OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

A. Sallisbury, Dentist, Rockwood Building, Telephone No. 35.

Drs. Cave & Smith, the Painless Dentists, Union Block, over Citizens' Bank, Plattsmouth.

CITY CORDIALS.

—She's coming.
—"Mick" Guire and C. Whopper tell whoppers.
—"She" demands a full house and "she" must be obeyed.
—A large number today when told that "She" was coming, answered "who?"
—We called at the Plattsmouth Canning factory this morning and saw them putting up peas. The peas are being put up whole, so that when the cans are opened for use they will not be mashed. The peas are of excellent growth, look nice and taste good.
—The funeral of Mrs. Florence Kessler took place this morning from the residence of her husband, Vallery place, at 10 o'clock. Rev. Alexander conducted the funeral service. She was buried in the Oak Hill cemetery. She was reaching the prime of life, being in her ninetieth year, and had only been married a short time. We are sorry to see one so young called away. She died of consumption.
—Messrs. C. Fisher and B. F. Bryant, of Creston, who are traveling in the interest of the brotherhood of engineers and firemen, were in the city yesterday, and last night Mr. Bryant addressed the boys. Although only a day's notice had been given, Fitzgerald's hall was crowded by engineers and outsiders. In the afternoon he addressed the brotherhood at their hall. At each speech the boys were very enthusiastic and still claim that they have a solid foothold, and are apparently quite confident. Mr. Will Chambers acted as chairman of the meeting last night.
—On yesterday Mr. Lane, a prominent broker of Lincoln, on behalf of himself and property owners of said city applied to Judge Chapman, at his chambers, for an injunction against the laying of a railroad track on Ninth Street in the city of Lincoln. It appears the county commissioners of Lancaster Co. contemplate laying a side track from the C. B. & Q. tracks to the site of the new court house in Lincoln, for the purpose of getting material on the ground for that structure and the owners of city property propose to know whether the contemplated appropriation of the public streets of the city by the C. B. & Q. is a temporary or permanent thing. Judge Chapman made an order upon the commissioners and C. B. & Q. to show cause by Tuesday of next week why the injunction should not issue.
—The great "She" play has been secured by Manager J. P. Young for one night during the last week of this month, either the 28th or 29th. Nearly every man, woman and child has read the great book, and it is known over the whole country. Remember it is "She" who must be obeyed," so give her a full house. It was with difficulty that Mr. Young succeeded in securing this company, as they have opportunities to fill in dates open all the time. They play in Omaha at Boyd's opera house two nights and also at Lincoln for the same time. The company is under the management of Webster & Brady. The story is very fascinating, and all who ever read the great book were highly pleased with its style. The play will be put on the boards with the best scenery. All who have read the book, we are sure, could not miss it, and those who have not, should not let this opportunity pass.
—The base ball boys are putting to good advantage what leisure time is at their service, and nearly every favorable afternoon some of the players can be seen wending their way towards the ball grounds for the object of practicing. They are making arrangements to meet several nines in the near future, and their intention is to make them play ball if they wish to make a run at all. The boys have done remarkably well for the first two games they played and they, in their good playing, gained for themselves a reputation which will bring clubs here to meet them. They soon intend to meet the Council Bluffs team again and as their condition now will be more to be depended upon than at first, we have great confidence in their success. It would be a good idea if the club would work with the 4th of July celebration committee and bring a good club to the city to help out the amusements that day. Very few people will work then, and if they can be entertained at home, will remain here and spend their money instead of going to Omaha or some other place which they will be sure to do if nothing is done. Let the boys secure a nine to play here that day, if possible, and make everything run off smooth. The fire boys were successful in securing committees to look after the celebration, so, since such an advancement has been made in the right direction, as much outside assistance as possible should be liberally contributed.

—The "Y's" will hold a regular meeting at the Presbyterian church tonight. All members are requested to be present.
—It is reported that "Mick" Guire, of Whitman, Neb., is soon to assume editorship of our local contemporary, the Journal.
—The Y. L. R. R. A. will give a lawn social at the home of Mrs. W. S. Wise, Friday evening, June 22. Refreshments of ice cream and cake. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.
—Mrs. S. A. Davis is recovering gradually from the severe attack of rheumatism which she has been afflicted with for some time and now there are strong hopes entertained for her recovery.
—Mr. Clause Breckenfield took a trip to Lincoln yesterday. He is making arrangements there for a business which he and another gentleman of this city propose to open up here. Success to them.
—Mr. Sherman, of the Journal office, has secured the services of a "Jack" at Whitman, as his chief correspondent. Since he has a claim on him, why not put him in the "Sherman Stables" with the rest of the "Jacks"?

—Mr. Daniel Burris has been quite successful since he has started on his tour around the city with a subscription paper asking donations for the assistance to Jedd Vance. So far he has received subscriptions to the amount of about $75.
—Allen Beeson, who returned this morning from Beatrice where he has been engaged trying a suit wherein Perry Walker and Sam'l Barker of this place were plaintiffs, received a telegram containing the verdict of the jury, namely, $5400 for the plaintiffs.
—The democrats are apparently taking more interest in the convention which is being held at Chicago than they did in their own. No doubt the coming campaign will prove more interesting still. Even the red hot democratic organ on the corner of Main and Sixth goes to the trouble of securing the dispatches as they are received here and posting them on a bulletin board in front of their office. Mr. Sherman, it is said, admitted that the democrats were more excited over this convention than they were over their own. They know as well as we do that a republican president will be elected for the coming term.

—The Vim company which was to hold forth in the opera house last night, did not desire to entertain four or five "comp" besers and gave it up. The evening was warm, they had not been properly advertised, and other attractions had something to do with the non-appearance of an audience. It is reported that no tickets were sold, and Mr. and Mrs. Vim were somewhat disappointed with this city of ours. Mrs. Vim, it is said, gives a good entertainment in reading minds. She should have taken in the city and read some of the great minds before engaging the opera house for which they were obliged to pay a good price with no recompense.
—A young man who looked hungry today noon as he was on his way to dinner was approached by a man who takes considerable interest in his welfare and asked him what was the matter, he, thinking him sick. The young man replied that he had been out the night before and slept so late this morning that sleep stayed with him until a late hour and when he shook it off discovered the fact. He did not wish to make a break for his boarding house or they might "break" him up by telling him that dinner would soon be ready. However, he took courage and concluded to wait an hour for dinner. The man who approached him and asked if he was sick on account of the pale look and fallen cheeks, suspected that he had had nothing to eat for some time and wrote out a short note to headquarters asking them to feed him better.
—Three new drinks at O. P. Smith & Co's. Try them.

—Miss Kit Hartigan left for Hastings this morning.
—Mr. Byron Clark has been in Beatrice for the past week.
—Mrs. T. Patterson was a passenger to Omaha this morning.
—Mr. Harry A. Blenkiron, of Pekia, Ill., is the guest of his relatives of this city.
—Mrs. Ida Keesing, of Burlington, Ia., came in this morning and is visiting Mrs. John Shannon.
—Miss Margaret Arndt, of Chemnitz, Germany, arrived in the city, and will remain here on an extended visit to Mrs. S. Waugh and family.
—Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wead left for Denver on the flyer yesterday morning on a trip for the benefit of Mrs. Wead's health as she has been seriously ill for a month past.
—Mr. W. H. Foster returned from Sydney, Ia., where he has been visiting at his old home for a week. Today he will continue his journey west to Denver where he will visit for some time.
—Best milk shake in the city at O. P. Smith & Co's.
—The best 50c unbleached white shirt in the city, is the "Happy Hit" at Donnelly's. Try it.

The Way of the Reporter.

What a reporter will come in contact with and what he is obliged to stand, can only be faintly guessed at by inexperienced people. If he does not write up his news to suit everybody at the same time, some one is ready to jump on him, for what reason he knows not, but explanations are not given, and he is preached to, threatened with death, perhaps, looked on with contempt by others, while a few keep on the good side of him as he has suited them by a few words which he has been fortunate enough to drop in the right place. Considering all, a man is not at all safe. If he shows up a good extension of avoidance from each shoulder, he will probably navigate and sail through without a scratch. If he is unfortunate enough to be small, he is liable to be stepped on or kicked off the sidewalk, and the only way he can get any satisfaction is to "write 'em up" next day, taking chances of having a death sentence passed on him next time. As yet, no deaths have been reported among the newspaper fraternity here, but several sentences of death have been passed on some of the struggling news men. We have not yet learned how they have all escaped the black sentence, but as they all are apparently working along as in the days of yore, with not a thought of the danger in which they stand, probably, they are still safe on the banks of the evergreen shore. The position of a reporter is to be compared to that of a policeman, he is liable to be knocked out for trying to be impartial and doing his duty to the best of his ability. However, it is a great consolation to be alive and to know there are some joys and comforts in store for him, retained by the few he has pleased.
It would never do for the sun to always shine on some men, if such could be the case, great revelations would be the result and, no doubt, suicides would be frequent. Some wait for the sun to drop behind the hills—then the morning of their day comes and their labors are commenced. But as a newspaper man is not controlled in that way, he proves worse sometimes as he drops upon the scene at all hours, and if he cannot show them up as brightly before the people, he can write up a few lines which will bring to light almost as much. But then if he should think of exposing some, he is obliged to think of a death scene in which he, himself, is to be the victim and do all the work of dying. And now and then the managers of the quill are obliged to swallow an occasional joke when a news item is asked for. For in stance, only yesterday the reporter of this office was on his rounds gathering up a squib here and there. A man nerved himself, straightened his face out as long as his arm, and approached, remarking: "Did you hear of an accident just a few minutes ago?" "No, sir, I did not hear of anything startling." "You didn't! where have you been, I thought the report had been pretty well circulated by this time?" "Well, sir, I have heard of nothing very serious so far, today. What happened?" "A man was run over this afternoon while under the bridge, down here. A whole freight train passed over him."

—The democrats are apparently taking more interest in the convention which is being held at Chicago than they did in their own. No doubt the coming campaign will prove more interesting still. Even the red hot democratic organ on the corner of Main and Sixth goes to the trouble of securing the dispatches as they are received here and posting them on a bulletin board in front of their office. Railroad News.

And now comes a rumor, which, if verified, will doubtless result in the promotion of another Omaha man. It is said that H. B. Stone, general manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, will in a short time sever his connection with the road. The reasons for this action on the part of Mr. Stone are said to have arisen from inability to successfully manage the affairs of the road during the great strike. His successor will without doubt be G. W. Holdrege, of the B. & M. When the trouble began Mr. Holdrege contended that if the road won the battle with its engineers it would win at too great a cost, but when it came he settled down to business and all things considered, kept his end of the road in splendid condition. But for his untiring efforts the business of the company would have suffered much more than it did. The Burlington has not a man in their service, nor can they find one on any other system, who can fill the position of general manager more creditably than he.
At present nothing definite is known concerning the time when Mr. Stone steps out. In fact, it is not presumed that anyone here should know. All information will come from Chicago.
Mr. Holdrege was seen yesterday and stated that he had heard nothing regarding the proposed changes, but was of the opinion that he would remain right where he is. Time will, however, develop matters.—Bee.

What you want is an alternative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at F. G. Fricks & Co's drug store.

The Sewerage Boom.

The following letter has been received by the city authorities, and indicates that the improvements contemplated in Plattsmouth will at once be commenced and pushed forward to a speedy completion as fast as men and muscle can do it. The contractors are here ready to begin work and are as anxious as any of our citizens to hurry matters; they have only been waiting to know that the sale of the bonds was complete. The letter settles the matter beyond any doubt, as the bonds are most certainly drawn up legally and will pass the closest scrutiny; this assures us of one much needed improvement and the paving will at once follow:
Boston, Mass., June 18, 1888.

W. K. Fox, City Clerk, Plattsmouth, Neb.—Dear Sir:—Received your favor of recent date enclosing additional papers the Storm Water Sewer Bonds. As soon as our attorney finds the bonds legal, we are ready to take up and pay for $10,000 of the bonds. Now you had better get the bonds all registered by the state auditor and ship them direct to us and we will place the amount to your credit with the understanding that you are to check it out as you need it in the construction of the sewers. We take it for granted from what you say in your last letter that you will need about $10,000 a month. Boston exchange is just as good for you as New York. In regard to the financial standing of our Bank, we would kindly refer you to any commercial agency in the United States. Awaiting your reply, we are,
Yours truly,
SPITZER & Co.

THE CLIMATE OF SIBERIA

Not All a Barren Arctic Waste—Beauty and Profusion of Siberian Flowers.
It is hardly necessary to say that a country which has an area of five and a half million square miles, and which extends in latitude as far as from the southern extremity of Greenland to the island of Cuba, must present great diversities of climate, topography and vegetation, and cannot be everywhere a barren arctic waste. A mere glance at a map is sufficient to show that a considerable part of western Siberia lies farther south than Nice, Venice or Milan, and that the southern boundary of the Siberian province of Semirechinsk is nearer the equator than Naples in a country which thus stretches from the latitude of Italy to the latitude of central Greenland one would naturally expect to find, and, as a matter of fact, one does find, many varieties of climate and scenery. In some parts of the province of Yakutsk the mean temperature of the month of January is more than 50 degs. below zero Fahr., while in the province of Semipalatinsk the mean temperature of the month of July is 72 degs. above, and such maximum temperature as 95 and 100 degs. in the shade are comparatively common.
On the Taimyr peninsula, east of the Gulf of Ob, the permanently frozen ground thaws out in summer to a depth of only a few inches, and supports but a scanty vegetation of berry bushes and moss, while in the southern part of western Siberia watermelons and cantaloupes are a profitable crop, tobacco is grown upon thousands of plantations, and the peasants harvest annually more than 50,000,000 bushels of grain. The fact which I desire especially to impress upon the mind of the reader is that Siberia is not everywhere uniform and homogeneous. The northern part of the country differs from the southern part quite as much as the Hudson Bay territory differs from Kentucky; and it is as great a mistake to attribute the cold and barrenness of the Lena delta to the whole of Siberia as it would be to attribute the cold and barrenness of King William Land to the whole of North America.
To the traveler who crosses the Urals for the first time in June nothing is more surprising than the fervent heat of Siberian sunshine and the extraordinary beauty and profusion of Siberian flowers. Although we had been partly prepared, by our voyage up the Kamra, for the experience which awaited us on the other side of the mountains, we were fairly astonished upon the threshold of western Siberia by the scenery, the weather and the flora. In the fertile, blossoming country presented to us as we rode swiftly eastward into the province of Tobolsk, there was absolutely nothing even remotely suggestive of an arctic region. If we had been blindfolded and transported to it suddenly in the middle of a sunny afternoon, we could never have guessed to what part of the world we had been taken. The sky was as clear and blue and the air as soft as the sky and air of California; the trees were all in full leaf, birds were singing over the flowery meadows and in the clumps of birches by the roadside, there were a drowsy hum of bees and a faint fragrance of flowers and verdure in the air, and the sunshine was as warm and bright as that of a June afternoon in the most favored part of the temperate zone.—George Kennan in The Century.

The Daughter of Owen Meredith.
In the days when Lord Lytton wrote poetry and was better known as Owen Meredith, people who pretended to know insisted that he had some unhappy love affair with a married woman, to whom some of his most famous poems were addressed. Afterward he consoled himself with a wife of his own, but he always retained a great fondness for the Lucile type of woman, with pale, clear skin, and dark hair and eyes, such as the woman of his first passion is said to have had. Strangely enough, his daughter strongly resembles the girl he was so fond of describing over and over again in verse. She and he are the most inseparable friends and comrades and the affection between them is really beautiful to see.
She is very clever, it is said, and he has educated her in great measure himself, in consequence of which their tastes are similar and their intellectual pursuits enjoyed in common. They both are ardent connoisseurs of Eastern art and literature, and the notes they inhabit in Paris is a perfect treasury of Indian carvings, manuscripts, pottery and hangings. The girl is an excellent horsewoman, and early every morning she and her father are to be seen galloping side by side in the Bois. Afterward they work together, for she takes great interest in his public labors and performs many of the duties of a secretary for him. She paints with considerable skill and sings charmingly, and there have been whispers of late about her efforts in verse, which are said to be such as Owen Meredith himself would not be ashamed to acknowledge.—New York World.

The doctor tells Morrill that if he doesn't stop work and take a rest he'll go into a decline, and then tells Blakely that if he does not abandon his sedentary position and go off somewhere and work on a farm he will die of torpidity of the liver.
