CITY CORDIALS.

"There's something in the wind." -The "Tom" Ellis mentioned Saturday should have read "Charley Ellis." -The Presbyterian Sewing Circle will meet with Mrs. M. B. Murphy, Tuesday, March 13, at 2 P. M.

-There should not be a home in this city without a clock when one can be purchased by paying fifty cents a week to Shriner & Co., the installment house on Main street.

-The people who are an obstruction to the progress of a city are those who will not subscribe to any project for its advancement, and are so mean, that when they write a letter, they try to save ink by not dotting their i's or crossing their t's.

-There was about 400 people in attendance at Rockwood hall last night to hear Fanning, the temperance lecturer. Every seat in the large hall was occupied about a hundred stool around the entrance.

-We have been asked to continue the story contained in last Saturday's issue under the head "A novel in one chapter." It is not necessary, the story is ended. It might have been continued but unfortunately "the shark swallowed the man," and this ended the plot.

-Phil Harrison, the jolly, popular drayman of this city, has lately introduced a fashionable waddle, now prevalent in the east. It is caused by a cask of sash-weights, weighing 140 pounds, dropping on his big toe.

-When are you fellows going to leave here," politely asked one of the "Boys" of a Pinkerton man as he strolled around the depot yesterday. "I don't know, but I wish it was tomorrow, for we have been half starved since we've been here."

-Halladay's Georgia Minstrels furnished rare amusement to an audience that packed the opera house last night. This is probably the best minstrel troupe of negroes that ever visited Fargo, and there was much that was new, even in the gags.

YOUNG MAN.

"Who Taught Tiny Infant Lips to Pray."

Last Saturday there was a terribly sad and living picture of the evils of intemperance in the police court. Mixed in the case was that of a bright, handsome promising boy about seventeen years of age, who had been accused of being drunk.

Mr. Beeson for the prosecution spoke very enthusiastically and eloquently of the evils of drink, saying: "I start out in this case with 'charity for all and malice for none.' For thirty-five years not a dram of liquor has gone down by throat, and thank God, my son has arrived at the age of manhood and never crossed the threshold of a saloon, but I don't know how soon he might do it; the temptation is strong enough."

We will leave out the question of your health, morals and prospects, and merely appeal to the noble part of your nature, as affects your sister's regard and the affection of your mother,—the mother who turned from pain to holy joy to welcome your coming on this earth who gave her life blood to nurse you as a babe, who watched you with loving eyes through the trying times of infancy, rising at all hours of night and day to attend to your slightest desire, and then as you developed from boyhood to manhood with beauty and physical strength, how her bosom heaved with grateful pride as she proudly viewed the outline of your form and offered thanks to God that you had been spared to her in her old age.

Plattsmouth Gipsys. As a proof of the prosperity of our city and the beautiful landscapes of the surrounding country, can be mentioned the fact, that for the past five months we have had in our midst seven Gipsy families, which comprise about thirty persons, old and young. A portion of these live in houses and the others have resided in tents at the end of Chicago Avenue, all winter.

The chief way of gaining a livelihood, by the men, is in the buying and selling of horses. The women are occupied most of the time in telling the maidens and married women of the city "that somebody loves them; their husbands are true, their children will have a bright and prosperous future," and other stories, which, no doubt, many of our readers are aware of.

They are very sharp, keen students of human nature, active and healthy, polite in manners and speech, and usually a law-abiding people; anyhow, in this country it is an unusual thing to see them in a police court.

The original tribes of Gipsys left India about the fourteenth century, and are now scattered all over the globe speaking the language of the country in which they have taken up their residence, but all having the same color of complexion (which is similar to the Hindoos), and all understanding the Romany dialect.

The Romany language is full of Hindustani words, the sentence: "Hani ko peni-ki pani do," (give me a drink of water) being very much like the words used in Romany. The study of these people suggests the idea of one of the lost tribes of Israel and can be further investigated by the religious student by studying the history of the Khyberes, Douranees, Afreedees and other tribes who speak "Pushtoo" and dwell on the Himalayas near the Khyber Pass, between Peshawur and Cabul.
