite grades of fineness. The machinery detached by blasting are as clear and translucent as glass. Mr. Ely went down into the mine, and wandered through its far-reaching corridors, whose pillars and lofty arches shone with a soft silvery radiance. When the lights of the low gas lamps into the darkness of the mine, the domes flashed back such splendors of color that it seemed to Mr. Ely as if he had entered one of the caves underground where the Troils have stored all the jewels of the world.

"This is all a surprise to me," said one of the visitors—a stout professor from some college in Louisiana—who stepped from the elevator into the upper air. "I actually did not know there was a mine of salt in the United States."

"And yet," said their guide, quickly, "you have no doubt used our salt on your table for years. We ship it to every large town in the north and west."

This little island of Petite Anse furnishes pepper as well as salt to our tables. Tobacco, or the distilled cayenne, dear to the hearts of gourmands and chefs, is manufactured here out of a wild pepper peculiar to Louisiana. Two or three fields produce enough of the cultivated peeps to send their essence to all parts of this country and to Europe. It is one of the numberless minor industries which have sprung into life throughout the south since the war, and which hint at the strength and vitality of that long sterile soil.—Robeca Harding Davis in Harper's Magazine.

A Mass of Ambergris.

The fact that a schooner, which had arrived at Gloucester, had picked up off Cape Sable a mass of ambergris, weighing 124 pounds, has started inquiries as to the nature and market value of the substance. Its use in Europe and the United States is entirely confined to perfumery, although it formerly occupied no inconsiderable place in medicine. In the east it is used in pharmacy and as a flavoring material in cooking. Its value is from $18 to 25 per ounce, according to quality. It is a solid, fatty, inflammable substance, of dull gray or blackish color, the shades being variegated like marble, and possessing a peculiar sweet, earthy odor.

This substance is formed in the intestines of the sperm whale, being morbidly secreted, and floats on the water. Vessels pick it up in the Atlantic ocean, on the coasts of Brazil and Madagascar, on the coast of Africa, East Indies, China, Japan, the Bahama Islands and sometimes on the North American coast. The largest lump ever heretofore found weighed 182 pounds. The whales in which it has been discovered were either dead or much wasted, and evidently in a sickly condition. But it is believed that ambergris, from the position in which it exists and its chemical constitution, is a bilinary concretion analogous to what is found in other mammals.—Boston Transcript.

Superstition on the Stage.

"There is as much superstition among actors as there is among sailors," remarked a member of the profession to a reporter. "They are forever on the lookout for signs, and these are construed into all kinds of meanings. The placing of a chair on the stage in a peculiar position will be taken to mean something in connection with their success, while the action of a single individual in the audience will have a decided effect upon their future course."

"It is while rehearsing a new play that the greatest amount of superstition is indulged in with actors and managers."

Causes of Premature Death.

Most of those who die between 25 and 60, unless they die by accident, die by some indiscretion. It is the over-indulgence of appetite, or the neglect of food when needed, or the overstrain of business, or exposure to changes of temperature without corresponding change of clothing. Most people of these ages are conscious of the error after it has been made, or others are conscious of it for them. Without any consciousness we can not change conditions, and adapt ourselves thereto. Multitudes die prematurely by reason of an indiscretion which might have been easily avoided. It is intelligent caution that saves sickness, and this caution ought to be in possession and exercise before middle life. It is so much easier to prevent serious sickness than it is to secure recovery from it. Hence it is that so many that are deficient in vigor in early life outlive the vigorous and the careless. Necessity compels them to study their changing conditions of health, and so teaches them the benefits of adaptiveness to conditions and circumstances.—Independent.

Not a Good Memory.

For some reason, I don't know why, people expect to hear sensational testimony whenever I'm put on the stand in a political case. But they don't hear it for a very good reason: I am so peculiarly constituted that in a political campaign I never remember a transaction in which I am concerned for twenty-four hours afterward. I never write letters. I always burn those I receive, and I don't make notes in a memorandum book or diary.—"Politician" in Globe-Democrat.

Advice to a Son.

"My son," said a careful and observant father, "live an honest life and you will preserve your self respect, though you may fall to win the respect of others. But if in an evil hour you should deviate from the path of rectitude, struggle to escape detection until you have sated down enough money to purchase justice. Don't make a mistake and take too little; justice comes high."—New York Tribune.
