CITY CORDIALS.

Remember the ice cream sociable to be given at F. M. Richey's tomorrow night.

It's a girl at S. A. Davis' and S. A. is setting up the cigars in fine style, so the boys say.

There will be a regular meeting of the Y's at Miss Cramer's rooms, tomorrow at 4 p. m. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

Rev. Alexander makes daily visits to the depot these days in vain hope we presume that his bachelorhood days may soon be over. Mrs. Alexander is expected home in a few days.

Don't forget the May Queen celebration on the 29th and 30th. The ladies are making big preparations for a grand time and you can't afford to miss the entertainment.

Forty-five cases of smallpox have been reported among the colored people of Leavenworth, Kansas. Too much care cannot be taken to prevent its spread through the country.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor will give an ice cream sociable at the residence of Mayor F. M. Richey, tomorrow evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

Lew Penington received a telegram from his brother Frank, of Beatrice, announcing the sad death of his brother Eddie, at that place. Mr. Penington will go to Beatrice this evening.

The committee on the decoration of graves request everybody to save all the flowers possible for next Wednesday. There will be use for all and each one should take an interest in this work.

There will be a medical lecture by Mrs. Swetland, M. D., at the Christian church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for ladies only. She will also lecture in the evening, everybody invited. Admission free but a collection will be taken in the evening.

Jim Pollock, O. C. Patterson, Cliff Shepherd and J. N. Glenn of the B. & M. fuel department at this place were today transferred by the company to Lincoln where the chief fuel supply will be located from henceforth. C. G. Codman will be fuel agent here from now on. We are sorry to have these men leave us as they are all good representative men and good citizens and we have room for all such in our city.

Decoration day is set apart as a national holiday in which to decorate the graves of union soldiers and pay other tributes of respect to the memory of the brave. This service is a just debt which every living American owes the dead, and those who use the day for boisterous sports, games and other amusements show a very faint idea of the fitness of things. The rising generation needs a lesson in reverence.—Lincoln Journal.

This morning while rambling around town for news we happened to drop into Hensel's mill and were surprised to see what good flour he is making both white and and graham flour also cornmeal, and we say to our readers without any hesitating that you ought to patronize this home industry and especially the farmers because you can bring in your grain and exchange it for flour and go home with your grist the same day.

Our friend C. W. Sherman, of the Journal, who is noted for the muchness of his mouth which with its strong anarchist tendencies has several times succeeded in getting the honorable gentleman into trouble, was again going this morning down at the depot when Mr. C. W., mouth and all, were promptly ejected from the depot platform by one of detective Pinneo's men. The last we saw of C. W., he was raimly looking for an officer to arrest the "mercenary pup." Tonight's Journal will probably have another column of abuse to the B. & M. and Pinkertons in particular, yet the Pinkertons had nothing to do with Mr. Sherman's removal.

The commencement exercises of the high school Friday night promise to be the best ever held in the city. An excellent and interesting program has been prepared and all that attend will be highly entertained. The people of the city should feel a deep interest in this work and encourage the young people as well as the teachers by their presence. This is the commencement of real life for them, and it is our duty when possible to give them an encouraging start. Besides they are not asking us to give something for nothing, the exercises have been well and thoughtfully prepared and every one especially prepared for the entertainment of those who may attend, so that we are confident that all who attend will be well paid for their trouble.

OUR NATION DISGRACED

C. Whopper Slightly Disfigured but Still in the Ring.

C. Whopper Sherman, editor of the Journal, was led off of the depot platform this morning by a special detective. This disgrace to our nation was witnessed by our special artist, and the following is the way the Pinkerton men appeared:

Accidental Shooting.

Another case of accidental shooting. Last evening Frank Whistler, having obtained an old pistol and some cartridges went up by the standpipe with his brother to practice shooting. While up there Frank accidentally shot himself in the leg. The wound seemed to be very slight and he walked down town and around quite a while without complaint and in fact did not complain until after he had gone to bed, when he began to complain that his leg was hurting and after close examination and questioning it was learned that he had shot himself. Dr. Cook was immediately called and examined and dressed the wound and reports the little fellow getting along very nicely.

Such accidents, although this perhaps, is very slight, are of too frequent occurrence. There should be some means of prohibiting boys from getting a hold of old pistols and especially of cartridges. Dealers should be prohibited by law from selling to boys and by this means such accidents would become less frequent.

Memorial Day.

Next Wednesday, May 30, 1888, will mark the twentieth annual reoccurrence of Memorial Day. Although originally instituted by the Grand Army, the beautiful ceremonies born of our comradeship has been so widely adopted that memorial day has become a great national festival in which tender memories and patriotic purposes rule the hour. Let the graves of the dead be marked by the pure blossoms of spring, which all tongues speak the language of gratitude and love. While all things else have changed since the dawn of the first morn of creation, they remain the same; they blossom, bloom, wither and die the same today as they did in the Garden of Eden. A fitting tribute to smoulder into dust, above the still and pulseless breast of the departed. Cover them over—yes, cover them over.

Cover them over—yes, cover them over. Parent and husband and brother and lover Crown in your heart these dear comrades of ours. And cover them over with beautiful flowers. All of whatever faith or creed, are invited to assist in commemorating the memories of the day.

J. W. JOHNSON, Post Commander.

An Answer.

EDITOR HERALD:—"Patron" in a communication yesterday in your paper, desires to know by whose authority a charge is made to the High School Commencement exercises.

In reply I will say, that there is no special authority for so doing, further, than it has been the custom recognized by the board, ever since I have been a member, to make a nominal charge for the purpose of defraying the expenses incident thereto.

There is no other means of paying such expenses, unless they are met by the board, which it does not feel authorized to do. L. D. BENNETT, Pres. Board of Education.

—A Grinnell newspaper man thus describes some of the kinds of people he admires. Every community has them, and they are indeed the pride of the fraternity: "We like to hear a man refuse to take his home paper, and all the time sponge on his neighbor for the reading of it. We like to hear him complain when asked to subscribe for his home paper, that he takes more than he can read now, and then go and borrow his neighbor's or loaf around till he gathers all the news from it. We like to see a man run down his home paper as not worth taking and now and then beg the editor for a favor in the editorial. We like to see a man run down his home paper and then try to get a share of the trade which the newspaper brings to the town; we like to see this; it looks economical, thrifty, progressive and cheeky."—Davis County (Ia.) SULLIVAN AND MITCHELL.

THE GREAT "SCABBY" Q.

TUNE—"The Sweet Bye and Bye." There's a road that's entirely manned by scabs, H. B. Stone is manager of it too, And men can get drunk in their cabs On the great Scabby Route called the Q.

CHORUS— On the Great Scabby Q. Is the place where scabs hold the reins. On the Great Scabby Q.

Is the place where the loss eats the gains Paul Morton found that lying was his role And he's told some whoppers—not a few. He couldn't tell the truth to save his soul About the Great Scabby called the Q.

If the engineer lets the water get so low That steam in the gages looks sky blue They never lay him off—Oh, no! On the Great Scabby Route called the Q.

If stuck to Chicago you would slip You will find what I tell you to be true; You had better walk ahead on the trip And tell folks they're coming on the Q.

If some goods you should purchase while in town And would like to sell them while their new, you'll have to take them to some other town Where there's no Scabby Route called the Q.

If a trip you would take with your wife, Let me, friend, advise you what to do; Get a great big insurance on your life If you have to travel on the Q.

If from life's stormy scenes you would hide And want to get a ticket "marked" through To points on the great other side, Then ride on the Great Scabby Q.

SONG ABOUT THE SCAB.

To sing of the scab it is my intention, And a jolly good fellow is he; He will venture his life For his children and wife, This fact all the strikers shall see. He has got good employment, That brings great enjoyment, He knows that the strikers must scatter, He now blows his whistle, And like the down from the thistle, Away to the west with a clatter; So give a loud cheer For the scab engineer, So independent, so manly and clever, The strikers are flat, While he throws up his hat, As he handles the throttle and lever.

So jolly he feels, As he oils up the wheels; He glories to run her on time, With his check in his hand, He is like a king in the land, 'Tis no wonder he keeps her so prime. What a meeting there will be, His boy on his knee, and his nice loving wife at the bower. He says wife never fear, Though I am a scab engineer, This check will keep the wolf from the door.

To pull down our freedom, The strikers determined To have their own way on the Q; Let liberty go, The railroads shall know

They must come to our terms or they'll rue. But the very best schemes Of wise and of men, And fools that are never contented; They will find their mistake, When they have no purse to shake, And then it is too late to mend it.

The Omaha Bee wants all people to see, That if they take the Burlington route, They will be thrown from the track, On the flat of their back, And return with bad fever and gout. He has it all cut and dried, How many hundred get fried And scalded and killed in a sleeper; The thousands that are slain On every mail train, Send your wife if you don't want to keep her.

Now the strike is at an end, Let every striker be a friend, To the scab that is willing to work. Let liberty rule, And not be a fool, To fall out with your potatoes and perk. It is just my advice, To keep still as mice;

Do the best that you can, and then I think You will find you are wrong, When your money is all gone, The railroad can live if you sink.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

A Picture of Von Moltke. Von Moltke's face looks as though the natural skin had been replaced by a stretch of ancient and yellowish parchment. The lines are innumerable and they radiate regularly from the corners of his mouth when he smiles as ripples from a stone that is dropped through the surface of a placid pool. The smiles of the grizzled and wrinkled old field marshal are frequent enough, too, when he is abroad. The small army of little children who are taken to the war office every day by the nurses to see the old commander stump about as though a man had just about reached his prime when well along in his 89th year, wave their hands delightedly at Count Von Moltke. None of them has a more genial, winning and childlike smile than the head of the greatest army in the world. Military critics assert that not one of the countless and masterly documents on army affairs that Von Moltke has given to the world during his long life compares in force, clearness, cogency and power with his report of the present year.—Blackly Hall's Letter.

One man is spending all the money he can earn in taking a girl to the theatre and sending her flowers, in the hope that he may eventually make her his wife, and his neighbor is spending all the gold he has saved to get a divorce.
