THE SUPPRESSION OF COLORED

VOTE.

The Republican of this city is engag- think that you are a good little boy." ed in revamping Mr. Biaine's post mortem Augusta speech relative to the suppression of the colored vote in the plenishing. south. The chief interest in this speech lies in the fact that Mr. Blaine was afraid to make it until after he was defeated. So long as he thought he might carry a southern state or two, he permitted the negro to take care of himselfafter all the southern states had gone democratic and it was not possible to assist the negro in his struggle for suffrage, Mr. Blaine expressed indignation over the negro's wrongs.

It must be admitted that in several southern states the negro has not received the rights promised him by the great amendments. But what does the hepublican propose to do about it ! Its party was in power twenty years after the close of the war and if the Republican's fig ures show that the suppression of the colored vote in South Carolina was ful-Iv as extensive in 1884 as it had been at any previous time.

Will the Republican explain its method of securing to the negro his electoral rights? - Omaha World.

We hope the Republican will not do what the mugwump editor of the World does, approve of such crime and charge it to the amendments and the republican party. We have an insufferable contempt for mugwump appologists for tion, receives vast numbers of Tubercle crime committed in behalf of the solid south. But there is no earthly reason why a so-called independent professor of political morality should always be the very first to take offense when such outrageous crimes as the World admits are the adopted practices of the democratic party of this nation and by which alone that party can remain in power a single day are com-

MEXICO.

The annual report of the Mexican Central Railroad, which has just been published, taken in connection with information concerning the other roads which has been made public from time to time, shows that railway operations have been active and profitable in Mexico in the past year or two. The Central's report covers the year 1887, and gives figures for the three years immediately preceding. In 1887 the road's earnings from freight $3,458,006. There has been a steady increase in the past four years in each item. The percentage of gain in 1887 was over 12.5 over 1885 and 5.7 over 1886. The gain in freight receipts last year was 95.4 per cent over 1884, 53.7 over 1885 and 37.7 over 1886.

The Mexican Central was incorporated about eight years ago, and four years later it began operations along its entire length. As the distance from El Paso, Tex., which is its northern terminus, to the City of Mexico, its southern end, is about 1200 miles, the conscruction was pushed forward actively. A large amount of United States capital is invested in the enterprise, as well as in the other Mexican roads running from the boundary line of this country, Much interest is taken here in these lines. When the Central was opened to through business in 1884, thus bringing the City of Mexico for the first time into railroad communication with the United States. the event was made the occasion of congratulation on both sides of the international boundary line. The interests of both countries are to a large extent identical, and the business ties uniting one to the other are yearly growing closer and closer. The flattering exhibit of railroad earnings, therefore, in the sister republic, which shows that that country is enjoy ing a fair share of industrial and commercial prosperity, will be pleasing intelligence to the people of the United States.—Globe Democrat.

BOTH Louisiana and South Carolina are distributing circulars througout this country and part of Europe showing the advantages which those states offer to settlers. The biggest boom which these or any other southern states could possibly get is that which a republican victory would bring them. A republican victory might not give them more economical or more effective local government than they now enjoy; but it would show the world that these states stood ready to grant to every resident all the rights and privileges extended to them by the law. -Globe Democrat.

Scientific Study of Crime.

Criminal biology is a new development of science, but one of eminent value. The New York Academy of Anthropology sends out the following questions: 1. What categories of criminals may we distinguish? And what are the fundamental characteristics, physical and psychical, which they display? 2. Is there a general bio-pathological constitution which predisposes its subject to the commission of crime? How does it originate, and what form does it assume? 3. What is the proper classification of human actions, based on the affections which give rise to them? What effect is done by men, but each household sends its does the education of the moral nature have upon the passions, and indirectly upon crime? 4. Does the number of suicides stand in inverse ratio to the number of homicides? 5. Epilepsy and RAILROAD OPERATIONS IN moral insanity in prisons and insane asylums. 6. Malingering among the insane. 7. The utility of a museum of criminal anthropology. 8. The influence of atmospheric and economic conditions on crime in America. These questions are followed by others under the title of criminal sociology. THE ZOAR COMMUNITY.

A VISIT TO OHIO'S SETTLEMENT OF MYSTICS AND COMMUNISTS.

A Village Surrounded by a Fertile Country on the Banks of the Tuscarawas. Manufactures - Cattle Breeding - The Fair Sex-Amusements, Etc.

This settlement of German mystics and communists is a complete little kingdom in itself, and not such a very little kingdom, either. The Zoarites own 7,000 acres of land in one tract, of which half is under cultivation, while the remainder is heavily timbered with valuable walnut, oak and pine trees. Their original purchase here was 10,-000 acres, but 3,000 have been sold from time to time at a great advance over first cost.

Every article, implement or machine that is used, wrought with, eaten, drank or worn by the Zoarites is produced in Zoar, as are also the materials of which it is composed. The only exceptions to this rule are coffee, tea, sugar and spices. The shoes the Zoarites wear are made by their own shoemakers from leather prepared by their own tanners from hides taken from their own cattle. The coal that warms them and cooks their food is dug in their own mines and is burned in stoves cast in their own foundry from iron smelted in their own furnaces from ore found in abundance on their own lands. The clothing that covers them is made by their own tailors from cloth woven in their own mill from wool sheared from their own sheep. The beer they drink is brewed in their own brewery from malt made by their own maltsters and hops grown on their own lands,

All manufacturing in Zoar is done by water power. Steam is scarcely used at all. The Tuscarawas river, by means of dams, is made to flow with sufficient swiftness and volume to supply thirty or forty horse power to each of the Zoarite manufactories. Nearly all the machinery used was made in Zoar by Zoarite mechanics. One of their principal products is flour, of which, after supplying their own wants, they ship large quantities to Pittsburg, Cleveland, Washington and

THE COW STABLES.

One of the chief places of interest in Zoar s the great collection of immense barns, in which the milch cattle are kept. A considerable portion of the Zoarites' wealth is invested in their live stock, and they have devoted much attention to determining what are really the best breeds. They have experimented largely with the Holstein, the Jersey, the Alderney and the Durham, and are now inclined to favor the last named, though all four varieties are well represented in their herds.

Every sanitary and convenient device that modern ingenuity has been able to suggest is utilized in the construction of these cow staside of a broad aisle, and the conditions for light and ventilation are of the most favorable kind. Already the cows are out at pasture, in a seemingly interminable procession, each one knowing her accustomed place and going voluntarily to it without the slightest dis-On the morning and evening of each day all the young women in Zoar repair in merry much less useful purpose, the girls are "paired," and each two are assigned eight cows, which they must always milk. Fancy more than thirty buxom young milkmaids, with the good looks which are the offspring of good health, outdoor exercise and good diet sparkling in their eyes, lips and cheeks. Each one is tastefully dressed in well fitting chintz or calico, and wears a white apron, which, like everything else about these most attractive young women, is crupulously neat and clean.

Another place in which to see the Zoarite young women to advantage is the bakery, where all the bread and pies for the entire community are baked fresh every morning. From 75 to 100 loaves comprise the average daily consumption of the town. The baking young women to the bakery to procure its supply of daily bread and carry it home. wrapped in a large, spotless white cloth, which each damsel carries with her.

"AIRING" THE LITTLE ONES. Besides these quaint processions of young women to the cow stables and the bakery there is another similar one to be seen in Zoar on every pleasant day. That is, a procession of girls ranging from 8 to 13 years, each drawing in an old fashioned baby carriage a younger brother or sister for an airing. As all property in Zoar is held in common, so together in all their pleasures and duties. "aired" simultaneously in a long drawn out

For the pleasure of the members of the so-ciety and their visitors a public garden and a greenhouse are maintained in Zoar. Both are of considerable extent and would be highly creditable to any large city. The garden is tastefully laid out, and contains some noble trees and elegant shrubbery. A large and delightfully cool arbor in the cengreenhouse boasts a fine collection of choice grand old forest trees, in which the Zoarites have placed swings and a covered daucing platform for the enjoyment of their younger visitors, who in summer time come in large numbers from surrounding cities and towns as well as from the adjacent country and picnic here on two or three days of almost every week. But swinging and dancing are not the only amusements provided for these young people by their good friends the Zoars, who find their chief happiness in making others happy. Many beautiful pleasure boats are maintained here, and no stream could be better adapted for boating than the Tuscarawas river.

If any people in the world practically indorse, in every possible way, old John Wesley's saying that cleanliness is next to godliness, that people are the Zoarites. In the brewing of their beer, the making of their wine, the milking of their cows, the baking of their bread, and the slaughtering of their cattle, their chief object seems to be the attainment of the highest possible degree of cleanliness. Their slaughter house, where some magnificent beeves are killed daily, is a model in that particular. They are very fond of the pleasures of the table, and there are few city hotels whose bill of fare presents a greater variety than that of the Zoarite village inn, while none surpass it in excellence of cookery .- Zoar (O.) Cor. Chicago Times.
