A Big Failure.

ROME, Feb. 13.—The firm of Levi & Co., merchants at Bari, Italy, has failed. The liabilities of the firm are $800,000. The failure is regarded as an indiction of the general rottenness of business in Italy.

Weather Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13, 1:30 p. m.—Indications for Nebraska: Fair weather, followed by rain or snow in northern portion; warmer, followed by slightly cold; light to fresh southwest shifting to northwest winds.

Cashmere Forts Captured.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 12.—The Cashmere forts on the Gilget frontier of Turkestan have been captured by trans-frontier tribes. Indian troops have been sent to assist in their recapture and the dispersion of the invaders.

Murder and Robbery.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 13.—A Daily News St. Louis special says the treasurer's office at Carthage, Panola county, Texas, was robbed Friday night, and County Treasurer Hill was killed. The crime was not discovered until late Saturday evening. The robbers secured $6,000.

Wolves Loose in London.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A pack of caged wolves escaped from Sawyer's circus today. The elephants, camels, horses and other animals, became mad with terror and were liberated with difficulty. The wolves were trapped in a stable, where they furiously devoured a horse already slain. They still defy capture.

A New Counterfeit.

WASHINGNON, D. C., Feb. 13.—The secret service division of the treasury department has discovered that a new counterfeit of the $5 silver certificate has been put in circulation. The bill is almost three-sixteenths of an inch too short. There are no distinctive lines in the paper. The general appearance is good and likely to deceive.

Slain by a Dog.

ZANESVILLE, O., Feb. 13.—Saturday afternoon Mrs. Lewis H. Harper of Mill Run, north of this city, left her 2-year-old boy with Mrs. Smith, her sister, while she came to town. The child was playing on the floor when a vicious coal mine dog that had an aversion to the boy, seized him, tearing and multilating his head and exposing the skull in several places. Upon examination it was found that one of the dog's tushes had penetrated the skull behind the ear, and there is little hope of the child's recovery.

The Sixty-Eighth's Monument

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 13.—George C. Jackson and Alfred Craighead, officers of the Sixty-eighth Pennsylvania Infantry association, Philadelphia Scott Legion, yesterday decided to erect their monument of Quincy granite, fifteen feet high, near Emmetsburg road a short distance north of the peach orchard where they lost nearly 60 per cent of their number, while engaged supporting Clark's New Jersey battery during the hottest of the second day's battle. It will be dedicated July 2 next, during the reunion of both armies on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle.

This Week of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The educational bill still remains the unfinished business of the senate, but there is unanimously an understanding that it shall be disposed of next Wednesday. Senator Edmunds will call up some time during the week for consideration and action the bill reported by him from the foreign relations committee to charter the Nicaragua Maritime Canal company. Beyond this no announcements have been made for the coming week and no programme laid out. It is expected that one or two speeches will be delivered during the week on the president's message, which still lies on the table. Tomorrow will be given up by the house to the consideration of business originating with the committee on the district of Columbia and the proceedings are not likely to be of general interest.

Begg's Cherry Cough Syrup.

Is warranted for all that the label calls for, so if it does not relieve your cough you can call at our store and the money will be refunded to you. It acts simultaneously on all parts of the system, thereby leaving no bad results. O. P. SMITH & Co., Druggists. j25-3md&w

—Some person took upon himself the responsibility of prophecying the kind of weather we should have during the month of January, February and March. His prophecy was pretty correct for January but he made a bad guess for this month for he said we should have "storm and danger days" on the 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 when the reverse has been the case. These weather prophets and others who try to pierce the veil of dark futurity, generally stand on the brink and topple over into the mysterious meshes of superstition, but "Bob up Serenely" again to repeat their predictions which are just about as reliable as the remarks of a fortune-teller, who, when you 'cross her palm' with two dollars, mutters something like the following: "You've had sickness and trouble. You'll have some property fall to you. You do not have full confidence in your husband. You have a very gentle nature. Everybody loves you. You have had trouble with a relative. It was not your fault. Beware of a blue eyed woman with a mole on her left cheek." Good day—call again.

HIS LOVE AND HERS.

Together they sat on a woodland rock,
When the sun tipped the western hills;
And a ring dove cooed for his absent mate,
As he sipped from the rippling rills.
The youth with a bold, determined look,
The girl so still by his side;
As he told of the fame he meant to achieve,
Before she could be his bride.

He said he would delve in the mines of fame,
He would strive on the plains of life;
At last he would come with honor and wealth,
And claim her then as his wife.
The sun fell asleep behind the hills,
The night forgot the day;
But the new moon looked like a half buried hope,
As she silently followed her way.

The youth arose as the shadows fell,
But the girl still sat on the stone;
And oft the shadows will round her fall,
And mark her sitting alone;
For the youth will forget those words of love,
Another will sit by his side;
But the maiden will wait as maidens do,
For the man to claim his bride.

EATING WELSH RAREBITS.

A Hotel Man Gives a Few Points Concerning the Famous Dish.

"The quantity of prepared cheese nightly consumed by actors and men about town is surprising," said James Butler, of the Gilsey house, the other day. "After the theatres all of the uptown chop houses and cafes are crowded with gentlemen seated at well appointed tables sipping malt liquors and eating Welsh rarebits, or rabbits, as some call them."

"Why is this dish called Welsh rarebits, when according to Brillat-Savarin it is of Swiss origin?" asked the writer.

"Welsh rarebit is a slang term," said Mr. Butler, "belonging to a large group which describe in the same humorous way the special dish, or product, or peculiarity of a particular district. It is quite English to call things by some outlandish name. In England an 'Essex lion' is a calf. A 'field lane duck' is a baked sheepshead. 'Glasgow magistrates' and 'Norfolk capons' are red herrings. 'Irish apricots' and 'Munster plums' are potatoes, and the dainty salt water shrimps are called 'Gravesend sweetmeats.' The original Welsh rarebit was made as follows: Take as many eggs as you wish, according to the number of guests, and weigh them. Then take a piece of cheese a third of the weight of the eggs, and a piece of butter weighing one-sixth as much. Beat the eggs, after which add the butter and the cheese, either grated or cut into small pieces. Put the ingredients into a saucepan, and over a good fire stir until the mixture is smooth and thick, yet soft. Add salt to taste, and a liberal quantity of pepper, which is one of the principal charms of this dish.

"I imagine the foregoing dish would set rather heavy on the stomach of the average late supper eater. Dr. Austin Flint, however, has been quoted as recommending his friends and patients to eat Welsh rarebits, or anything else they take a fancy to, whenever they are hungry. He said: 'Dyspeptics are chiefly persons who eat regularly, restrict their diet to simple food in small amounts, and constantly have their stomachs on their minds.' The only time the busy New Yorker thinks of his stomach is when it is empty. Even then business may prevent him from satisfying its demands."

"Does the modern Welsh rarebit contain eggs?" asked the writer.

"No, the American Welsh rarebit is made as follows: Cut up a quarter of a pound of mild cheese. Put it into a saucepan with a pat of butter and stir over the fire until it is thoroughly melted and free from lumps. When quite smooth add a wineglass of old ale and mix it well into the cheese. Put a thin slice of hot toast on a hot plate or side dish, pour the melted cheese over it, and serve as quickly as possible. It should be eaten from the plate in which it is served.

"A golden buck is made by adding a poached egg to a Welsh rarebit. A Yorkshire buck is made by adding bacon to a golden buck. It is quite fashionable for gentlemen to cook their Welsh rarebits in a chafing dish at table. A few of the patrons at our restaurant are celebrated for their mode of preparing them."—New York Evening Sun.

Tropical Agriculture.

In order to encourage the youth of the island of Jamaica in the study of the first principles of agriculture as applicable to their climate and soil, the government of that island has offered a premium of $500 for the production of the best text book, elementary in plan, embracing simplicity, brevity and freedom from technical terms. It is to be a manual calculated to create in the minds of the youth early and intelligent interest in the soil, and in the profitable cultivation of products that will command a ready home or foreign market. The work must be eminently practical, and entirely free from untried or doubtful theories.—American Agriculturist.
