

Evening Herald. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY. A. Salisbury, Dentist, Rockwood Building, Telephone No. 35.

CITY CORDIALS.

Dr. Siggins has removed his office from the Sherwood block to Gering's drug store as will be seen by his ad. in this paper.

Mr. Henry Hall, who has been the guest of W. E. Latta for the past few days, left for his home at Marysville, Mo., this morning.

Rev. W. G. Miller, D. D., presiding elder, took charge of the service at the M. E. church last evening. He left this morning for his home at Utica.

Jas. Nash and Wm. Murphy, two men who are employed on the sewer work were brought up before Judge Pottenger this morning for using insulting language with an attempt to provoke an assault. They were fined $1 and costs, amounting to $14 in all.

The democrats who compose the seven men and two boys assemblages, are the ones who have misrepresented the successful meetings of the republicans of late. Every meeting of any kind under the auspices of that club has been marked by success, and especially the banquet.

Jedd Vance, the young man who so nearly escaped death by falling in front of a moving locomotive, and who, according to a cut in the Police Gazette died some time ago, was seen on the streets Saturday. Dr. T. P. Livingston has attained a wide reputation in his successful treatment of an injury which allowed the sufferer only about one chance in a hundred for recovery.

On account of the picnic given by the Turn-Verein, yesterday, the Katie Pease, which was to have conveyed excursionists to the Iowa shore for the purpose of holding a picnic in Cottonwood grove, did not put in an appearance at the foot of Main street, the picnic which was to be held on the other side being postponed. At any time the boat can be engaged by a family for an excursion to any picnic point along the river in this vicinity.

Several small boys who scarcely know which end of a gun to hold to their shoulder when shooting, are allowed to carry small rifles about the city and shoot at marks in any quarter as they please. The other day, while a lady passed some of them on a street unnoticed, she came near being shot while they were firing at a mark. Parents should know better than to trust small boys with fire-arms, for they are sure to kill themselves or some one else if they are allowed to carry them. It is best to look after some children a little more or they will unintentionally endanger the lives of many.

Mayor Richey and Mr. A. B. Todd, who were visitors to Glenwood yesterday, set at rest the curious minds of many business men of that burg. The question has been asked many times by them: "Why is it your streets in Plattsmouth were made so wide?" That question has come up quite often here at home and if the reason is known it may also restrain a number of hard-thinking people. The point was never arrived at by any of the Glenwood people until yesterday when they saw the feet attached to Mr. A. B. Todd. It was decided immediately among them that in order to allow that gentleman a chance to transact business on the streets the same as other people, it was necessary to have the streets wide in order that he should be able to turn around if he was called suddenly in an opposite direction. In Glenwood his friends were obliged to drop him on the ground with his toes toward the heavens in order to reverse him.

The event of the season will take place in the event of a base ball match between a club recently organized in this city, consisting of nine fat and nine lean players. The game will be played in a few days on the ball ground, (if the players agree to leave the ground in as good a condition as they found it) in the afternoon sometime. The time has not yet been decided on, but, no doubt, the game will be opened about 1 o'clock in order to rest the fat people after they make their home as there will be many. To secure peace and settle disputes among the players, the umpire, Mr. Will Chambers, will be strapped to two of the largest revolvers obtainable in the city, and a couple of giant bull dogs, tied to a post near the home plate, will watch the game. The captains have not yet decided on all the players, but as soon as they do, we promise to publish the names giving their positions. We feel quite confident in the captains' choice of the nine, and the game will surely prove to be an interesting one. The catcher of the fat nine cannot confine his face to an ordinary sized catcher's mask, and will be obliged to infringe on the ladies' property article which he is adopting for a to be used in an unusual location. Other particulars will be given later.

Journal of yesterday's picnics are obliged to wear flexible hats today. The ball game which was to have been played next Thursday between the fats and leans, has been indefinitely postponed.

Mrs. Smith, an old lady who has been residing with her son for some time, was buried Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

Mr. W. D. Jones, in conveying several of the Omaha visitors to the depot from the picnic grounds last night was urged by some of the passengers for fear they would miss the train. Rather than see them left in town over night he cut corners and drove over a wire fence, letting the barb wire scratch some of the pants which hung over the sides of the wagon.

Mr. George Palmer, son of Capt. Palmer, who was a representative of the Plattsmouth Sons of Veterans at Tecumseh, Neb., a short time ago, and who was very successful at that place in receiving the appointment of representative to two conventions, received a charter encased in a nice frame from commander-in-chief, G. B. Abbott, promoting him to Aid-de-camp on the staff of the commander-in-chief of the U. S. A. Sons of Veterans. George has already attained a wide reputation as a militarist, and his many Plattsmouth friends heartily congratulate him on his success as a young man.

Mr. John Davies, president of the Young Men's Republican Club, has received several letters of congratulation from his young lady friends since the banquet of last Thursday night. In their letters, the cut of him which appeared the following day in the Herald is invariably received with a nice, neat little fringe worked around it, and a sweet little red ribbon attached. John has a hearty laugh over the reception of them all. The Herald, it is reported, has lost considerable patronage on account of the appearance of the cut, as he had intended to send a few papers to his friends, but as he is afraid they would think he has been in a prize ring, he refrained from sending even one.

A couple from Omaha came to the city Saturday night and registered at the Cottage House as man and wife. Yesterday morning a man came down from Omaha making inquiries for the lady, stating that she had been in his employ for some time as his assistant giving instructions for private theatricals. At first the man stated that she had taken about $137 of his money, but later he decided not to search her trunk for the money, but informed the authorities they were not married and ordered them arrested. Rather than have any trouble in that way, a license was procured and they were married in the county judge's office. The couple attended the Dutch picnic in the afternoon and the groom celebrated the event in grand style. The woman gave her name as Ella Carroll and the man claimed he was a blacksmith in the U. P. shops in Omaha and gave his name as John Camell.

Notice.

Will the person that took my knife, while decorating the Opera House for the Young Men's Republican Club, please return it? I need it. D. B. SMITH.

Plattsmouth Republicans.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., July 13.—The mountain has labored and the mouse is born. The long talked-of young men's republican banquet occurred last night, and if ever there was a failure this was preeminently one. One hundred and two men and boys carried colored lanterns, preceded by poor torches and headed by the Burlington and Missouri band. They marched three blocks on Main street, the music giving out and the drums failing to keep time, the banders lost the step. Then the officers rushed for the band, and another faint effort at a time started the fellows to try to catch step, and it was too funny to see the lanterns bob about. Then came an attempt to raise a cheer. It caught the corporal's guard on the turn at Sixth street, and if it had been about midnight the neighbors would have sworn Grimaltkin was holding a concert. Finally they adjourned to the opera house, where Bob Windham read apologies from the best speakers saying they could not come, and the small fry, his often defeated political hacks of their party commenced the usual abuse of demerol, and praised free whisky and high taxes, bragged about the surplus, which is only another way of endorsing robbery, and spurned the roll of political prophets predicting Indiana and New York for Harrison.

The Rev. Taite, bad thing for Chesterly to see it expound on the stump, told his audience he was English born and born in the "black counties," and naturally on his arrival here he affiliated with the black republicans. The audience was tired and sleepy. The only good thing about the hurrah was the supper, and the young ladies who prepared it deserve great credit. The democrats will show these old roosters what it is to fight against over-taxation this fall and will help to cut down the republican vote in Nebraska by such a vote as old Cass has not given for a long while.

The above comes from the Plattsmouth correspondent of the Omaha Herald, and is most certainly in keeping with his sympathies in the matter. He is a man who carries his politics with him, even as a reporter of news for the Herald, so far as to make an untrue statement of facts. From beginning to end the above is untrue, as all our citizens and those present at the banquet will bear us out. The Young Men's Republican Club banquet of 1888 was one of the grandest successes of a like nature ever held in the state and was most certainly a credit to our city. Could the small fry of the other side do as well we would at least treat them courteously.

The Turn-Verein Picnic. The picnic which was given by the Plattsmouth Turn-verein society at Degendorf's park yesterday was largely attended by local and foreign people. In the morning, as the Omaha Turner society arrived and formed into a procession with the Plattsmouth societies, they were headed by the Bohemian Brass Band of this city and marched to Fitzgerald's Hall, and after a short time continued their march to the park. Dancing and other amusements usual to a German Sunday picnic were indulged in, and the large crowd remained until darkness crept upon them and warned them of the lateness of the hour before they dispersed. This picnic did not attain such notoriety as several previous to it, as no quarreling or speaking of was noticeable upon the grounds, and the beer which was handed out was more limited. The German people at all times apparently enjoy themselves as long as a beer keg is in the vicinity. We did not learn how much beer was uncovered and covered, but it is supposed that it might possibly come under the heading of about fifty kegs. Judging by the shape some of the most ambitious beer drinkers moved from the grounds or into their respective vehicles, they each carried away a keg.

Weeds! Weeds!! Weeds!!!

Editor of THE HERALD:—Dear Sir:—Several items appeared in your paper concerning the appearance of our city on account of the weeds which have grown to such an enormous size in the streets, alleys, and any place where houses are not built over them to prevent the growth. It is certainly a shame that the authorities allow the city property to remain in such a state. I would ask that a man or several men be employed to cut those weeds, and in that way clean them out. If the work is left for property owners to do it will never be done. Some of them would allow weeds to grow higher than themselves around their property, and would never make any effort to get rid of them.

Let the authorities put some one to work and require them to have the work done. A TAXPAYER.

'Y's' Social.

A lawn social will be given by the "Y's" at the home of Mrs. Lovering, tomorrow, (Tuesday evening) to which all are cordially invited. Chocolate cake and ice-cream will be served as refreshments. Everybody go.

TO —

If words were thornless roses I might sing of her. And by them dew wet at her dainty feet. Perchance their perfume pure might stir. The music to her soul when our eyes meet. And, meeting, tell her how I love her, sweet. Her dainty hand, rose like upon a slender stem. Was modeled as a beauty lesson for mankind. Oh, tell me, Fate, have I found my gem? And will it surely crown my life and bind Me to her for all time? Sweet Fate, be kind, be kind. —George Frederick Mann.

The Terror of Actresses.

Over abundance of flesh is the terror of actresses. Fat, fair and forty may make a comely combination in private life, but when a woman of the stage gets along to ward forty she is spoiled for all sentimental purposes if she becomes fat. The beautiful Fanny Davenport, who is just about that age, became so thick a few years ago as to be unromantic, and the effect upon her roles was damaging. She recognized this, and went into a course of rigorous diet, from which flesh making food and drink were sedulously excluded. Her health was hurt considerably by this deprivation of nourishment, but she grew measurably thin under it, and last winter was once more light enough to realize the heroine of a French drama. Lillian Russell was a somewhat younger stage beauty who fattened. She was less disposed than Miss Davenport to crucify her appetite for art's sake, but she had to come to it at length, and to fit herself for a comic opera role at a city theatre this spring she underwent a rigorous course of training. She is again, shapely, at the cost of much self denial, but with a gain of a liberal salary, for her engagement was conditional upon her reducing her weight to 175 pounds. —New York Sun.

Work of the "Libel Rifle."

The members of the Academy of Medicine, wishing to diagnose the physical consequences of wounds inflicted by the bullets of the gun, recently had experiments made on twenty corpses, probably those of paupers whom nobody owned, or those of ill-fated waifs picked up at the morgue. The bodies were placed at the ordinary firing distance, from 200 yards up to a mile or so. The bullets whizzed through the bones and pierced them without fracturing them, as is done by the bullets of the "Gras rifle." The wounds, if they may be called so, which were inflicted were small in their punctures, and consequently very dangerous and difficult to heal. Injuries inflicted at short distances were so considerable that, in the opinion of the surgeons, they would be almost incurable. At the longest range—2,000 meters—a popular one hit, but which did not go through the tree. At 1,500 metres the tree was grazed through and through. The discharges of the rifle are unaccompanied by smoke, and the reports are comparatively feeble. —London Telegraph.

True Definition of Hatred.

The man of action looks down upon the man of thought, who returns the other's disdain. The poet despises the mathematician, and so on. We naturally hate what we cannot understand. Indeed, that is the true definition of hatred—misunderstanding. If we really understood our enemy we could never hate him—he would cease to be our enemy. There is nothing we resent so much as being misunderstood. There is no person so offensive as the man who deems that he can take our measure as we stand, unless, indeed, it be the woman who has the same conceit of herself and who is continually stroking our hair, but who fails to show us how thoroughly she understands us. Yet the misjudgments we object to we are continually visiting upon our neighbor. Hawthorne once purposed writing a tale to show how we are all wronged and wrongers, avenging one another. It is a pity he did not carry his purpose into execution. —Lippincott's Magazine.

The Real St. Bernard Dog.

Before I was one I always imagined the St. Bernard to be as large as a lion and strong as a bull. The picture of my youthful geography had made these impressions. When a dog that I supposed to be an overgrown setter was pointed out as one of the celebrated Alpine breed, my cherished imaginary structures went clattering to the ground. Many a time had I in my early boyhood on a winter's night, when it was snowing hard outside, sat before a cheerful fire and thought that was the kind of weather when the sagacious St. Bernard patrolled the mountain passes on the lookout for storm-bound travelers. When some poor wretch half perishing in the snow was found his freezing blood would be thawed by the dog's warm body and the brandy flask so conveniently attached to the collar. After regaining strength I supposed the traveler would mount the dog's back and the animal trot off with him to the monastery. But it was plain that this St. Bernard (he was a crack, too) had been large enough to carry a man, could not trot; he was entirely too straight in the stifles. It is doubtful if he could have even walked fast enough to keep himself from freezing to death on a real cold night. —Forest and Stream.

Coal is Cash.

The undersigned coal dealers, doing business in the city of Plattsmouth, deem it to the best interests of the public, as well as of the dealers, to sell coal strictly and exclusively for cash.

Coal is a commodity that is, and should be, sold on a very close margin, too small, in fact, for the dealers to trust to the delays and uncertainties of collections.

The dealers are required to pay spot cash for coal. The credit system entails a serious loss each season, by reason of the amount of bad debts necessary to be charged off to profit and loss, and in the additional expense required for book-keepers, collectors, etc.

By dispensing with the above formidable items of expense, dealers can afford to sell coal at lower prices, and they feel assured that this will commend itself to the thinking public.

For the above reasons, therefore, the coal dealers have decided to sell for cash only.
