Fined for Fighting.

Yesterday afternoon occurred a disgraceful row at the Goose house saloon. A number of men were in the room and it seems a dispute arose between Alex A. Dubinski and Frank Busche, who runs the Cedar Creek quarries, which lead to a quarrel and fight in which Dubinski knocked Busche down and then struck him across the eye with a beer bottle, inflicting a bad wound and a large piece of glass was forced in above the eye. Lewis Dagenhofer, who was present (and from the evidence) came to the rescue of Busche, when Charley Kinser struck him on the right cheek, bruising his face badly. This was between three and four o'clock in the afternoon and Marshal Malick was soon at hand and took Dubinski and Busche and several witnesses to Judge Mathews' court where a hearing was immediately had and Dubinski was fined $50 and costs, which altogether will amount to about $62.55. Marshal Malick then made a warrant out against Charley Kinser, who had escaped arrest and later in the evening he was arrested by Jolman Fitzpatrick and Jack O'Neil, but meanwhile Dubinski induced the marshal to take him up town to try and get bail, and they went to Julius Pepperberg's, where Dubinski had been employed. Here a number of fellows gathered around and the prisoner escaped, and Marshal Malick discovered it just in time to see him turning north by the Sherwood block and immediately gave chase. Dubinski ran down Vine street past the Herald office and was turning the corner on Sixth street when he halted at the marshal's command, although the marshal was a block behind. The prisoner was again taken to jail and will probably serve out his fine. Charley Kinser's trial came off this morning and he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was fined $25 and costs and not being able to pay was sent to jail.

A Bomb Joke

Last evening about five o'clock as J. W. Cutright of the Journal was going to the room occupied by himself and Dr. Cook in the Dovey block he noticed a suspicious looking object lying in the hall just before the door. He picked it up and found it to be something wrapped in paper. He unrolled it and found it to be a bomb-looking instrument with a fuse attached. The alarm was given and friends gathered to look at the awful thing and wonder at the narrow escape, and an examination disclosed the fact that it was a fuel log and the fuse was a carpet rag. Many suggestions were made as to the purpose, etc., of the bomb and the excitement was dying out when another bomb was found in the room, this one made of gas pipe, and is said to have had a real fuse in it and stuffed with cotton. About the time of the finding of the second bomb the first is said to have mysteriously disappeared and no trace of it can be found. Lucky for the finder and all in the building neither the cotton nor the wire of fuel log would explode and as they are probably as dangerous as will ever be found in Plattsmouth, our city will ever continue to boom and grow and her name will be immortal on account of her prosperity and harmless anarchists.

Our Irish Visitors.

New York Morning Journal: A mirthful, rollicking, side-splitting piece is "Our Irish Visitors," brought out under the management of J. M. Hill at the Third Avenue theater, and fitting exponents of such a boisterous, though some the less amusing, lodge-pole are found in the Messrs. Murray & Murphy, who share the starring honors of the production. They both possess the undeniable quality of humor, but in each does that fun-making characteristic take a different direction, so that one, as it were, proves a foil for the other. An audience of goodly proportions laughed itself hoarse at their queer antics and oft times lively and pointed sallies of wit. The supporting company was generally more than acceptable. A notice of this laugh-provoking entertainment would not be complete without mention of Miss Marie Louise Day, who played with excellent discretion and unmistakable signs of ability the soubrette part. Messrs. Murray & Murphy will appear at the Waterman opera house tomorrow night.

Distressing Accident.

St. Louis, Nov. 28.—A dispatch from Webb City says a distressing accident occurred there to-day. C. R. and K. C. Garrison, sons of David Garrison of New York and nephews of the late Commodore Garrison, went down in one of the lead mines on a tour of inspection. When in ascending the rope gave way and the tub containing the two men fell to the bottom of the shaft, 140 feet. One of the gentlemen was killed outright and the other lived but a few moments.

Died.

JOHNSON—On Friday, Nov. 25th, of cholera infantum, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Johnson, near Plattsmouth, aged one month and six days. "Ah! there is a silent tomb in a lonely grave-yard made, And beneath that silent tomb A lovely form is laid. A few short days were given To our darling here below, Then an angel plucked the fair blossom Jesus loved and took Bernard home."

DOMESTIC TRAINING.

COMPARATIVE MERITS OF AMERICAN AND ENGLISH GIRLS.

Good Effect of the Social Intercourse That Prevails Between the People of This Country and England—English Girls' Home Life.

The comparative merits of American and English girls have been of late frequently discussed. Advocates of each nationality have made many good points, and victory cannot honestly be said to have been won by either. There can be little doubt that the largely increased and closer social intercourse that now prevails between the peoples of this country and of England has had the effect of obliterating many of the strongly marked differences of their daughters. English girls have caught something of the brightness, the ease and the self reliance which have made certain American ladies who have married Englishmen take rank as favorites—almost, indeed, as leaders in London society. And even those Englishwomen who have not succeeded in imitating, or have not sought to imitate, will be generally found willing to admit the charm of the imported style. American girls, on the other hand, have not been slow to borrow ideas from their English cousins. We have only to look at our girls' tailor made gowns, their common sense shoes, their round hats and their absence and frequenters of tea parties, to see how much they owe in warm and sensible modes of dress to English fashions. Then, too, English outdoor games, particularly lawn tennis, have become very fashionable here, and their good effect is to be seen in the improved health, the greater ease of movement, and the rounded figures of our girls.

PLUMPNESS OF OUR GIRLS.

It was only about a year ago when a foreign visitor to this country remarked that one of the things that most impressed her was the plumpness of American girls. The remark caused a great deal of amusement, for we had been so long accustomed to think of the American type of beauty as extremely delicate and spirituelle that we had not recognized the change that had been slowly but surely effected. Any one who now walks Broadway in the afternoon, and who is old enough to remember the appearance of its feminine frequenters of ten years ago, can scarcely fail to endorse the truth of the foreigner's observation. I do not hesitate to say that there is one noteworthy and valuable respect in which I believe English girls are superior to American girls. That respect is their ability to conduct the affairs of their homes. This, of course, is not an inherited ability, but is the result of training and practice. I can not consider the daughters of the farmers, but those of mercantile and professional men. In England, the custom is to train the girls to relieve their mothers of many of the duties of housekeeping. Among families where there are several daughters, it is a common practice to have each in turn take charge of the house for a week or a month. I do not assert that such a plan is never followed here, but at the most it is done with comparative infrequency. The system of living in boarding houses has in many instances made it impossible to instruct our city bred girls in domestic duties, but happily the increased facilities for suburban travel have placed it within the power of many heads of families to secure homes of their own.

TWO IMPORTANT REASONS.

Very probably the daughters of wealthy parents are slow to see why they should undergo any of the work necessary to the learning of how all the departments of household economy should be run. There are, however, two important reasons for acquiring such knowledge. One is the extreme vicissitudes of fortune, characteristic of business life in this country; and the other is the fact that if the mistress does not know when work is properly done, her servants have no more good at the start, will soon grow careless and forgetful. In no other country in the world is there so much trouble with "help" as here. Some of this is due to the ignorance of servants who have had no previous experience; but possibly as much is due to the ignorance of mistresses, who do not possess the knowledge that can give instruction or command respect.

In England, no matter how wealthy the parents, the custom of giving the daughters domestic training is usually observed. A recently published "Life of Queen Victoria" states that after the estate of Osborne had been bought, "the lower portion of the Swiss cottage was fitted up as a kitchen for the young princesses, with pantry, closets, dairy and larder, all as complete as possible, and here these juvenile royal highnesses, dressed in a cuisiniere, and with arms white with flour, learned to make cakes and tarts and all sorts of plain dishes, to cook the vegetables which they had themselves cultivated, to preserve fruit and to prepare different sorts of pickles. In fact, they were trained to be good English housewives." The example set by the queen has permeated all the higher classes.

The cooking schools recently started here are steps in the right direction. But cooking, though very important, is only a single branch of the domestic duties. The other can best be learned at home. I am glad to hear that the board of education in New York city is considering the advisability of giving instruction in sewing and cooking to the girls in the public schools.—Julian Magnus in The Epoch.

Three Croves.

The sleigh bells are tingling. Corn pickers have taken a recess. The snow is about two inches deep. Twelve degrees below zero Sunday morning. Frank Moore was on the sick list last week but is able to be out to-day. Quite a number of farmers got through husking corn before the storm set in. School commenced on Rock Creek on Monday with Miss Alice Hall, of Eight Mile Grove, as teacher. Our school marm spoiled a good item on Thursday of last week, in closing up her school by not letting us know anything about it in time. Joseph Shera, of Rock Bluffs has been hauling and moving the old building known as the "Old Fellows haul" from Rock Bluffs down to Union the last week.

The entertainment held at the Rock Creek Christian church on Thursday evening, was thoroughly enjoyed by all those present. The programme consisted of music, recitations, singing, reading etc. Miss Lulla Young rendered some excellent selections on the organ, and others some fine vocal selections. Those who were fortunate enough to be present were well repaid for the time spent in listening to the exercises.
