CITY CORDIALS.

-"Peg" tonight.

-Marshal Mallick is sick with hemorrhage of the lungs.

-Mrs. W. P. Cook died between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning.

-The Stuart Theatre Co., are the best theatrical troupe, (at the rate of admission), now traveling through the country.

-You can be enlightened and amused by witnessing the rendition of "Peg" at the opera house tonight. Admission 25, 35, and 50 cents.

-A marriage license was issued by Judge Russell yesterday afternoon to A. T. McLaughlin of Nuckolls county, and Miss Alice Murfin of Union, Cass county.

 The female portion of our community should visit the opera house this week and learn items, perhaps, of interest, regarding the appearance, finish, and

-It is not a critics place to accord praise without a little d-___. So we would humbly suggest that Mr. Stuart. of the company bearing his name, will "cut it short," the next time he announces a matinee performance.

-We pick out nobody for individual praise. All were excellent in their parts, without exception. Not a "cue" required. The Stuart company has made their "entrance" successful, and we are sure their "exit" will be regretted.

-Phil Harrison received two light Brahmas Sunday to add to his stock of chickens, which cannot be surpassed by any in the state. He also received by mail a photograph of an escutcheon or coat of arms of his grandfather, Sir Joseph Payton, which is a curiosity worth notice by those interested in heraldic signs and "Burke's Peerage."

-"Though lost to sight, to memory dear." This quotation applies to the old building which is now being pulled down corner of Fourth and Main. It photographs were taken of these old structures as they disappear, they would be fondly cherished in years to come by those who now look upon the city in its progressive career.

-The performance of "Inshavogue' given by the Stuart Theatre Co. las night was a grand success. Waterman's Opera House was crowded from pit to gallery with an appreciative and intelligent audience. Not one remark or gag was uttered by the "heavenly throng' during the entire evening to mar the pleasure of the entertainment that was accorded spontaneous applause and frequent encores.

-Two jokers entered a street car this morning. They appeared to be leading a drunken companion, who was well dressed in a light colored suit of clothes and had a felt hat pulled down over his forehead. At Sixth and Main the two men left the car and the driver entered and shook the drunken man's arm and demanded his fare, but failed to receive any reply. He shook and shook, but the him bodily, for the purpose of putting him off, when he discovered that the individual was a tailor's dummy.

-On Sunday last, W. S. Young, son of J. H. Young, storekeeper B. & M. of this city, was united in marriage at Republican City, Neb., to Miss L. B. Duncan of that place. They arrived on train No. 2 yesterday and were met at the depot by his parents. They were received at the home of J. H. Young by a party of intimate friends who spent the evening in a pleasant manner, after which the happy couple went to their home. which had been prepared by the groom on south 6th street. Walter being an old newspaper man, causes THE HERALI to hope that the "impression" now "formed" will give a "clean proof" and be "locked up" with the "quoins" of happiness and mutual attachment.

-An incident occurred this morning on Washington avenue that would make a good sketch for Puck. A chicken had been foolish enough to get into a pool of water last night and calmly submit to the allurements of Morpheus while standing on its right foot, with the left one raised in the act of scratching its ear. Its owner, a fat German, discov ered the fowl this morning, in the above position, in front of his door. He "shoo'ed" at it and threw a piece of stone, which struck the illiterate creature. but it could no more move than some of the structures on the line of the B. & M. called depots. On investigation, it was discovered that the bird's foot was frozen to the earth which gave it the resemblance of a monument of misery mocking despair. The old gent got a cup of hot water which he applied to the bird's pedal and so released it from its capLuck.

We believe it is Sir William Hamilton that says that the human mind is capable of attending to at least, half a dozen things at a time. But we have no hesitation in saying, that no man or woman ever attained to greatness, who attempted more than one thing at the same time. It is the concentration of all our energies and attention to a given object which gives the mastery of it. Many people fail beverts to the fowl with still greater haste, the person is brought to their first job to lowered into their last resting place. find that the fowl is spoiled, and the ex clamation at once arises, "such bad luck as I do have." Now, the question arises variety of the dresses worn by Miss Lilah | is it luck, or is it something else. Allow us please to suggest a more reasonable term, namely, bad management. The secret of success lies very much in a continuous action in a proper chanel. One may be at the same time a poet, or a historian. He may excel, both as a painter and a sculptor, but he cannot work with the brush in one hand and chisel in the other, he must be content to do one thing at a time. In any persuit, if we keep en doing, and do not allow any one thing to lap over on another so as to make confusion, we will not have the mistortune, so frequently called "bad luck." The tortise won the race, because, although, he was deliberate, he kept straight on. The hare lost the race because of his fickleness. Every thread in a garment must be spun on its own spindie. Every letter and space and stop, must be placed in the compositor's stick by itself. Great results come from doing one thing at a time; chaos often comes when we try to do too much. Hence

-A gentleman traveling for some wholesale house and reciving orders about the city for silverware, was told by the mayor of the city, last night, that he would have to accord with the city ordinance and pay a license fee of ten dellars for carrying on his business. This gentleman asked the opinion of the house he represents on the matter and they informed him as follows: "Do not pay such a license! Go ahead! If arrested, use no bad language, but refuse fellow wouldn't answer. He then lifted to pay license and we'll come up with a writ of habeas corpus." He will be arrested this evening and the technical points of the case tested tomorrow. It has been already proved by appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court that no town or state can tax a commercial traveler, so that, we expect, the fine points will be the definition of the term, commercial traveler and the word, ped-

-Mr. McHugh, brother in-law of Morris O'Rourk and a resident of Malvern, Iowa, arrived in the city today. This gentlemen was married in this city about eight years ago to the daughter of Mr. Morris O'Rourk. Since then he has been often in the city and is highly respected by those with whom he has had business connections, as fair-dealing, honest man. It will be the interest of farmers to be in town next Saturday, and through the week, to view his models of farm laborsaving machines. This is not an "ad." Mr. McHugh has letter patents that prove the utility of his inventions, consist of a drag-saw, bit for breaking unmanageable horses, and listing harrow.

-We thank the Hon. John A. McShane for a work entitled "Department of Agriculture" report, 1886. If anybody wants to know anything about seeds, garden and grounds, animal industry, betany, mycology, forestry, ornithology, pomolagy, chemistry, statistics and microscopes, call at this office and get the book, free of charge. Those subjects are too mirthinspiring for our study. They are just about as interesting to a reporter as an interview with a corpse on a baggage car.

To whom it may concern: Parties owing me book accounts, will save costs by settling the same by the 1st of March, Respectfully. 1888.

Australian Dush Life.

Practical jokes are very often played on a sheep station, especially on new chums. The most awkward horse is given to the newcomer, and the result eagerly watched for. Perhaps the Australian "buck jumper" is the most difficult horse in the world to sit. He allows himself to be mounted quietly, and then puts his nose between his knees, arches his back like a cat, and usually unseats his rider. They are sometimes taught to back jump, and strangers are challenged to ride them. Some can even buck right out of the saddle without bursting the girths, and leave their rider behind on the ground. The black fellows in a station are very expert riders, and will keep their seats after the saddle has gone .-San Francisco Chronicle.

Selecting a Gancho Leader.

It is related that a Gaucho army once elected its leader after the following exciting manner: A number of totally wild horses were driven into a corral whose only exit was a gateway above which was a cross bar. It was agreed that whoever should drop from the bar upon one of the animals as it rushed out and break it then and there without saddle or bridle should be their general. The feat was likely to cost the candidate. his life, but it was successfully accomplished. Who will doubt that the fortunate man was a fit leader for such an army?-T. C. Harbaugh.

The Dude in Paris.

A model of fashion in Paris recently appeared at the theatre in this, as the latest agony in evening dress: He wore two studs; his coat collar and lapels were of mat silk; the tails of his coat were very short; his waistcoat buttoned high; his cravat was unadorned; his gloves were putty colored and without black stitching; the brim of his hat was flat, and his cane was gold headed and richly embossed. He carries a cane in order to keep his hands out of his pockets, which is pronounced to be a reprehensible fashion.—Paris Letter.

Delighting the Small Boys.

A performer in a winter circus in New York is delighting the small boys by picking up his trick donkey and carrying it out of the ring at the close of each performance. The animal weighs 600 pounds. The circus man began lifting it when it was young, and has kept it up ever since.-Cincinnati Enquirer.
