THE DEMOCRATS OF CONGRESS DO NOT seem to take in the situation regarding the tariff and the surplus, in all its awfulness as portrayed by the president's message, if we are to judge by the way they hasten to the relief.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES; for president, Phil. H. Sheridan, of the United States; for vice president, Ben Harrison, of Indiana. Democratic nominees; for president, Grover Cleveland, of No Man's Land; for vice president, James Russell Lowell, of England.

It is reported that a majority of the Ways and Means committee are inclined to approve of a plan proposed by the Democratic Executive committee of North Carolina, which is, in effect, to take off all taxes on tobacco except those on cigars, cigarettes and cheroots, and to reduce the tax on fruit brandy from 90 to 40 cents a gallon.

For instance: Kidney disease has no marked individual symptoms. It produces all sorts of symptoms of the commonest diseases. Not being able to treat the disease itself with success, the bigoted physician treats the symptoms.

Dr. J. G. Holland, whom all the world admired as a teacher of sense, writes in Scribner's Monthly: "It is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day are more successful than many physicians, and most of them were first discovered and used in actual medical practice."

Dr. Robson of the Royal Navy of England enthusiastically endorses Warner's safe cure, as indeed do many hundreds of thousands all over the world. The late Dr. Dio Lewis, who almost never used medicines, commented it highly and said if he had any kidney disease he would use it.

Paralysis, consumption, pneumonia, apoplexy, heart disease, general debility, rheumatism, all these common disorders are often only symptoms of kidney disease. Instead of admitting their inability to cure this disorder, doctors give their attention to the symptoms. If they cure one, another comes, and finally death takes the case out of their hands.

CONSIDERABLE twaddle is being indulged in concerning mortgaged farms and the consequent deplorable condition of the farmer. Not every man that has a mortgage on his farm is a pauper, or even in close circumstances. There are some men in this county who own property worth $20,000 above encumbrances, that have mortgages on some of their farms.

How Men Die. If we know all the methods of approach adopted by an enemy we are the better enabled to ward off the danger and postpone the moment when surrender becomes inevitable.

BLINDED BY PREJUDICE. Some Striking Situations Into Which Well Informed Persons Are Led. There is no end of witchcraft and deception. Years ago persons suspected of the "strange infatuation" were thrown into the water—if guilty of witchcraft, they would drown.

For many years the world was shocked at such inhumanity of man to man, but if we were to declare that people are persecuted today quite as remorselessly as were the so-called witches of old, our statements might be received with great incredulity.

But it is a fact. If you do not believe it, enter any one of the schools of medical practice, and attempt to use a preparation which the code does not recognize, or even to recommend indirectly any popular remedy, such for instance, as Warner's celebrated kidney remedy, and then relate your experience.

Then you'll admit the fact. Let us be frank with you reader. We tell you that this is downright bigotry. Men's demands are entitled to recognition, wherever found. If geologists tell us that diamonds must always be found in sand, would you not be a fool, if you found one in gravel, not to take it and "realize" on it?

Your friends would call you foolish. The trouble with the doctors is that they can't cure advanced diseases of certain forms, and they know it. And yet they will not allow the use of any outside proprietary medicine, which they know has cured the disease.

LIGHT UNDER WATER. ELECTRIC ILLUMINATION OF THE DEPTHS OF THE SEA. An Experiment Which Was but the Beginning—A Search for Fish—The Electric Light Reveals Creatures Never Before Seen by Man.

When it was discovered that an artificial light that very closely resembles the natural light of day could be produced from electricity, and that it could be so easily provided as to take in a great measure, the place of gas for lighting purposes, everybody was naturally astonished and thought that the electricians were the greatest men on earth.

As an experiment a small incandescent light was thrust beneath the water in a fountain. The effect was superb while it lasted, but the water was managed to work its way into the globe, and the light was extinguished. This gave the electricians something to think about, and they began immediately to rack their brains for a means of keeping the water away from the source of light.

For some time this was only used in lighting up fountains by way of an ornament. Then it occurred to Professor Baird, of the United States fish commission, that if a light could be used under water it would prove of great service to him in his search for fish that never allowed themselves to be caught by any of the old fashioned methods.

At a point near the Bahamas, according to the professor, the light was dropped overboard and sank by means of heavy weights to nearly 1,000 fathoms below the surface. On the deck of the vessel were necessary articles, such as a lot of mechanical wire, a large quantity of light, strong rope, and a number of heavy weights to serve as anchors.

Instantaneous Photographs. Instantaneous photographs of birds flying are valuable for physiological uses, but are certainly not artistic. The British Journal of Photography says of a collection of such pictures: "In some the wing tips are high in the air, in others quite low, and beneath, and indeed, in front of the body, while again in still different views of the same bird we seem to see nothing but wings apparently extended to imitate an umbrella. The pictures of the pelican are particularly ludicrous."—Chicago News.

The other night, at the concert of the Yale Glee club, in New Haven, after the first number on the programme, the freshman class gave the audience to understand that it was in evidence. First there came a chorus of "John Bull" which came from the gallery, and the class afterwards "The Star Spangled Banner" which was sung from the gallery. Then a white dove flew over from the gallery and perched above the stage, and it took fifteen minutes to get it down, and it was several minutes before it was released.

John Milton's Cottage. Her majesty the queen of England has subscribed $200 toward the fund for the purchase of the cottage in which Milton wrote "Paradise Lost." This is not a very large sum, but it is four times as much as Milton received for the poem.

Begg's Blood Purifier and Blood Maker. No remedy in the world has gained the popularity that this medicine has, as a blood and tonic medicine. No one should be without it. It has no equal in its class, and its composition, and its effects, are all of a high order.
