CITY CORDIALS.

—Subscribe for the DAILY HERALD. —If you want a job done on short notice bring it to the HERALD office. —Special arrangements has been made by J. E. Robbins for giving instructions in oil painting, caryon etc. during the holidays.

—The social given last night at Mayor Richey's was well attended and a grand good time was had by all who were there. It was also a financial success as well.

—Remember the commencement exercises to night at the opera house. The exercises begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Reserved seats are now on sale at J. P. Young's store.

—The constable of Avoca arrived in town this morning with two men who were arrested at that place for assault on the station agent, by throwing rocks at him and other depredation. The men were given ten days apiece in the county jail.

—J. H. Donnelly leaves for the east today, to purchase the finest and most complete stock of gent's furnishing goods and hats, ever brought to the city, and will open the same in the west hall of Frank Carruth's jewelry store, on or about Monday, June 4th. All in need of anything in his line, will do well to wait and select from his new stock.

—A perfect representation of Sherman's march to the sea is the title of a cartoon that culminates the north end of the depot. It seems to us that the city authorities should look into this matter and have the author of it arrested for the circulation of obscene literature. Its a perfect picture of the editor of the Journal.

—On the night of the 23 inst. some tramps assaulted a brakeman on the M. P., between Avoca and Weeping Water and knocked the brakeman of the top of a car with a rock. The brakeman was picked up next morning for dead but at last reports it is thought he will recover. The perpetrators of the deed have not yet been heard of.

—We are informed that some of our enterprising citizens are endeavoring to organize a ball club. We hope they will succeed, for there is nothing that adds more attraction to a city than a good base ball club. It will pay every business man in the city to take an active interest in this enterprise, then ere long you can hear the name and fame of our city echoed far and near.

—The fast stock train of the Burlington the other day beat the record of any train yet on any road. The entire trip from Omaha to Chicago was made in twenty hours and fifteen minutes, beating the Rock Island more than an hour with six miles farther to run. This is getting to the front in fine shape and the road is again getting back to its old standard of making the quickest time of any road in the west.

—In another column may be seen a wonderful description of a large aerial hand with drops of blood dripping from the ends of the fingers. Many predictions have been made in regard to the significance of this wonderful spectacle, but our opinion is that the hand represents Cleveland and the democratic party and the blood is the followers of Cleveland dropping out of the ranks, and that ere the November election rolls around they will have all dropped out and Cleveland sunken into oblivion just as the wonderful hand seemed to be.

—Down at Lone Pine, Invo county, is a rock that might easily be passed off for a petrified elephant. The Independent says: "A photograph of the rock shows as like as possible to the photograph of an elephant. The trunk, the eyes, the head and body are all as well formed in the photograph as if the camera had been turned towards a living animal. The wrinkles and folds in the skin of an elephant and the color are all repeated in the rock. The symmetry and proportions of the living animal are reproduced in this remarkable freak of nature."—Arizona Citizen.

IT HAS ENDED AT LAST.

"Q" Strikers Finally Forced to Surrender--A Depleted Treasury.

At a conference recently held between Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Grand Master Sergeant of the firemen, H. D. Kennedy, J. Hoge, and other representatives of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy strikers, an arrangement was made by which the strike was virtually declared off. It was decided to make the question of surrender or a continuance of the fight, a matter of local option. In other words, separate divisions of the "Q" were authorized to take the matter in their own hands. In consequence of this move the strike is already declared off at Lincoln, Neb., McCook, Neb., Creston, Iowa, and several other western points. The strikers at Galesburg, Aurora, Kansas City, and several of the eastern divisions resolved to continue the fight, but it is only a question of a short time when they will be forced to surrender. This step was forced upon the strikers by reason of a depleted treasury with no possibility of raising the money necessary to meet the immense monthly expenses incident to paying 2,000 men $40 apiece. It is not claimed that any special arrangement was made with the company, but the strikers are confident that a large percentage will regain their former places. Thus ends the great "Q" strike. The struggle was protracted to a time when a graceful surrender was impossible, and the men simply accept the inevitable.—Chicago Tribune.

Brick Paving.

The following was clipped from the Council Bluffs Nonpareil which strongly endorses brick for pavement in that city, and as our city fathers here are not yet fully decided as to what material is best for them to use, we clip the following as a sensible piece of advice to them:

The proposed paving of Willow avenue with brick meets with much favor. Brick paving has been tried in other cities, and it is said to stand well on residence streets. If it can be made a success here there would be much money kept right at home, instead of being sent away for material. A long time ago some hard-burned brick were put in the center of Broa'way, opposite the First National bank, right where there comes as much and as hard wear as any place in the whole city. Anyone can easily examine those brick and see how little wear there has been upon them. They have stood as well as any paving blocks. It is proposed to try Willow avenue, and the result of such an experiment would determine whether brick could be used to such an extent here as its enthusiastic advocates claim.

Mrs. Swetland's Lectures.

EDITOR HERALD:—Allow me through your paper to speak of the lectures delivered by Mrs. Swetland at the Christian church. She lectured yesterday afternoon to women, and used common sense. It was one of the best ever delivered in Plattsmouth. They are what all of our women and girls ought to hear as regards the health and morals of our race. She lectures to men and women tonight, and trust she will have an overflowing house.

A NEW BURIAL CASKET.

What Shall Become of us After Death.

Scientific societies, as well as the press, have lately agitated the best means of disposing of our mortal remains after death. The human mind shrinks from placing the remains of their loved ones in the grave, incased in common wood or iron receptacles, which will soon decay. Some are advocating the return to the barbarous practice of cremation, but this to the christian world seems to be horrible. Our attention was lately called to a burial casket made of imperishable material which constitutes within itself a miniature vault. It being made of cement which is a disinfectant, and when sealed makes the only jointless, air-tight and indestructible burial casket that answers all the sanitary and christian requirements; and at a price which places them within the reach of the rich and poor alike. Mr. Boeck our furniture dealer has ordered several of these new caskets and will have them on exhibition and for sale in a few days, and all may have the pleasure of seeing this greatest invention of age.

FRENCH CHILDREN AT HOME.

Watched rather than being watched. A feeling—Days and Nights. In French homes I have remarked the quiet, orderly procession of affairs, the parental harmony, watchful rather than domineering, which, by its own force, has almost out of fashion in our free and progressive country. French children are usually unobtrusive and quietly grave, ungrazed and simple in their habits and tastes, and hardly so in their manners, which show marks of tutoring, and are a little too ceremonious. Nearly all girls of Catholic parents, not taught at home by governesses and masters, are educated in convents as pensionnaires or as day scholars. In such institutions they are severely drilled in the catechism and in polite manners; in history, sacred and profane, with the profanity which mitigates against the church left out, are taught a little of the natural sciences and less of geography, which, by the way, is the weak point with most French people, for whom all lands beyond their frontier, especially across alien seas, are resolved into hazy, undetermined regions, inhabited principally by races more or less inferior and barbaric.

While boys are suffered to acquire not only Greek and Latin, but a modern language or two, for girls, except those belonging to high circles of society, one language—their incomparable vernacular—is held sufficient; but they are taught to speak and write that "excellent well." They are also good arithmeticians, and are well instructed in music, drawing and dancing. Not the equals of English girls in outdoor accomplishments, such as riding, driving, rowing, skating and swimming, they, when really in society, surpass them and all the other young ladies of the world in the art of entertaining and the grace of being entertained; in courtesy and tact, in taste and propriety, and that indescribable something, called "chic," in dress and appointments. But their crowning and most potent charm is just—politeness. Inculcated from their earliest years, this virtue becomes a habit, and sometimes takes the place and does the work of several Christian graces.

Very young French girls are only charming in a demure, shy way. They all seem ingenuous, and some are really so. They are all light hearted, and many light headed. They passionately love amusements, and are easily amused—a little pleasing going a great way with them. The wholesomest thing I know about them is their intense love of the country and its simple avocations and pastimes.—Grace Greenwood in New York Graphic.
