On account of yesterday being pay day the rush of business holding the councilmen to their desks, no council meeting was had last night, but they adjourned till to-night.

To-night is the time of the first annual ball of the Rescue hose team No. 3. It will occur at Fitzgerald's hall, the Bohemian band furnishing the music. An excellent supper will be served.

If you want any letter heads, envelopes, bill heads or job work of any kind, bring it to the HERALD office, we do first class work and guarantee satisfaction.

The republicans of Otoe county elected county clerk, treasurer, commissioner, judge, surveyor and coroner, and gave pluralities for Supreme Judge Maxwell, state regents and District Judge Chapman.

Dr. O'Leary's lectures are made very interesting by illustrating them with manikins and pictures. An attendance of every one will prove beneficial to them. He speaks every night this week in Rockwood hall.

One year ago tomorrow a heavy snow storm fell over this section of the county and it was very cold—20° above zero. To-day has been so warm that out door work was very inspiring exercise.

W. H. Baker and family started this morning for California, Sacramento being the objective point. In Mr. Baker Plattsmouth loses an esteemed citizen and business man, and his many friends wish him success.

WANTED.—A miner just from Colorado, wishes a wife, he is 35 years old, dark complexioned and a native of West Virginia. The lady must be of good character, and of light complexion. Address Edward G. Bennett, Weeping Water, Neb.

Joseph J. Stegin who has been attending the Omaha business college committed suicide last night. He is from near Avoca this state. A letter left addressed to his mother states it was caused by his step father's spiteful way toward him.

Rev. Joseph Mills, of Council Bluffs, who has been in our city for several days for the purpose of establishing a colored church is meeting with considerable encouragement. Yesterday quite a number of subscriptions to the cause were made and it is very probable that a church will soon be erected here for the colored people.

The American Magazine for December will be a Christmas number. Its leading article, by Wm. H. Ingersoll, will discuss the peculiarities of the accepted likeness to Christ, and recount the legend of its origin. This likeness is traceable in the sacred art of all Christian nations from the beginning of our era. Mr. Ingersoll will more especially describe the endeavors of distinguished American painters and sculptors to represent this ideal. The article will be abundantly illustrated.

A New Line.

Last evening at the Lincoln city council meeting a blank contract was read. It was between the Lincoln, Des Moines & Red Oak railroad in the first part and the city of Lincoln in the second part. It provides for the building of a railroad from Des Moines to Lincoln by Nov. 1, 1889, if Lincoln would vote $150,000 bonds to aid it, and cheap freight rates are specified and guaranteed for thirty years.

The blank contract was submitted to the council and action will be taken on whether the people will be allowed to vote on the bonds, Thursday evening. The line is intended to chiefly benefit Lincoln and is spoken of by the Journal as follows:

It is proposed to build a line between Des Moines, Ia., and Lincoln, Neb., the distance being 199 miles. It will cross the Missouri river at some point between Nebraska City and Plattsmouth, and cross the Wabash railroad about seventy-five miles east of the city of Lincoln, thus making the distance between St. Louis and Lincoln about 430 miles, being sixty-five miles shorter than the present Missouri Pacific line. It will connect at Des Moines with the Des Moines or St. Louis and Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and other important points. It will also connect with the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, the Wabash railway, the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway, the Des Moines & Northwestern railway and the Des Moines and Osceola railway.

The proposed line will reach the coal region of Iowa, and pass through a fine agricultural country and several towns of importance. Through passenger cars will be run between Chicago and Lincoln and the present time will be reduced at least three hours. Also through passenger cars will be run between Lincoln and St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Three Groves

Corn will make about 40 bushels to the acre.

Mrs. E. E. Phipps, from Key-pala county, is here visiting friends and relatives.

Miss Josie Wiley has secured the winter term of school in the Kenosha district.

Nearly all the apples in the neighborhood were frozen on the trees during the severe cold weather not long since.

Our term of school will close in two weeks more and who is going to teach the winter term we have not been informed.

Byron and Eddie Young arrived from the west a few days ago and expect to stay in this winter. They came with teams over land.

Mr. William Gray has been for the last month building a new school house in the Kenosha district. He will finish it in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Young of Rock Creek, also Mrs. William Ellington, made a short visit down to the Weeping Water bottom on Sunday.

The Rock Creek folks are going to have a grand time at their church on Thanksgiving night by having a big supper. A good time is anticipated.

The democrats since the election are taking it quite cool and stand by the election returns quite bravely. We don't know how else they can do.

Mr. Austin Johnson over on Rock Creek is about the only democrat that is feeling good since the election. It is all because he has a brand new boy over at his house which arrived some two weeks ago.

THE STATUE—AN ALLEGORY.

There's a book which lieth open That no student e'er hath read; There's a path through woods and valleys Knowing naught of human tread; And a landscape, fair and golden, Where beneath the branches hidden Lies a mutilated head. In that book unnumbered authors Write as for their daily bread. Down that unknown path are gazing Men with doubting and with dread; And forests for their calling. Soothing some and some appalling, Cries that mutilated head. But the time comes when that volume, Written, shall be also read, And when through that haunted valley Every footstep shall have sped: Then, within the radiant portal, Will a statue fair, immortal— Like the mutilated head. —John R. Tait in Lippincott's.

THE HEROINE OF GADSDEN.

Courage of a Confederate Maiden—Gen. Straight's Capture.

As Gen. Straight approached Gadsden, Ala., in making his great cavalry raid, Gen. Forrest was close upon his heels with 1,000 men who might properly have been called "ragamuffins." They were in various uniforms, armed in various ways, and not more than half the command had saddles. They were biting away at the Federal general's heels, hoping to loiter him until a force could get in his front, when he came to a creek which was bank full from the recent rains. As soon as his troopers were over the rear guard proceeded to arrange for burning the highway bridge. This was close to the house of a widow named Samsen. The family was composed only of the mother and daughter, the latter a girl of 16.

There was sharp fighting between the Federal rear guard and Forrest's advance, but instead of seeking the shelter of the house the girl, Emma by name, was out there she could see all that was going on. She was a strong sympathizer with those who wore the gray, and when the Federals began piling trails on the bridge she realized how Forrest would be balked by its destruction. She ran, bareheaded, to the spot and began pulling the rails off, and it was only when two men seized her arms and led her away that she desisted. The bridge was held by the Federals until its destruction was certain, and they then retired into the town. When Forrest came up he found his further advance completely checked, and in his trouble he rode up to the fence where mother and daughter stood and asked if there was no Ford. Emma remembered of a crossing half a mile away, and at once offered to guide the general to it. Shells and bullets were flying all about them as they talked, but the girl climbed upon the fence, sprang to the saddle behind Forrest and away they rode for the ford. It was found practicable, and while he selected his best men and horses for further pursuit the girl returned home.

That crossing led to Straight's capture within a couple of days, and he was captured by trickery. Forrest got a body of men ahead of the Federals, who displayed themselves from prominent points, and this, with aggressive fighting in the rear, led Straight to believe that he was being closed in upon by a large force. Forrest sent in a flag of truce and demanded a surrender, claiming to have 4,000 men, and, after taking an hour to convince himself that he was in a trap, Straight surrendered the whole command. When his men came to stack arms they outnumbered the Confederates eight to one, and had to be kept quiet by bluster and further trickery. When the war closed the legislature of Alabama voted the girl a large tract of valuable mineral lands, and an offer was made to send her to some educational institute. In the meantime she had fallen in love with a Texas ranger named Johnson, and she declined the offer that she might marry him and remove to Texas, where she is at present living.—Detroit Free Press.

Embalmings in Alaska.

In Alaska, up to comparatively modern times, the dead have been mummified. In H. Ball, in his recent work on "The Northwest Coast," tells us that within the last half century bodies have been eviscerated, cleaned from fatty matters in running waters, dried and placed in cases, wrapped in fur and woven grasses. The body was usually doubled up into the smallest compass, and the mummy case suspended, so as not to touch the ground, in some convenient rock shelter. Sometimes, however, the prepared body was placed in a lifelike position, dressed and armed. Some were made to look as if engaged in a congenial occupation, such as hunting, fishing, sewing, etc. With them were also placed objects of the animals they were pursuing, while the hunter was decked in his wooden armor and provided with an enormous mask, all ornamented with feathers and a countless variety of wooden pendants, colored in gay patterns. All the Alaska mummies wear masks, so arranged that the wearer, if erect, could only see the ground at his feet. These were also worn at their religious dances, from the belief that the spirit which was supposed to animate a temporary idol was fatal to whoever might look upon it while so occupied.—New York Graphic.

Tobacco Crop in England.

Mr. France De Laune, of Starsted court, County Kent, has attracted to himself the admiring eyes of the British nation by successfully raising and harvesting a crop of tobacco. It is said to be the first ever raised in England. The government has graciously given consent that he shall go on a tour of exhibition, but insists that he must pay duty on his crop the same as though the tobacco were imported.—Chicago News.

THE TRIBUNE FOR 1888.

GREATLY ENLARGED. Much the Biggest of all the New York Weekly Papers.

Great Variety of Contents, New Presses, New Type and New Appliances.

AT THE HEAD OF THE REPUBLICAN PRESS. The New York Weekly Tribune will be enlarged on or before the 1st of January, 1888, by the addition of from four to eight pages of actual reading matter—an increase of size of great expense to the Tribune but without expense to the subscriber.

A complete outfit of the new folding and inserting presses will be put into the Tribune's press-room in November and December and the extra sheet will be folded in its place in the main sheet before it comes from the press. The enlarged Tribune will be the biggest and best of all New York weeklies, and the new machinery will print it in the enlarged form, at the rate of seventy-two thousand copies per hour.

New Features of greater variety of contents will be added to the Tribune during the coming year. Readers will be given nearly a half more for their money than ever before.

Pensions for the old volunteers, especially service pensions, are being vigorously agitated in The Tribune each space is given in every issue to this subject. Better protection to farmers under the tariff; the salvation of the country from the curse of intemperance; and the rescue of the national government from the hands of the rebel brigadiers; these, and all other live issues of the day are receiving aggressive, earnest and loyal treatment in The Tribune.

The Tribune does not attempt to supersede the local, state and county press. But, in the great presidential conflict now at hand, every thinking republican, old soldier, farmer and temperance man should have his local paper and The New York Tribune.

Subscription Rates—Weekly, $1 a year, extra copy with every five. Semi-Weekly, $2 a year; extra copy with every five. Daily, $8.50 per year. Sunday Tribune, $1.50. New subscribers receive the paper until Jan. 1, 1888. Remit always by draft, check, express or postal money order or registered letter.

PREMIUMS—(1) The New Tribune's history of the United States and pocket atlas of the World, 16mo., 254 pages, 50 maps, 50 colored diagrams; price, 40 cents; to subscribers, 20 cents; prettiest premium of the year—a fascinating running account of the history of the country, with a great variety of statistics and general information. (2) Presidential pocket knife; subscribers' names and picture of his choice for president on the handle; send for descriptive circular; price at retail $1.75; but given with The Weekly Tribune one year for the same money, $1.75; two other styles, for less money. (3) Popular Picture Gallery—6 fine large pictures, including the new officers of the G. A. R., Mr. Blaine, Senators Evarts and Hiseock, "Return of the Mayflower," "Christ Before Pilate," and "Children Writing to Santa Claus;" send for circular. (4) Waltham Watch; expansion balance movement, stem winder, stem set, seven jewels, nickel case, thoroughly reliable, and an excellent watch; with The Weekly Tribune, 1 year for $7.50. (5) Tribune's "Book of Open Air Sports." (6) Webster's "Unabridged Dictionary." (7) Wood's "Household Medicine." These premiums cannot be described in full here. Send for circular. THE TRIBUNE, New York.
